LAVAL SELECTS FRENCH CABINET AMID NEW RIOTS

Acts to End Nation's Money Crisis.

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

PARIS, June 7—(Friday.)—Pierre Laval's new coalition cabinet met at dawn to work on a "save the franc" program. The new council of ministers was called to order in the presence of President Lebrun. The nation's urgent financial difficulties were discussed. At 5 p. m. the cabinet intends to draft its declarations for presentation an hour later to parliament.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 7.—[Friday.]—Pierre Laval, foreign minister in the cabinet of Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, this morning stepped into the shoes of the late Raymond Poincare and the late Georges Clemenceau as the one man who can save France in an hour of crisis.

After twice refusing appointment as head of a new government and watching all his possible rivals fall ignominiously by the wayside, the swarthy Auvergnat yielded, like Cæsar, to a third appeal. He called at Elysées palace at 7:40 o'clock last evening and emerged a half hour later saying:

"In the face of the gravity of the situation I have not the right to step aside. I am going to form a government."

Crisis Seen as Ended.

At 2 a. m. he had made good his word. The government was formed and the ministerial crisis which threatened to bring France to monetary bankruptcy and civil war within a few days was deemed ended.

The new cabinet, in which Laval keeps his post as foreign minister, is based on the same political formula as the last three governments, with as generous a distribution of portfolios to the left as Fernand Bouisson, his predecessor, gave in his short-lived cabinet.

The only thing important about it is that, by a clear cut vote of the Radical Socialist party, it is assured in advance of obtaining from the chamber of deputies the dictatorial financial powers which were refused to Flandin, Bouisson, and various would-be premiers in the last two days.

The New Cabinet.

Finance—Marcel Regnier.
War—Col. Jean Fabry.
Navy—Francois Pietri.
Air—Gen. Victor Denain.
Justice—Leon Bernard.
Transportation—Georges Mandel.
Labor—Louis Brossard.
Colonies—Louis Rollin.
Interior—Joseph Paganon.
Public Works—Laurent Eynac.
Health—Ernest Lafont.
Commerce—Georges Bonnet.
Agriculture—Pierre Cathala.
Education—Philippe Marcombes.
Pensions—Henry Maupoil.
Merchant Marine—Mario Roustan.

The news that Laval had accepted the job of forming a cabinet and was assured of success did not come a moment too soon. Although gold withdrawals were less than expected, the franc remained weak in terms of all international currencies. It was learned that in the last fifteen days approximately $530,000,000 worth of gold left the country, while the total gold loss of the last two months was nearly $730,000,000.

Gold Coverage Down.

A Bank of France statement for the week ending last Thursday showed a decrease in the franc's gold coverage of almost 5 per cent, whereas for months this ratio has hardly varied over a fraction of 1 per cent from one week to another.

In the streets the situation was no less menacing. Nervous authorities massed mobile guards with rifles around the opera and other strategic points while hundreds of police played hide and seek with bands of Royalist agitators who marched up and down the boulevards all evening singing and shouting.

At midnight police clashed with crowds leaving a tax protest meeting in the Latin quarter. Groups of parading students resisted efforts to disperse them. Four were injured, one seriously.

[Associated Press dispatches said three persons were injured and 40 Royalists arrested in earlier clashes along Paris boulevards.]

Politically the situation at the end

Boston, Mass., June 7.—[Friday.]—(AP)—The Millen-Faber trio of machine gun killers—the brothers Murton and Irving Millen and Abraham Faber—met swift death in the electric chair at the Massachusetts state prison early today for the murder of Policeman Forbes McLeod in the holdup of a Needham, Mass., trust company on Feb. 2, 1934.

Murton Millen, 25 year old beetle-browed "brains" of the gang which terrorized eastern Massachusetts little more than a year ago, died first; his 21 year old brother, Irving, followed him, while Faber, brilliant technological school graduate, went last to the chair.

Bandit Shoots Self to Death in Police Trap

Trapped by policemen yesterday afternoon in the basement of his home at 1416 East 55th street, whither he had fled after robbing three women in a dress shop, Arthur Adamcy, 18 years old, chose to kill himself rather than surrender.

As the police closed in, under the fire of his pistol, and tossed tear bombs into his refuge, Adamcy made his dramatic decision. With the fumes from the bombs rising about him as he cowered behind a furnace, he placed the weapon against his own head and pulled the trigger.

Expected to Die of Wound.

Breaking in, the policemen found him unconscious on the floor. He was taken first to the Illinois Central hospital and later to the Bridewell hospital, where he died.

The robbery and its sequel disclosed that Adamcy, who was once an inmate of the St. Charles School for Boys and later a member of a CCC camp, was secretly married last February to Marie Preuss, 17 years old, 432 West 63d street. Through the girl the police were able to trace Leo Heuss, 20 years old, 6307 Champlain avenue, who was his confederate in the robbery, and to arrest him at his home.

The place that was robbed by the pair is the shop of Matilda Sills at 1507 East 53d street. They appeared there about 4 p. m. From Miss Nell O'Brien, manager, and Miss Dorothy Terry, a clerk, they took $47. Mrs. Allen Sinsheimer, 5509 Hyde Park boulevard, a customer, was compelled to give up $21.

Joined by Young Woman.

Fleeing from the shop, the men separated. At 55th street and Kenwood avenue Heuss was joined by a young woman. Together they entered a taxicab and were driven away. Adamcy, on leaving the shop, carried his pistol in his hand, and this attracted the attention of several small boys, who followed him. When police squads, informed of the holdup by radio, arrived in the vicinity of his home, these boys pointed out his hiding place.

Policemen Robert Gibbons, William Ryan, and Joseph Lynch of the Hyde Park station demanded Adamcy's surrender. It was refused. The policemen then had John Adamcy, janitor of the building and father of the youth, urge him to come out. When this plea failed Lynch tossed in tear bombs and young Adamcy shot himself.

Trace Bride Through Picture.

In his pockets were found the name and picture of the girl bride, who was until recently an Englewood High school student. At her home she said that she was married in February to Adamcy, whom she met at a walkathon. They had never lived together, she added. From her the police learned that Heuss was a constant companion of her husband.

When he was taken to the Hyde Park station, Heuss confessed to Lieut. Joseph Berounsky that he had been involved in the dress shop robbery and in at least 25 other robberies in recent months. He formerly lived at Grand Rapids, Mich. Adamcy, he said, had been associating with him since he left the CCC camp on May 9.

Last evening the police found the woman companion of Heuss. She is Miss Edna Ferguson, 18 years old, a waitress, of 6117 Kenwood avenue. She said she knew nothing of the robbery. Heuss, she said, left her in a restaurant near 55th street and Kenwood avenue and returned for her just before they drove away in the cab. He took her home, she said, and left her.

GIRL IS KILLED, SCORE HURT WHEN CIRCUS ELEPHANT STAMPEDES

Crookston, Minn., June 6.—(AP)—One person was killed and nearly a score injured late today when a stampeding elephant crashed through a row of seats in a capacity filled tent of the Atterbury Brothers' shows.

Margaret Ann Francis, 9 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Francis, Crookston, was crushed under one of the animal's feet, and died in a hospital.

Most of the injured, living in or near Crookston, were treated for cuts and bruises.

Most of the casualties resulted from a collapse of the bleacher seats from the impact of the elephant's charge.

William Woodcock, 31, Ottumwa, Ia., trainer of the elephant, was taken to the city jail by Police Chief J. A. McCaffrey for questioning. Francis Stadsvold, Polk county attorney, said tonight he will recommend to a coroner's jury that Woodcock be held on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Woodcock and circus officials denied the elephant had been beaten or abused before the performance. Woodcock said the 18 year old elephant was frightened by a dog.

SURRENDERS TREASURER'S OFFICE AFTER MELEE WITH SHERIF'S MEN

Grand Jury Awaits Action as Board Finds Default.

Prosecution is expected to follow shortly the ouster of Robert M. Sweitzer from the office of county treasurer. State's Attorney Courtney will return from the east early next week and then is expected to go before the grand jury in connection with the Sweitzer case.

While the state's attorney has made no definite comment on what action he would take against Sweitzer, the stern tone of the formal resolution for Sweitzer's removal was regarded as significant. Assistant State's Attorneys Leslie E. Salter and Marshall Kearney, and Clarence Walker, a special auditor on the prosecutor's staf, have been busy for the last ten days examining the audit of Sweitzer's régime as county clerk for evidence of criminality.

Suit on Bonds Expected.

Another court action possible shortly in the Sweitzer case is a suit against the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company. This company underwrote $100,000 bonds for each of Sweitzer's six four year terms as county clerk.

A legal question is involved as to whether the tax redemption fund, to which most of the $414,129 Sweitzer shortage was traced, is covered by these bonds. Another question is whether and how the shortage can be allocated to the various periods covered by the bonds. It is believed that the state's attorney will hold that the surety company is responsible.

Mr. Courtney on Wednesday went to Villanova, Pa., where yesterday he received an honorary degree from Villanova college.

Ouster Is Unprecedented.

The county board's order ousting Sweitzer as county treasurer, an action unprecedented in the annals of Cook county officialdom, followed nearly a month of activity and startling disclosures in the local government. At times these events assumed almost the nature of a showboat farce as when Sweitzer admitted that he had invested $200,000 of the county funds in a personal venture for the manufacture of coal bricks, and said he could not get the money because two women, who claimed to be the widows of the inventor, were fighting for his estate.

And last night, just before the ouster, Sweitzer summoned a "mysterious stranger," who, Sweitzer assured a county board committee, could save him by producing the money. But the stranger failed.

New Clerk Orders Audit.

The first inkling that all might not be right in the county clerk's office was given on May 9. At that time Michael J. Flynn, Sweitzer's successor as clerk, said that an audit of the office from 1872 up to Sweitzer's departure was being made.

The audit was completed on May 10, but was not made public until May 23. It revealed that Sweitzer had failed to account for $380,959 of the funds in his care and at least $72,243 in interest. Of the $380,959, $39,618 had been repaid, making the total $414,584. State's Attorney Courtney later fixed the total at $414,129.

Sweitzer, affable as he had always been during his public career, laughed off the rumors. "Why, everything will be all right, boys," he told reporters. "I haven't completed the turnover to Mr. Flynn. That is all."

Pleads for Two Weeks.

On the county board's demand Sweitzer appeared before it on May 27. He was asked to turn over the money. He pleaded for two weeks' time to examine the audit and "satisfy" himself that it was correct. He was granted until June 3.

On that day—last Monday—he again went before the commissioners, sitting as their finance committee. He asked for another week's time, assuring them the money would be turned over on June 10. The week of grace was allowed at that time.

But that afternoon the commissioners gathered in board meeting and were informed of the extent of their powers by State's Attorney Courtney. He advised them to order Sweitzer to pay the money immediately, or resign, or face ouster.

Board Changes Its Mind.

In the meanwhile Sweitzer had gone to Terre Haute, Ind., to attend the graduation of his daughter, Margaret, from St. Mary of the Woods college. He was informed the board had changed its mind and he returned to Chicago and appeared before the commissioners Wednesday morning. They ordered him to turn over the money immediately or face the consequences.

Again Sweitzer begged for time. The

DRAMA OF OUSTER HAS MYSTERIOUS LANKY STRANGER

BY PARKE BROWN.

Who was the mysterious "Mr. Burns" whom Sweitzer brought into his final conference last evening with representatives of the county board to corroborate his statement that he had $335,000 almost ready to turn over to meet the shortage in his accounts?

As great a mystery as when he was brought into that secret meeting, "Mr. Burns" disappeared from the fast moving drama the moment the commissioners reached a fixed conclusion that he had added nothing to it unless it was a weird touch of comedy. Not once did he disclose his identity. And Sweitzer referred to him only as "my agent" or "my representative."

Refers to Rich Friends.

His strange conduct, his frequent references to multimillionaires as his intimates, his repeated dialing of a telephone number that did not exist, and his extremely droll sense of humor provided a busy side line for conversation during the long evening siege of the treasurer's office.

One of his efforts to lighten the situation between dialing times was an anecdote.

"This whole situation," he said, "reminds me of the story they tell of the colored man who was about to be hanged and who, just before they put the cap on, was asked if he wanted to say anything. 'Yes, sah,' he said, 'Ah wants to say this shuah will be a lesson to me.'"

Out of a Story Book.

Those who participated in the final talk with Sweitzer just before the first ouster vote was taken said the mysterious stranger seemed to be a character out of a story book. Long, lanky, even scrawny, according to their description, he needed only a tall, rusty stovepipe hat to fit into a tale of weird high finance.

The commissioners and assistant state's attorneys had gone to a private room on the vault floor of the county building expecting to meet there a spokesman for one of the large banks. Sweitzer sent word to his office and a member of his staf escorted the stranger to the room. Sweitzer spoke of him merely as "Mr. Burns." Some of the group understood the name as "Byrne."

His first utterance, the conferees believed, was to have been some statement that the $335,000 was not yet available, but before he had completed a sentence Sweitzer interrupted to ask whether he was at liberty to talk. Immediately "Mr. Burns" shifted to say that before he could talk he would have to obtain his "release," a word he used frequently thereafter.

No Response to Dialing.

He asked to use the telephone. He dialed and waited. There was no response and he said he would try again in a few minutes. He was asked whom he represented and began talking about the refrigerator car business of Armour & Co., saying also that he had represented the Armour company in the orient.

He spoke of "Ogden and the missus" in referring to the late J. Ogden Armour, and mentioned "my trip with John D." He spoke of one matter of business that wound up with seventeen million dollars "they didn't know what to do with."

At intervals he would use the telephone again. Then it was noticed he was overworking one finger hole. What he was dialing was GHI 4440. It was always the same. There is no Chicago exchange with a name starting with GHI.

Afraid Something Is Wrong.

Sweitzer appeared alarmed by the thought that "Mr. Burns" was not extremely convincing. He leaned over to him and whispered in a tone audible to everybody in the room:

"I'm afraid if you don't tell them something more they'll begin to think there's something wrong."

The commissioners and the lawyers had begun to think so. They told Sweitzer they would have to recommend his ouster. When they left the room Sweitzer went with them. Nobody noticed where the mysterious stranger went.

Misbehaving Mr. Moose Makes Merry in Maine

Dover Foxcroft, Me., June 6.—[Special.]—A bull moose that snorted his way into the business section of the town tonight wrecked the entrance of the telephone company's office and chased a man around a telephone pole several times. The moose then dashed madly down the main street, scattering pedestrians. After wrecking everything with which he came in contact he sauntered back to the Piscataquis river and swam away.

Robert M. Sweitzer was ousted as county treasurer last night by the board of county commissioners. But his eviction from office came only after the county building and the square of streets bounding it had been made the scene of a warlike spectacle containing elements both of comic opera and revolutionary Russia.

Barricades His Office.

Notified of his dismissal from the treasurership Sweitzer barricaded his office and surrounded himself with guards. Thus embattled he held possession until midnight, when a sherif's army of deputies, county police, and city polce bristling with machine guns, pistols, and tear bombs forcibly ejected him shortly after midnight.

The deputy sherifs then stood guard over the office, with instructions to keep it closed against the transaction of business until Joseph L. Gill, present clerk of the Municipal court, who was appointed successor to Sweitzer, can qualify formally and take over.

Dramatic Eviction Scene.

All the elements of drama entered into the eviction—legal and physical—of Sweitzer, who has failed thus far to make good his promises to pay a shortage in his accounts as county clerk, an office he held for 24 years. This shortage, he says, is $335,000. The county board says it is $414,-129.

Sweitzer apparently determined to hold onto his post at the time the county board voted, 14 to 0, to toss him out. This was at 6:50 p. m. Hearing the verdict, Sweitzer went first to his home and then drove to his office. He was joined there by legal advisers and, a little later, by thirty special detectives from the Hargrave agency at 145 North Clark street.

Sherif's Men Barred.

It speedily became known that he was embattled behind the closed doors and intended to hold the office as a fort. Sherif John Toman sent a delegation of deputies headed by one of his first assistants, Joseph Lelivelt, to demand possession. Their entrance was barred by the hired guards.

Lelivelt communicated with Sherif Toman, who announced that sufficient help would be given to take the office by force if necessary. At his request the detective bureau sent 50 policemen, equipped with tear gas bombs and riot guns, to the county building. In charge of this detail went Deputy Detective Chief Walter Storms and Lieut. Richard Barry. The street about the building swarmed with "troops" and bystanders. Innocent spectators caught inside the county building couldn't get out.

Defenders Capitulate.

This show of force overawed the defenders of the office and Lelivelt, Storms, and Barry were admitted to a conference with Sweitzer and Harvey Levinson, attorney who is advising him. Boldly the ousted treasurer handed to them a statement in which he declared the action of the board was illegal, that he was still treasurer, and that the office would be open under his direction today.

"Bob," said Lelivelt, "we'll have to take possession of your office."

Threatens to Use Force.

"Then I'll have to force you out," declared Lelivelt.

So saying, he laid his hand on Sweitzer's arm and pushed him toward the door. The outgoing treasurer made no further resistance, having established the fact that his ouster was forcible. Surrounded by half a dozen deputies, he moved from the second floor down to the first and out the Randolph street entrance of the building.

Within the structure he had maintained the aplomb which marked all his actions through the case. Outside, for the first time he lost his temper. As a crowd of about 300 milled about him and photographers snapped their flash bulbs he shouted refusals to pose and drew his hat down over his eyes. Then, much flustered, he dashed back into the building.

Collects His Belongings.

Accompanied by deputies, he returned again to his office and approached his old rolltop desk. There he gathered up some personal belongings, papers, and an old green blanket and dropped them into a hatbox.

"I thought they'd let me keep my stuff here till morning," he said, "but they won't."

Attorney Levinson assisted him in the collection. When he had finished Sweitzer went back downstairs, this time in a freight elevator to avoid the curious, and was driven away in his car. Following him went several cars filled with policemen.

Some thirty minutes later Sweitzer arrived at his home, 3522 Jackson boulevard. He entered the house. A few minutes later a car, not his, was driven up to the house and he emerged. He was rapidly driven away and showed up in minimum time at the American National bank, 33 North La Salle street.

There were lights blazing in offices on the fourth floor and it was assumed Sweitzer was conferring with some one about arrangements to get the promised money to cover the shortage.

In Better Spirits on Return.

Whether he was successful or not he would not say, but it was evident when he left the bank and drove home about 2:30 a. m. that his spirits had risen.

Arriving at the home, 3522 Jackson boulevard, he got out of his car and greeted the newspaper reporters and photographers with an affable smile. In contrast to his former demeanor he posed willingly for pictures, then said to the men:

"Boys, I'm terribly sorry if I was discourteous to any of you earlier. I didn't mean to be and I want you to be my friends—all of you."

Questioned directly about the bank negotiations, however, he would only smile and say:

"Sorry, but my lawyer advises me to say nothing—now. I'm going in and go to bed now. I'll leave the house about 9 in the morning."

Meanwhile, in the county treasurer's office, the last of the Sweitzer employés were cleared out. Even Horace Lindheimer, his first assistant, whom Sweitzer had sought to have remain in technical charge, left.

In the offices of the county board President Clayton Smith and the other commissioners who had waited anxiously for the outcome of the siege of the treasurer's office, breathed sighs of relief when they learned he had departed and that no pitched battle had occurred.

Brings Up Talk of His Record.

They had spent most of the waiting time talking of Sweitzer's past career, his vast abilities as a vote getter, and his talents as a story teller and entertainer.

Through all the proceedings Sweitzer stuck to his old claim that he was in the right and that today he would have the money to pay at least $335,000. His statement while he was holding his office made it plain that he intends to fight against the ouster in any way he can. This statement read:

"We regard the action of the board of county commissioners as illegal. It is advice of counsel that they acted without authority. I am, under law, the constitutional county treasurer, and I expect to hold that office in accordance with law. The office of county treasurer will be open tomorrow for the transaction of business under my authority.

"Obviously we should resist any purported attempt to interfere with the due and efficient administration of this office."

Inform Courtney of Happenings.

Assistant State's Attorney William J. Tuohy, who has been advising the county board, said that the board was willing to stipulate that Sweitzer was forced from his office and that there was no need for him to gather guards about him.

The board's ouster action came at the end of a confused day. Sweitzer had promised to pay $335,000 by noon. He obtained a delay until 4 p. m., but failed to have the money ready, and the board, after granting a further extension, voted in the early evening to oust him as treasurer. He had been given an opportunity to resign, but scornfully refused it.

Sweitzer had attended this meeting. He was not present at the later one, held at 9 p. m., when the formally drawn resolution for his dismissal was approved. Passing of this resolution was followed by the appointment of Gill to the office.

Following this the board announced it would meet today to approve the statutory bonds of $3,000,000 required for the county treasurer. The nineteen surety companies now on Sweitzer's bond have indicated they would allow their respective shares to stand for Gill.

Wrigley Squelches Rumor.

Rumors current during the evening to the effect that Sweitzer was expecting help from Philip K. Wrigley, president of the Cubs baseball club and head of the Wrigley chewing gum interests, were rather effectively squelched by Mr. Wrigley.

He was en route from California to Chicago by train when he was asked by telegraph to comment on these rumors.

"Thank you for troubling to get first hand information," he replied. "Knew nothing of Sweitzer's difficulty until I saw it in yesterday's Chicago papers this morning. Have not been asked for nor given Mr. Sweitzer anything and am returning per regular schedule to attend to my own business. Am afraid even the idea of my ability to help is exaggerated, as I am having and always have had just about all I can do to take care of my own problems."

ACTION BY GRAND JURY EXPECTED AFTER OUSTER

board was adamant; it set his deadline for noon yesterday. At 10:30 yesterday morning a "pay or get out" committee of seven commissioners and Clerk Flynn called on Sweitzer.

Sweitzer greeted the committee, chewing on one of his ever present cigars. Outside his office the crowds gathered and reporters clamored for admission, which was denied.

"I always intended to pay," Sweitzer told the commissiones and Flynn as he shook their hands. The delegation was embarrassed; Sweitzer was calm.

Call for the Money.

Then Commissioner George Miller spoke up: "Have you the money? That's what we came for."

"When I pay this money," Sweitzer countered, "I want to know that it will satisfy the committee and that it will eliminate any demand for my resignation or my ouster from office."

Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh responded flatly that the committee wanted to know if Sweitzer was ready to settle. Then he promised that by 4 o'clock in the afternoon he would pay over $335,000 and that by Saturday he would place the balance of the shortage in escrow, from which it could be withdrawn in any amounts established as due by the audit.

Expects Aid from West.

Sweitzer asked the postponement from noon until 4 p. m. because he said some of the money was being sent to him from San Francisco and the banks there did not open until 12 o'clock, Chicago time. [It was learned later than no San Francisco banks had any funds on hand belonging to Sweitzer nor were they planning to forward him any money.]

But Sweitzer's proposition was agreeable to the county board committee. He promised also that with the $335,000 he would send a letter to the board naming his escrow agent.

The county board met as scheduled at noon and promptly adjourned to 4 o'clock.

At that time the meeting room was jammed, with scores of people being turned away. Clayton F. Smith, president of the board, called the session to order at 4:25. One of the fifteen commissioners—H. Wallace Caldwell—was absent.

Sweitzer Appears Late.

Several minutes passed and Sweitzer did not appear. The crowd was restless, peering at the door through which he must enter. At 4:31 Sweitzer entered alone. For several minutes he was busy posing for photographers, then he shook hands with Clerk Flynn.

Then Smith asked Sweitzer: "Have you the check in payment for the $335,000 as you promised? We have your letter regarding your arrangements for placing the $79,000 balance in escrow by Saturday, but the important thing is the check. You were supposed to be here with it at 4 o'clock. It is now 20 minutes to 5."

Blames Publicity of Plans.

"First of all," he began, "I want to ask your pardon for my tardy appearance. Regarding the funds I can make the amount good some time tomorrow morning. I can say now that these funds are in Chicago, but I have been interfered with somewhat by the statements in the newspapers regarding my conference with the committee this morning.

"That was supposed to be an executive session and nothing was to have been broadcast. The publicity interfered with the transfer of the money. But the money is in Chicago and I can assure you I will have it some time in the morning. You will recall I was originally given a week by the board's finance committee, but you changed your minds.

"The only suggestion I can make is that you wait until tomorrow morning. I have been in my office all day working by long distance telephone. I can assure you on my word of honor that the funds are in the city and will be in your hands tomorrow."

Asks Another Day's Delay.

Here Sweitzer's voice broke and his eyes were shining as if tears were near. In the back of the room his sympathizers in the crowd started a little cheer. But the commissioners stared straight at Sweitzer; they said not a word.

"Reluctantly and regretfully," he said, "I must ask a delay until tomorrow because all my arrangements were predicated on not having to pay until June 10. I submit myself to you."

There were shouts of approval mingled with hisses from the spectators as Sweitzer sat down. Commissioner Miller arose.

"Would you mind," he asked Sweitzer, "giving us some concrete evidence that the funds are available? I presume they are in a bank."

"Yes, they are in a bank," Sweitzer replied.

"But can't we have some confirmation?" Miller persisted.

"I'd be glad to give it to you quietly," Sweitzer said, "but I can't tell you here."

Recess for an Hour.

Commissioner Mary McEnerney then moved that a committee of the board be appointed to confer privately with Sweitzer on the location of the funds. Miller substituted a motion that the board recess for an hour so that a committee could talk privately with Sweitzer in the interim.

"I don't question Mr. Sweitzer's veracity," Miller declared, "but the board has been meeting and adjourning too often on this matter and I don't want an adjournment today until we have the money or the assurance we will get it in the morning."

By a unanimous vote Miller's motion to recess for an hour was carried. Sweitzer went into conference with Smith, Miller and Kavanagh, Clerk Flynn, and Assistant State's Attorneys Wilbert F. Crowley, William J. Tuohy and Hayden N. Bell. The meeting was held in Smith's private office in the county building.

The "Mysterious Stranger."

And now the "mysterious stranger" came into the picture. Tall and lanky, carrying a newspaper, this man was seen to hurry into the conference room. His name, it was rumored, was given to the commissioners and Flynn as Burns. What happened in the conference was not revealed. Burns was believed to have made several telephone calls. But the proceedings did not satisfy the men who were giving Sweitzer his last chance to "show" them.

The meeting was to have lasted only an hour, but it was 6:45—two hours after it began—before it broke up.

"I don't know what the hell is coming next," Smith said as he came out. And then the last drama packed act began.

Last Card Is Played.

Back to the board rooms, jammed with spectators and reporters, came the board committee and Clerk Flynn and the prosecutors. The "mysterious stranger" had vanished. Sweitzer followed slowly, looking glum. Whether he knew it or not, his last card had been played.

There was silence in the board room. Slowly Smith arose and addressed the commissioners.

"We couldn't verify Mr. Sweitzer's statements that he had the money in Chicago," he said. "We know nothing more now than when we left this room two hours ago."

Sweitzer stood up. His "front" was destroyed at last—the "front" that had amazed his associates for the last month. He seemed very tired and it looked as if he might break down at any moment.

"I said the money was in Chicago," he began slowly, "and had not yet been transferred to me, but could be by tomorrow. I didn't care to name the source of the money. I said I would give that in confidence. The committee met with me and I gave them the information as well as I could.

Can't Find His Principal.

"I brought in my agent [apparently the mysterious stranger] to confirm the fact that the money was positively here. I was asked to name my principal.

"My agent confided that that information could not be given without the permission of the principal. We have been pursuing this principal all afternoon, but it was late and we could not find him. I haven't been able to give the committee absolute confirmation, as my agent explained."

Sweitzer stopped talking for an instant. He seemed to be pulling himself together as he gazed out at the rows of commissioners. But he saw only their set faces. The crowd moved restlessly.

"I tried to fit myself to the new program," he continued, "when the board changed its mind about giving me until June 10 to pay. My arrangements were all made on the basis of that date.

"I have done the best that I could in the last few hours. I respectfully ask that you give me until tomorrow."

No Time for Ultimatums.

Sweitzer sat down. There was a dead silence. He hadn't broken. But the commissioners were bent on a single purpose; the time for ultimatums was past.

Commissioner Kavanagh rose and the crowd surged forward—hunters straining for the kill.

"Read the motion," Kavanagh said abruptly to Sylvester O'Donahue, assistant clerk of the board.

O'Donahue began to read: "It is moved that Robert M. Sweitzer be removed from his office as county treasurer——"

There was a roar from the crowd.

"Wait a minute," Kavanagh shouted, pounding on the table for order. Apparently O'Donahue had started reading out of turn the second of two motions already prepared.

Reads the Other Resolution.

O'Donahue read the other of the prepared resolutions: "Be it resolved that Robert M. Sweitzer be requested to tender immediately to this board of county commissioners his resignation as county treasurer of Cook county."

Commissioner Daniel Ryan seconded the resolution. It was carried unanimously.

The crowd murmured, but it was stilled as Sweitzer arose again. He faced the commissioners.

"Gentlemen," he told them, "this is a complete surprise to me. I have been unable to consult counsel so I would like another day or so to consider this matter and meet with lawyers. I am not refusing to resign, nor do I say I will resign. I need more time."

"How long would you want us to wait?" Smith inquired.

"A day or two," Sweitzer said. "I never had thought it necessary to employ a lawyer."

Not a Snap Judgment.

"We have tried to be extremely considerate," Smith declared, "and are not taking snap judgments. We've met and met and met and we're not getting anywhere. The state's attorney has advised us along the lines we are proceeding.

"This is a mighty tough job this board is taking on, but we cannot do anything else. We are public servants called to perform a duty."

Sweitzer's voice trembled.

"Am I not going to get any consideration on my request for time?" he pleaded. "I don't think it fair of you to expect me to reply tonight. I'd like to know what my rights are. I still expect to bring in the money tomorrow."

Q.—In view of what just has happened, if the board gave you until 10:30 tomorrow morning and you refused or were unable to pay, would you then resign? A.—Then I would give the board a definite reply.

Q.—That is not my question. Would you resign? A.—I would give a definite reply tomorrow.

Abide by the Consequences.

Q.—This is the most disagreeable thing that ever happened to me in my tenure on the board. Suppose we gave you until noon tomorrow and you still refused or were unable to pay. Would you agree then to comply with the resolution to resign? A.—I am absolutely confident that I can bring in the money and I am willing to abide by the consequences if I do not have it by tomorrow morning.

"We want you to make the agreement to resign," Smith interposed.

"I'll not make that agreement in advance," was Sweitzer's reply.

"It is difficult for us to explain this to the public," Smith said.

Sweitzer's voice rose; he was speaking to the crowd in the rear and these people hung on his words.

"My statements here about getting the money have not been refuted," he asserted. "They were not confirmed because I could not get the man who would confirm them. You can go through with the motion of removing me if you wish."

Prefers His Resignation.

"But we prefer that you resign," Smith told him.

"To resign or make an agreement to resign," Sweitzer said, and this was his ultimatum, "would convey a feeling of guilt or unworthiness on my part. I refuse to resign now. I will take the request under consideration."

Again a pregnant silence. Then Commissioner Fred Fischman sounded Sweitzer's death knell.

"Read the second resolution," he ordered O'Donahue.

O'Donahue read: "Be it moved by this board that Robert M. Sweitzer be removed from his office as county treasurer of Cook county and that a written resolution and order of removal forthwith be prepared by the state's attorney."

All Members Vote Aye.

One by one the commissioners voted—all "ayes." The meeting recessed until 9 o'clock. But the crowd remained and a few of Sweitzer's sympathizers patted him on the back as he walked through them. He shook hands with an unidentified young woman.

"I'm not licked yet," he told her, and went swiftly away.

The Democratic commissioners went to the Morrison hotel, where they conferred with P. A. Nash, head of the county central committee, and other party leaders. It was at this conference that Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, was agreed upon as Sweitzer's successor.

Sweitzer did not appear when the board convened at 9 o'clock. He was in his office three floors below.

The formal resolution for his ouster was read by O'Donahue. It had been prepared by Assistant State's Attorneys Crowley, Bell, and Tuohy. The commissioners then voted on it. As the first "ayes" were given a woman in the back of the room cried: "No, no, no!" But her voice was not heard as the fourteenth "aye" was announced.

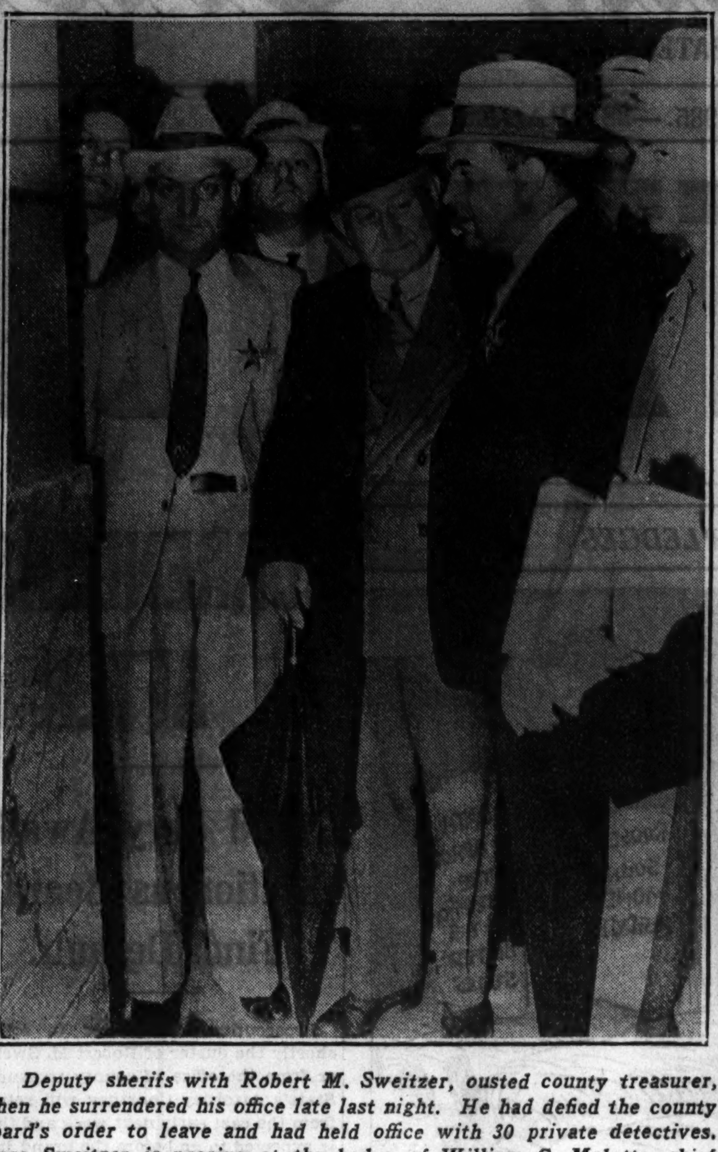
Gill Elected Successor.

Another resolution was read naming Gill as Sweitzer's successor. Commissioner William Busse offered an amendment proposing the name of James A. Kearns. Kearns, a Republican, was defeated by Sweitzer last November in the election for treasurer.

Busse's amendment was defeated, 10 to 4, a strictly partisan vote. The Democratic members of the board formed a bloc against the four Republicans present. (Caldwell, who was absent, is the fifth Republican.)

The vote was then unanimous for Gill.

SHERIF'S MEN TAKE OFFICE



Deputy sherifs with Robert M. Sweitzer, ousted county treasurer, when he surrendered his office late last night. He had defied the county board's order to leave and had held office with 30 private detectives. Here Sweitzer is peering at the badge of William G. Malotta, chief bailif of the Criminal court.

TEXT OF ORDER BY FULL VOTE OF COMMISSIONERS

Resolved, that Robert M. Sweitzer, as county treasurer and ex-officio county collector of Cook county, has been guilty of misconduct in said office in this:

That the said Robert M. Sweitzer is in default as collector and custodian of money belonging to the county of Cook and appertaining to the office of the county clerk of Cook county, by his own admission made to this board, in the sum of $335,000, and by an audit of R. L. Pearce & Co., in the sum of $414,129.41, which he has failed and refused to turn over, by reason of which failure and refusal Robert M. Sweitzer has been rendered ineligible to hold the office of county treasurer and ex-officio county collector of Cook county, under section 11 of article 9 of the constitution of Illinois, and being so ineligible, and his resignation from said office having been demanded by this board, Robert M. Sweitzer has, and does, hold the said office of county treasurer and ex-officio county collector of Cook county, and continues to perform the duties thereof, in defiance of the constitution of Illinois and the authority of this board:

That Robert M. Sweitzer stated to this board in a meeting of the board, that the said moneys and funds due the county of Cook and appertaining to the office of county clerk were in his possession, or under his control, to be turned over to his successor in the office of county clerk, when the said audit of R. L. Pearce & Co. had been examined by him or his auditor, whereby it became material for this board to determine the identity and source of said funds, so promised to be turned over, to prevent Robert M. Sweitzer from using funds in his hands as county treasurer and ex-officio county collector of Cook county, to make the turnover to his successor in the office of county clerk, and thereupon the board asked, or caused to be asked, Robert M. Sweitzer, in substance, if he had the money to turn over to his successor, and when Robert M. Sweitzer had answered this question in the affirmative, the board asked him the further and following questions, in substance, in relation to said money, to wit: [1] Where is such money? and [2] Where did you get the money? both of which questions Robert M. Sweitzer refused to answer;

That Robert M. Sweitzer has failed and refused to pay over to himself, as county treasurer of Cook county, moneys due from himself individually or as county clerk of Cook county;

All of which foregoing facts this board hereby finds to be true;

Therefore, it is resolved and ordered, that Robert M. Sweitzer, as county treasurer and ex-officio county collector of Cook county, ought to be, and he is hereby removed from his said office.

The resolution was prepared by the state's attorney's office and was presented before the county board by Commissioner Kavanagh.

GILL, TREASURER ELECT, ENJOYS WIDE POPULARITY

20 Year Political Life Shows Clean Record.

Joseph L. Gill, county treasurer-elect, has as much personal popularity within the Chicago Democratic organization as any man among its leaders. Asked for the striking thing about him, his associates say that it is the apparently just universal liking toward him felt by those who know him.

They cite his record of twenty years in political life without a black mark, a record for clean living and honest dealing that, it is asserted, is not surpassed in Chicago's governmental history. It was because of this record, the party leaders say, that he was persuaded to step into the breach to offset what, among Democrats, is referred to as the Sweitzer tragedy.

Elected in 1930.

Gill was elected clerk of the Municipal court in 1930 for a six year term. Therefore he had one more year to serve there, with the prospect of reelection next year, when he was urged to take over the treasurer's office.

The other side of the picture was a short term in the county office with a possibility that his right to run for a full term in a special election next year might be successfully challenged in the courts.

The statutes prohibit a treasurer from succeeding himself, and, according to some lawyers, the late P. J. Carr, who served a short term and then a long term, might have been barred from the latter if the question had been taken to the court.

Mayor Kelly and some of the other leaders were anxious to restore public confidence by a nonpolitical choice in the selection of Sweitzer's successor. In the short time they had they found it imopssible to persuade an outstanding business man to desert his own affairs for what they had to offer. So they turned to Gill, whom they considered above reproach.

Gill is a native Chicagoan, born in Lake View within a short distance of where he now lives at 3240 Lake Shore drive. In 1924 he married Bertha Marie Fogarty, sister of Mrs. George E. Brennan, widow of the man who succeeded Roger Sullivan as the Democratic leader of Illinois.

Once in Risk Business.

After attending business college, he went into the insurance business, but in 1914 became chief clerk in the office of the county treasurer, the office of which he is now to take command. He was controler of the county forest preserve district from 1919 to 1926.

In the latter year he was elected state representative from the 31st district and served two terms in the house at Springfield. At the end of his second term, the report of the Legislative Voters' league said he had shown "marked courage and independence as well as independence in voting." It said further that he had given "high grade service during both his terms" and that he had "made a fine record."

Frohlich Slated for Clerk.

Richard Frohlich, now chief deputy clerk of the Municipal court, is slated to succeed his superior when the judges of the court receive Gill's resignation and fill the vacancy. Frohlich is Democratic committeeman of the Fifteenth ward and is considered well qualified to take over the office in which he has been second in command for four years.

SHIP WITH 146 ABOARD LEAKING; SENDS OUT SOS

Seattle, Wash., June 6.—(AP)—The steamship Cordova sent out an urgent call for help from Seymour narrows in British Columbia waters on the inland route to Alaska, coast guard headquarters here said tonight.

The guard headquarters said the ship had a broken tail shaft and was leaking. The coast guard cutter Redwing wirelessed it was dashing to the aid of the stricken ship.

A few minutes later a message was picked up by the Seattle harbor radio in which the captain reported the pumps were handling the intake of water successfully.

The Cordova left Seattle yesterday at 5 p. m. with 96 passengers aboard, mostly herring salting crews for southeastern Alaskan canneries. Many of the passengers were women. The Cordova carried a crew of about 50 officers and men.

MARSHALL FIELD & Company

SWEITZER GREAT INVESTOR IN BEST WATERED STOCKS

Friends Join Him Holding Long Row of Sacks.

Robert M. Sweitzer's now famous investment in coal bricks was but one of his many ventures into the field of corporation finance, it was learned yesterday. Most of these ventures turned out unhappily, not only for Mr. Sweitzer but for investors who, in a number of cases, have asserted that they were induced to buy securities by the appearance of his name as an officer or director of the concern.

The majority of the Sweitzer companies can be found today in that graveyard of corporations, the list of companies which have forfeited their charters. In no case, however, have there been charges of fraudulent promotion.

A Variety of Schemes.

Mr. Sweitzer had a wide taste in investments. At various time the former county clerk and ex-county treasurer sank his money, and sometimes that of friends or acquaintances, in the coal brick process, a race track, a patent monkey wrench, a group of coal and timber companies, a stock and bond house, and a proposed drug store chain.

Several residents of Blue Island and vicinity were found yesterday who still have painful memories of the patent monkey wrench. The concern which made it, the Hy-Speed Wrench company, was organized in 1919 with a capital stock of $40,000, which was increased later to $250,000.

A report to the secretary of state in 1920 showed that at that time Sweitzer had invested $9,450 in the company. Harry Rohrback of Blue Island, who invested $11,000 in the concern, said that he was informed that Sweitzer's eventual investment was $50,000. James Hackett, the Blue Island gambler who was last in the public eye as a kidnaping victim, is also reported to have invested $50,000.

Wrench Takes a Bad Turn.

The wrench made by the company was invented by Benjamin Hyman, the concern's president, who is reported to have died since. It worked perfectly in demonstrations, but failed to stand up in the hands of steam fitters and plumbers. The company had a factory on 48th street in Chicago. It was licensed to sell stock in Illinois and lost its charter in 1922 for failure to comply with the securities act. Hackett, according to report, sought to recover his losses by placing a lien on the factory building, only to discover that the corporation didn't own it.

Sweitzer was prominent in a group of six companies promoted by Philip Verplanck, who claimed to have been assistant federal coal administrator during the world war. The financial structure and inter-relations of these companies are somewhat hazy. Two of them, the American Standard corporation and American Utility Fuel company, were hold companies.

A Little Pyramiding.

The American Utility Fuel company owned the stock of the American Standard Timber corporation, American Standard Supply company, and American Utility Engineering company, and also owned the common stock of the American Bituminous Coal company.

Sweitzer was secretary of American Bituminous Coal company, and signed a $500,000 issue of bonds which it put out in 1927. The concern, which owned coal lands in Kentucky and Virginia, defaulted on its bonds in 1930. According to reports in La Salle street Sweitzer eventually became owner of 50 per cent of the stock of this concern.

He was listed as a director of the American Utility Fuel company in the circular of that concern offering $250,000 of its one year 6½ per cent gold notes in 1929, just a few weeks before the stock market crash. The circular announced that the money was to be used for purchase of American rights to the Bussey process for making coke and by-products from low grade coals.

Dies Before It Starts.

Attorney George Gannon, who was listed as chairman of the board of directors of the company at the time of the note issue, said that as he recalled the company was never able to erect the plant necessary for using the process.

Financial manuals show that all six of the Verplanck companies forfeited their Delaware charters in 1932, but Attorney I. Harvey Levinson of Chicago is reported to have undertaken a reorganization of the physical properties of the companies. He has refused to discuss this report, or to discuss stories that he is Sweitzer's representative in a number of corporation affairs.

Whether the coal brick process was involved in the affairs of the American Bituminous Coal company is doubtful. According to what scanty information is available, the corporation owning this patent for making fuel bricks from coal dust was owned by the United States Fuel and Utility company.

The Bible Salesman Tieup.

Several days ago was recounted Sweitzer's tale of how he invested $200,000 from the tax redemption fund with Arthur Roberts, a former Evanston Bible salesman, and how Roberts died a few months ago and two of the promoter's widows appeared to tie up the estate.

Five days before the stock market crash of 1929 Sweitzer's name appeared as a director on the application of the Midwest Bond and Share company, 111 West Monroe street, for registration under the Illinois securities act. Another of those listed on the application was Harry L. Drake, 181 Lake Shore drive.

It could not be determined last night whether this was the same Harry L. Drake who was arrested in 1933 on an extradition warant from North Caroina, charging him with operating as a loan shark in that state. Those proceedings were dropped later.

The Midwest Bond and Share company went into receivership in 1931, and an audit showed that the company owed Sweitzer $12,000. According to Attorney Howard H. McCormick, who organized the company, Sweitzer was repaid this money later.

Chemicals and Rubber Checks.

Another of McCormick's promotions, in which Sweitzer appeared as a director, was Drug Craft, Inc. Both Drug Craft and Midwest Bond sold stock in Chicago. Drug Craft seems to have been a scheme to form a chain of independent druggists, operating through a central purchasing agency, but apparently the plan was never brought to fruition.

Sweitzer's share in the promotion of the Illinois Jocky club, which built Washington Park racetrack in 1926, is well known. While this concern never was a money maker, the investors recovered 50 per cent or more of their money when the track was reorganized and sold. It was at Washington Park that the famous $89,000 rubber check was given to Col. E. R. Bradley, whose horse won the first revival of the American Derby. Sweitzer made the check good.

A Special Form of Promotion.

Among Sweitzer promotions might be listed his campaign funds. He never joined with the party organization in raising campaign funds, but solicited his own. Fellow politicians, envious, perhaps, have been known to assert that "Bob Sweitzer got rich running for public office."

Sweitzer appeared sometimes as the chairman of various drives for charity funds. The clerk for a judge sitting in Chicago courts told recently a story of one of these fund promotions. Shortly before the election last fall this clerk received complaints from lawyers practicing in the court that they had received telephone calls from solicitors who announced that they "were calling for Judge So-and-So," and asked how large a contribution they should put the lawyer down for. Sweitzer was treasurer of the fund.

Cools the "Boiler Room."

The clerk got two policemen friends and found the office from which the calls were made. Entering the place, he found a long bank of telephones with solicitors hard at work making calls—a "boiler room" in the parlance of high pressure promotion.

"I threatened to start throwing phones out the window if they didn't stop using the judge's name," said the clerk. "After that we didn't have any more complaints."

SWEITZER SURRENDERS AFTER SIEGE

Sweitzer, a Roger Sullivan Protege, Great Vote Getter

From the time that Roger Sullivan, old time Democratic boss of Illinois, first brought Robert M. Sweitzer into political life, "Genial Bob" maintained his reputation as one of the greatest vote getters in the ranks of his party.

Although it was the influence of Sullivan, to whom Sweitzer was distantly related by marriage, which gave him his start, "Bob's" personal popularity, his wide acquaintance among the sporting gentry and his stock appeal to the voters of "How I can best serve you," always made him a strong candidate.

In the election last November, when he opposed James A. Kearns for county treasurer, Sweitzer polled 838,202 votes, leading every candidate on the regular Democratic county ticket except County Judge Edmund J. Jarecki.

Was Born in Chicago.

Sweitzer was born in Chicago on May 10, 1868, and early in his mature life was employed by John V. Farwell & Co., dry goods wholesalers, with whom he remained for many years until 1910, when Sullivan's influence gained him his first political nomination.

He was elected county clerk by a wide margin. In 1915 he defeated Carter H. Harrison, then mayor, for the Democratic nomination, but was defeated in the election. He was again his party's choice for mayor in 1919, and was again defeated.

However, his popularity among the voters suffered little, as witnessed by his regular reëlection as county clerk in 1914, 1918, 1922, 1926, and 1930, always by large pluralities.

Hoyne Charged Deceit.

Although little was known by most people of his early life, this "mystery" was referred to but once, when he was campaigning as the Democratic nominee for mayor in 1919.

Maclay Hoyne, an independent candidate for the same office, charged that Sweitzer used unfair tactics in appealing to the foreign born voters. Hoyne charged that the name "Sweitzer" was used to appeal to the German voters; but that Sweitzer allowed it to be noised abroad among other foreign born groups antagonistic to the Germans that his father was an Irishman, whose real name was "Roche."

Sweitzer himself took no notice of the allegations, other than to maintain that his father was Martin John Sweitzer, a native of Baden, Germany. It developed that the elder Sweitzer had used the name "Roche" while on the stage.

MOTOR LAUNCHES VEX YACHTS AND SPUTTER IN COURT

Charged with disturbing the slumbers of yachtsmen who have craft moored around the Navy pier, Nelson St. Pete, 63 years old, 2319 Osgood street, and Sam Brown, 59 years old, 1138 Winona avenue, were arraigned before Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden yesterday.

The two make a living by taking early morning fishermen from the pier to adjacent breakwaters in their motor launches. The yachtsmen complain that the back firing motors end their sleep.

Judge Padden continued the case to Monday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, June 6.—John Barrymore, screen and stage actor, suddenly abandoned the guests aboard his palatial yacht Infanta here today and left by plane en route to New York to confer with attorneys on the divorce suit filed in Los Angeles by the former Dolores Costello, his estranged wife.

"Mrs. Barrymore certainly has her nerve," Barrymore said. "If she intends to deprive me of all funds I will demand that my attorneys fight the case to a finish."

The interview ended abruptly when the actor directed a punch at a reporter who asked if he intended to leave his yacht guests "stranded."

In her suit Miss Costello asked custody of their two children, $1,000 a month for their care and $2,000 a month for herself. Barrymore said that four years ago he made a final settlement of $85,000 on her.

CLERK ZINTAK REPORTS 'VEST POCKET' FUND

Frank V. Zintak, clerk of the Superior court, is another of the county officials who has a "vest pocket" fund that he would be glad to get rid of. He made this announcement yesterday before the county board had ousted County Treasurer Robert M. Sweitzer after he again delayed payment of the $414,129 shortage in the tax redemption fund that developed while he was county clerk.

Zintak's fund consists of $118,545. Of this, $117,294 is money paid to the court clerk by order of the Superior judges and held for successful litigants, and $1,251 represents interest on the fund. Of the larger total, $4,829 has lain unclaimed for more than 7 years and thus, under the law, may be turned over to the county operating fund by court order.

"This money," Zintak said, "requires extra work for my office. I am in favor of the centralization of all such 'vest pocket' funds. I believe that legislation should be enacted to make the county treasurer custodian of all such trust funds."

ASK CORPORATE FUND TAX BOOST FOR PRESERVES

Corporate [operating] fund tax rates for the Forest preserve and the Brookfield zoo must be increased or their programs must be curtailed, members of the public service committee of the Forest preserve board were told yesterday.

Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the Forest preserves, said that if present standards are to be maintained, the 1935 corporate levy for the Forest preserve must be increased from 1½ cents to 2¼ cents for each $100 assessed valuation, and the zoo levy to ¾ of a cent from ½ a cent.

The increased Forest preserve rate would produce an estimated revenue of $540,000 as against $381,000 under the present rate, and the new zoo rate would bring in $175,000 as against $125,000 under the present rate, the committee members were told.

Several members of the committee protested against any increase in taxation. It was pointed out to them that the proposals would not actually mean an increase. The zoo's 1.5 cent rate dropped Jan. 1 to a half cent.

STATE'S CAPITAL READY TO HOUSE G. O. P. PILGRIMS

Springfield Also Acts to Handle Trafic.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 6.—[Special.]—Housing and trafic, the mechanics of the conclave, occupied the attention today of the groups making ready for the midwest Grass Roots roundup of Republicans here next Monday and Tuesday, when 20,000 visitors are expected to swarm into Springfield.

First off, the state Democrats, extending hospitality to the pilgrimage to the shrine of Lincoln, "shrine of mankind," agreed to keep the legislature out of the capitol on Monday, thus releasing some 250 hotel beds usually used by lawmakers and lobbyists, for pilgrims on Monday night.

Legislature Out of Way.

The assembly had been talking of a Monday session, but that was called off. Justus Johnson, Republican state chairman, took Harrison Spangler, Iowa Republican national committeeman and head of the nine prairie state G. O. P. group, and John D. M. Hamilton, Kansas national committeeman and counsel of the G. O. P. national committee, over to talk with Democratic Speaker John M. Devine. They spoke with Gov. Henry Horner last night and he promised to be helpful. Hamilton, who was three times speaker of the Kansas house, swapped experiences with Devine for half an hour today.

It was agreed that the assembly would not hold a real session until 4 p. m. Tuesday.

With a possible attendance of 20,000 estimated by the arrangements committee, attention was centered on trafic arrangements. It is figured that about 15,000 delegates, observers, alternates and others may travel by automobile, and a local transit committee took steps to safeguard against blockades on the roads.

Based on State Fairs.

Springfield's local transit system has been based on the need of taking care of the crowds which attend the state fair. The local authorities say their arrangements are ample. The city is one of the hubs of the hard road system.

Two federal routes and four state routes pass through the capital, giving 12 gateways on concrete surface. During state fairs, a local traffic up to 80,000 persons has been handled. On peak days 55,000 outsiders have come to Springfield, the bulk of them in automobiles. When the new Lincoln tomb was dedicated, it was estimated 30,000 were here from outside.

To Avoid Trafic Jams.

Up to 40,000 incoming automobiles have been handled in a day's trafic during state fairs, according to the local trafic committee. That group says the advent of the 20,000 or more Grass Rooters will present no unusual difficulty in the handling of cars. The only necessity, it is said, will be for delegates, who travel in their own cars, to allow an extra fifteen or twenty minutes to get to the fair grounds, and to make due allowances for slowing down of trafic on the entrance highways.

Highway and local police are to be assigned to handle trafic as at state fairs. City Attorney Hugh J. Dobbs is in charge of trafic. Mr. Dobbs has his law office in the same building in which Lincoln once had his offices. Mr. Dobbs' consulting room was once occupied by the State Supreme court—one of the Lincoln shrines.

How to Prevent Delays.

Mr. Dobbs issued advice to delegates and visitors coming in from the south that they may avoid the congested city area by following the Springfield Belt Line to the fairgrounds, which was put in for that purpose. There are about six alternate ways to reach the fair grounds from south or east on through streets, and four through streets from the west.

Coming from the north the highway passes the fairgrounds. Grade crossings have been eliminated on all sides where they have been considered dangerous. The local committee says it will handle the Grass Root trafic as easily as Chicago and its police handled trafic at A Century of Progress. Bus lines and railroad shuttle trains are to be run here as during state fairs.

Most of the visitors are expected to come in Sunday evening, although there will be a large advance guard. A local housing committee has been working for weeks arranging accommodations. This city's 1,500 hotel rooms are taken long in advance, and about 5,500 rooms in private homes have been made available.

The Springfield committee announced a list of cities, within 60 miles or less, with hotel accommodations for 1,725 persons. The cities, hotels and their capacities are:

LINCOLN—[30 miles]—Commercial, 60; Lincoln, 60.

DECATUR—[40 miles]—St. Nick, 200; Orlando, 250; St. James, 90; Kraft, 90.

TAYLORVILLE—[30 miles]—Antlers, 60; Colonial, 20.

BEARDSTOWN—[45 miles]—Park, 65; Myers, 45; Central, 30.

A short distance further out are Peoria and Pekin, Jerseyville, Carrollton and East St. Louis.

Back to Lincoln Ideals.

A tentative program, subject to change, was mapped out today for Monday, the first day of the Grass Roots' conclave. The philosophy of Lincoln as against the philosophy of President Roosevelt and the New Deal will be the dominant note.

Where in 1860, after Lincoln was elected as first Republican President, the slogan became "Save the union," one theme of the Grass Rooters' will be "Save state sovereignty from dictatorship and centralization."

As curtain raiser for the round up will be the pilgrimage on Sunday to the Lincoln shrine at New Salem where Lincoln served as surveyor and postmaster. That trip is to be under the auspices of the Young Republican organization, and is expected to attract a multitude. At 5 o'clock or thereabouts, according to the tentative program, the ceremonials will start. C. Wayland [Curley] Brooks is tentatively set for the chief oration. A vesper service at which choral groups will sing will be a feature. The drawing of inspiration from the lowly frontier setting from which Lincoln emerged will be Sunday's theme.

It is planned to open the Grass Roots conference Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the Coliseum at the state fair ground. Mr. Spangler, as head of the group from the nine participating states is to call it to order. His speech will occupy about fifteen minutes.

Lowden as Keynoter.

After that Frank O. Lowden, former governor and former candidate for the G. O. P. presidential nomination in 1920 and 1928, who refused the vice presidential nomination in 1924, will deliver the principal address. He is to sound the note of Americanism as unanimously upheld by the United States Supreme court in its recent decisions as against Fasicism and dictatorship under the New Deal policies.

Mr. Lowden will speak some time before noon, depending on the radio broadcast schedule. Edward Hayes of Decatur, former national commander of the American Legion, is expected to speak on "Inroads Upon Americanism by Subversive Forces" at the same session.

From 1:30 to 2:30 a ceremonial is to be held at the Lincoln tomb. The speaker will be Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri and secretary of agriculture under President Hoover. He is to speak about twenty-five minutes, starting possibly at 2 o'clock. At 8 o'clock a night session will be held. The permanent chairman will probably be John Hamilton of Kansas, who has prepared an indictment of the New Deal. His speech may start about 8:15.

The resolutions committee is expected to present at this night session the first part of its resolutions, which will be an inventory of the New Deal. Its constructive recommendations will be placed before the delegates on Tuesday, the program for that day not yet being worked out.

RACINE GIVEN 1-10 YEAR SENTENCE IN BOND THEFT CASE

George P. Racine, 53 years old, former president of the Franklin Mutual Automobile Insurance company, was found guilty yesterday of receiving stolen property and sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg of the Criminal court. Racine, who lived at 561 Winnetka avenue, Winnetka, had waived a jury trial and was found guilty by the court.

Racine was charged with having handled the $9,000 in stocks and bonds taken from Patrick J. Higgins, 3000 West Polk street, in a robbery in Higgins' home on Dec. 2, 1932. The bandits, who gained entrance by representing themselves as prohibition agents, also took $2,000 in cash.

A jury in the Criminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller found Racine guilty last April of the same crime, but this verdict was set aside because of error in the record and he was granted a new trial.

GIRL, 17, KILLED, FOUR INJURED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Car Struck at Spalding, Near Elgin.

A 17 year old girl was instantly killed and four other persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, when their automobile was struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad passenger train at Spalding, 4 miles southeast of Elgin, last night.

The dead girl was Janet Rodger, 615 North 2d avenue, Maywood, daughter of W. Fred Rodger, Chicago insurance broker with offices in the Insurance Exchange building.

Car Driven by Miss Rodger.

Cahill's injuries may prove fatal, according to doctors at St. Joseph's hospital in Elgin. The others were less seriously hurt. The automobile, driven by Miss Rodger and owned by her father, was going to the station at Spalding, where the Elgin young people were to take a train to Elgin.

At a crossing near the station Miss Rodger halted the car to allow an eastbound freight train to pass. As the last car cleared the crossing, she drove directly into the path of the west bound passenger train.

The automobile was carried some 300 feet down the track and was demolished. Police learned that Miss Rodger's mother had been killed in an automobile accident six years ago.

A man and a woman were killed yesterday when two cars collided at South Cicero avenue and the Lincoln highway in Matteson.

The dead: John Avos, 45 years old, 4830 Belle Plaine avenue, and Mrs. Emma Bean, his mother-in-law, 63 years old, 595 Industrial avenue, Kankakee. Avos died instantly. Mrs. Bean died a short time later at St. James hospital, Chicago Heights.

The injured are: William Bean, 68 years old, husband of the dead woman; Mrs. Ruth Avos, 44 years old, wife of the dead man; Richard R. Collins, 28 years old, Des Moines, Ia., driver of the other car, and his wife, Mary. Bean and Mrs. Avos are in a serious condition at St. James hospital.

Say Driver Failed to Stop.

Witnesses told police that Bean, traveling south in Cicero avenue, drove through a stop sign. Both automobiles were demolished. Rollins is assistant cashier of the Bankers Trust company in Des Moines.

Avos' and Mrs. Bean's deaths and one other increased to 389 the number of trafic fatalities in Cook county since Jan. 1. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 315 had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 6,508 had been injured. The other victim yesterday:

Justin Semintis, 30 years old, 7115 Honroe street. Died in St. Elizabeth hospital of injuries incurred yesterday when he was struck at Western and Wabansia avenues by an automobile driven by Edward Masa, 17 years old, 219 South St. Louis avenue.

Four Young People in Crash.

Two boys and two girls narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding south in Lake Shore drive crashed against a concrete post in a safety island at Wrightwood avenue, and was wrecked.

The car was driven by Roy Evensen, 17 years old, 1903 North Mozart street, and other occupants were May Waring, 15 years old, 1951 Nebraska avenue; Mildred Carlson, 15, of 2015 Nebraska avenue, and Victor Pacek, 15, of 1913 North Mozart street. Miss Waring suffered a broken nose and severe cuts. She was taken to the Columbus Memorial hospital.

Sues Riding School Owner Over Fall from a Horse

Marshall Weiss, 28 years old, 1702 Carmen avenue, filed a suit in the Superior court yesterday for $50,000 damages against Lyle Van Patter, owner of the Flying "VF" Riding academy, 2434 Berwyn avenue, because of injuries he allegedly received last May when the horse he was riding stumbled and threw him on a bridle path of the academy. Weiss is a salesman.

GIRL'S SUITOR SHOT TO DEATH; SHE CONFESSES

Stones House, Fires as Married Man Emerges.

Ida Joli, 16 years old, of 2150 De Kalb street, was held for questioning at the Marquette police station last night after she confessed she had shot and killed Cesar Scaglione, 45 years old, of 2029 Kendall street.

Scaglione's wife, Mary, told police that about 9 p. m. her husband was painting an upstairs rear room in their house, while she and a daughter, Carmillo, 14 years old, watched. Suddenly they heard a noise of stones being thrown against the window.

Scaglione ran downstairs and out the rear door to investigate. Mrs. Scaglione heard shots. Running out, she found her husband lying in the alley, Miss Joli standing over him with a pistol in her hand.

The girl fled, but was caught a few blocks away. At the station she declared she had shot Scaglione "for revenge." According to her story she had been friendly with Scaglione for some time, and recently her mother found out about it.

Visits to juvenile authorities and social service workers followed, and the girl said she decided to shoot Scaglione "because he caused me trouble, grief and scandal."

WANDERS 4 DAYS AFTER INJURIES IN AUTO CRASH

After wandering aimlessly for four days, John Thomas Foley, 24 years old, 811 Ashland avenue, Wilmette, who was injured in an automobile accident early Sunday, returned to his home yesterday.

Police of the entire north shore had been asked to seek Foley, former University of Illinois football player and swimmer, after his automobile was found wrecked against a pole at Grove street and Woodlawn avenue, Glencoe. The help was asked by his father, C. J. Foley, president of a paper company bearing his name at 228 North La Salle street.

"I don't know how the accident happened," young Foley said upon his return with two black eyes and a cut on his forehead. "When I returned to my senses I was in Milwaukee. I remember boarding a bus."

G. O. P. BOOKLET LISTS ROOSEVELT CHANGE OF MIND

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(AP)—The Republican national committee tonight issued a booklet listing, without comment, assertions made by President Roosevelt as governor of New York generally opposing federal intrusion upon the rights of the states.

In one of the first political moves of the kind since last fall's campaign, it left the clear inference that the President had altered his views in calling for a nation-wide decision on whether the national government should have the authority which it sought to exercise in NRA.

The excerpts from Roosevelt speeches the committee summed up on the title page with:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt
"As governor
"Warned against:
"—Federal control by 'master minds.'
"—Breaking down powers of states.
"—Federal fixing of local utility rates.
"—Federal interference with commerce between states.
"—Federal government running your life and mine.

ORDER L-SURFACE RIDERS' TRANSFER SYSTEM TODAY

Action by Commission to End Long Fight.

The Illinois commerce commission, at a meeting today, will pass an order establishing a riders' transfer system between the Chicago Surface Lines and the elevated railroads, Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, announced last night.

Notice of the order will be served on the affected companies immediately, and they will be required to begin operation of the transfer system within 60 days. The order will be for one year, with provision for its continuance and the later inclusion of the bus lines, if the system proves successful.

Decision Ends Long Fight.

Mr. Lindheimer's announcement culminates a fight which began in April, 1934, with the filing of petition for the commission order by the city. Last winter Mayor Kelly demanded speedy action on the transfer in a letter to Mr. Lindheimer and he was promised a decision as rapidly as possible. The final details were arranged at a meeting of the commission in Springfield. The order has been informally approved by all members of the commission and is in completed legal form, Mr. Lindheimer said.

The order will permit the transfer of passengers from the elevated lines at the usual 10 cent fare. Surface line fares will remain at 7 cents, the rider transferring to the elevated lines paying 3 cents for this privilege.

Surveys by the trafic engineers on the commission's staf show that nearly two million Chicagoans will be brought an average of eight minutes nearer the loop as a result of the order, Mr. Lindheimer said.

Designate 51 Transfer Points.

Fifty-one stations on the elevated lines have been designated as transfer stations in the order. In addition the companies will be permitted to outline 51 transfer zones, within which transfers must originate, thus assuring that there will be no abuse of the privilege.

The companies will also be permitted to devise their own methods for sharing transfer receipts and issuing tickets. Details of these plans must be filed with the commission within 30 days.

"We believe this order is important not only because it will speed up Chicago transportation, but because it is a step toward synchronizing two competing companies." Mr. Lindheimer said. "I am confident that the order will stand the review of the courts, and that it will eliminate wasteful and needless competition.

Urges Unified Transit System.

The city council was urged yesterday to take action to force a unification of the city's surface and elevated transportation systems in a resolution presented at the regular meeting by Ald. John A. Massen [48th].

Massen's resolution proposed that the city intervene in the reorganization proceedings under section 77b of the bankruptcy act now pending in the federal courts, and offer a plan to reorganize and unify the transportation companies affected.

"Under the bankruptcy act two-thirds of the stockholders could approve unification and override a small but unruly minority which has prevented such action in the past," Ald. Massen said. The resolution was referred to the committee on local transportation.

Kidnap 2 Aboard Truck and Seize $3,000 Tobacco Load

Four armed men forced a truck belonging to David S. Schaffner, wholesale tobacco merchant at 3860 West Madison street, to the curb at Madison street and Talman avenue yesterday and after kidnaping the driver and his helper drove away with the truck and its cargo of cigarets valued at $3,000. Arthur Shields, 4259 Congress street, the driver, and Charles Sikolis, 739 North Troy street, the truck helper, were placed in an automobile with two of the bandits and were released an hour later at Congress street and Lockwood avenue.

FORMER DEPUTY CORONER FREED IN BRIBE TRIAL

After three hours' deliberation a jury last evening in Judge William V. Brothers' Criminal court returned a verdict of acquittal for Emil Selten, a former deputy coroner, who was on trial charged with soliciting a bribe. Selten, also a former bank official, was charged with asking a $10 bribe in a telephone conversation with Attorney William G. Franck.

Attornel Franck, who represented Dr. Owen Thomas, a dentist, at an inquest over the body of Charles Hensle, 8057 Niles Center road, was practically the only state witness. The defendant, under questioning of Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short, denied the charges.

The attorney charged that Selten offered to wind up the inquest at once and save Dr. Thomas from unpleasant publicity if he were paid $10.

ALDERMAN TALKS SELF RIGHT INTO A DEVIL OF A FIX

Ald. William Faller of Waukegan lunched yesterday in a café with Mayor Mancel Talcott. Between forksful of fried potatoes, Ald. Faller asserted:

"This 'fixing' of trafic cases has to be stopped. No official of any kind should be a party to the 'fixing' of any ticket, no matter how trivial the offense."

Mayor Talcott agreed heartily, and the two walked out to Ald. Faller's car. The mayor stopped and pointed.

"Now is a good time to begin," he suggested.

Ald. Faller looked. His car had been ticketed for parking in a restricted parking zone, and Ald. Faller has a chance to practice his precepts today before Police Magistrate Clarence Brown.

HUNT FOR HOUSE WHERE KIDNAPED BOY WAS HIDDEN

Tacoma Victim Searches with U. S. Agents.

Tacoma, Wash., June 6.—(AP)—New steps by George Weyerhaeuser to aid authorities in tracking down his $200,000 kidnapers were disclosed tonight when federal authorities released descriptions the 9 year old boy had given them of the house where he was held.

The boy described the place as a "gray house with two gables," but the agents said he was not sure whether it was a two-story structure or one of the bungalow type.

Its location still is unknown to the army of searchers who have searched the wooded districts surrounding Issaquah near where the boy was released early last Saturday after $200,000 ransom had been paid for his freedom.

Recall Letter Mailer.

Two Tacoma postal workers believe they can identify the man who mailed the ransom note, it was learned tonight. Floyd E. Baker, one of the employés, told newspaper men that the day of the kidnaping he sold a special delivery stamp to a man who placed it on an envelope marked "Urgent-Urgent."

Baker would not describe the man in detail, saying he had been ordered not to talk by justice department agents, but it was known he gave such information to the federal authorities. Fred P. Schaller, the other postal employé, saw the man when he walked to his window, next to Baker's where the mailing slots are located.

Silent About Suspect.

A government spokesman declined to reveal whether his men had Jack Bailey, asserted former Tacoma bootlegger. The report was that Bailey was being questioned.

Little George, who was taken in search of the house yesterday by federal agents, said he believed he would recognize the place if he saw it again.

Agents in charge of the manhunt said officers from the King county sherif's office in Seattle were searching possible locations of the house and that the boy would be taken to view those where he might have been held.

Find Washington Auto Tags.

Coldwater, Mich., June 6.—(AP)—A discarded set of Washington state automobile license plates, found along federal highway No. 112 here early today, were examined by department of justice agents in Detroit tonight, with the possibility in view they might provide fresh clues to the kidnapers' trail in the George Weyerhaeuser case at Tacoma, Wash.

Pleads Not Guilty.

Edwardsville, Ill., June 6.—[Special.]—Walter ["Irish"] O'Malley smilingly pleaded not guilty to charges of attempted extortion and the kidnaping of August Luer, aged Alton banker, when he appeared before Circuit Judge D. H. Mudgshere today.

$286,000 PAID TO LIBERATE CUBAN KIDNAP VICTIM

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, June 6.—At an unrevealed place five miles from Havana a messenger tonight paid $286,000 ransom money to the kidnapers of Antonio San Miguel, 78 years old, multi-millionaire railroad operator and former senator. The financier and four servants seized with him were not immediately released.

The kidnaping occurred at 6 o'clock last night a block from San Miguel's villa at Arroyo Apolo, three miles south of Havana, by five men who posed as mango peddlers and three others in an automobile which was driven beside the mango cart to block the road.

The police tonight declared they had found the kidnapers' car abandoned at Hoyo-Colorado, 15 miles east of Havana. It had a punctured tire and in the car were found five army officers' uniforms. Earlier in the day police arrested Arturo Mujico, who they said sold the mango cart to the kidnapers. Seized with San Miguel were Modesto Iglesias, bodyguard; Constantino Prieto, chauffeur; José Franco, gardener, and Simon Martija Arleta, valet. Martija was released this morning near President Carlos Mendieta's home in Vedado suburb with the ransom demand which he carried to San Miguel's attorney.

There was delay in obtaining the money as demanded in United States currency—$118,000 in $100 bills, $118,000 in $50 bills, and $50,000 in $1,000 bills. Martija returned with the packages to an appointed place, but was 20 minutes late. The kidnapers failed to appear.

At 5 p. m. Martija received a telephone call at San Miguel's home from the kidnapers who designated a new meeting place where the ransom was paid. They used a password for identification since Martija's eyes had been bandaged while he was a captive.

KELLY HANDBOOK BILL POSTPONED; SUPPORT LACKED

Charge Chicago Gambling Is Protected.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 6.—[Special.]—Where is it proper for citizens to lay bets on the horses? was the question before the house of representatives today. Temporarily the answer was, "Only at the tracks," members failing to approve Mayor Kelly's bill legalizing handbooks. Needing seventy-seven votes, the measure obtained only fifty-five, whereupon the sponsor, John M. Bolton [Dem., Chicago], postponed consideration.

Sprightly debate accompanied the incident, including the charge by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago] that "proper arrangements" reputedly have protected gambling in the city. Clinton Searle [Rep., Rock Island] added to the interest by hinting that some sort of disaster might befall the bill abolishing ticket "scalping," which passed the house two days ago and now reposes in the senate committee on license and miscellany.

Assails Illinois Racing.

In the same swift pace came the assertion of Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Libertyville] that "there is something rotten in racing in Illinois." Lyons has a resolution he claimed has been "buried" in the executive committee which calls for a thorough investigation of "gambling and wagering" on the tracks—and in the entire state, as well—by a committee of five house members.

Lyons shouted figures to show that Illinois gets much less "take" from the tracks than other states which have lower percentages.

And to top it all, the session was featured by the fast, maiden remarks of a first term wit, Arthur J. [Prince Arthur] Quinn [Dem., Chicago]. Quinn entered into a tilt with Schnackenberg which gave everybody a good laugh.

"Newsboys Taking Bets."

Bolton began the session by declaring that "every newsboy in Chicago has been taking bets" and that the whole business should be regulated.

"Mayor Kelly," he said, "is much interested in this bill. He feels that you can't stop people from betting on the horses. It is far better to license and regulate the handbooks than to let them operate secretly as they do now."

Bolton explained that the bill provides that 50 per cent of the revenue cities would get from licensing would go into the revenue fund and the remainder to the general revenue fund.

This brought Schnackenberg to his feet.

"Crime in Schools' Name."

"Many crimes are committed in the name of the schools," he said. "I agree with Mr. Bolton that there are handbooks all over Chicago operating in open violation of the law, but the matter before us is not merely one of revenues; it involves a broad social question. This bill raises the challenge of whether we shall surrender to lawlessness or stamp it out.

"There are 7,000 police in Chicago," Schnackenberg continued. "Every time we have a new captain on the police gambling squad the handbooks are closed. They remain closed for a few days until the proper arrangements are made. Then they reopen.

"I asked a policeman in South Chicago the other day where I could place a bet on a horse. 'There's not a place open,' he told me. Just at that moment two women brushed between us to get into a place where they could put some of their husbands' hard-earned money on a horse.

"Lose in the End."

"In the end you lose, of course; you can't beat the game. We even learn that on the slot machines here in Sangamon county. This bill would put the legal stamp of approval on gambling. Gambling is instinctive, but what a thing to do—legalize it in the name of the schools!"

"You talk about proper arrangements," interjected George A. Fitzgerald. "If this bill passes, wouldn't it stop that sort of 'arrangements'?"

"If gambling can be stopped for five days it can be stopped for 365 days," Schnackenberg replied.

"Gambling never has been stopped," Bolton declared.

Didn't Vote First Time.

"On the first bill I didn't vote," Schnackenberg answered, "but later on——"

"Ah, 'later on'?" Quinn interrupted.

"I understand that and so do you. It has been hard to get on to your technique, but now I think I have got your hole card—'later on.'"

"There's no pussyfooting about me and no 'later on.' I am an open book. Tell me, what is the difference between gambling in a broker's office and placing bets with a bookmaker?"

"I've been in the former, but I understand all the latter are in your district," Schnackenberg replied.

"You are wrong," Quinn retorted. "There is not a place running in my district."

Votes Are Explained.

Roll call began but was interrupted by frequent explanations of votes.

"There's something rotten about gambling in Illinois," declared Lyons. "Here's some figures: In Maryland, the home of racing, the state gets a 6 per cent 'take.' In 1934, twelve million dollars were bet in Maryland and the state got $573,000. In Florida, with a 7 per cent 'take,' twenty-seven millions were bet and the state got $867,000. But here in Illinois, where the state gets 6⅛ per cent, thirty-two millions were bet and the state got only $600,000. Mr. Speaker, I serve notice that I will ask to have my gambling investigation resolution taken from the executive committee and acted upon."

At the end of the roll call, many members had not voted, so Bolton postponed consideration, which leaves the bill in a position to be called again next week.

Bus Company Is Ordered to Continue Beach Line

The Chicago Motor Coach company was ordered by the Illinois commerce commission yesterday to continue serving the Montrose-Wilson bathing beach with its buses during the summer. The petition of the Rapid Transit company for permission to provide identical bus service is still pending, as is a request of the Chicago Surface Lines that it be allowed to give similar service. Action still remains to be taken also on a proposal of the motor coach company to arrange with the Rapid Transit company for a mutual transfer service covering the beach transportation service.

WAGE GAMBLING RAIDS IN COOK, KANE COUNTIES

Eight persons were arrested yesterday in two gambling raids conducted by county highway police of the Willow Springs station under the command of Lieut. Fred Mulhausen. At 2131 South Cicero avenue, James Betinus was seized as keeper. Four patrons were also taken into custody. Ely Azrech was booked as keeper of the other place, 10 Broadway, Melrose Park, where he and two patrons were arrested.

Sixty slot machines were seized last night by deputies under Sherif Albert J. Kampmeyer of Kane county in a series of raids on taverns and roadhouses throughout the countryside between Aurora, Elgin, and Geneva. No arrests were made, however.

The gambling devices will be turned over to the state's attorney's office for evidence in the event the prosecutor wishes to take action.

Sherif Kampmeyer said the raids were in line with instructions given him recently by the Kane county grand jury which indicted his brother and son-in-law for accepting bribes, presumably for the protection of gambling places.

The brother, Irvin, was sentenced to three months on the prison farm at Vandalia and the son-in-law, Henry Prehm, was fined $300. Both had been deputy sherifs under Kampmeyer.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Benjamin Taman was erroneously reported in an item yesterday as the partner of Elliott Wisbrod, armored vest manufacturer and owner of a sport goods store at 716 West Madison street. Taman formerly owned another sport goods store, but now is in the discount and finance business at 105 North Clark street.

WOMAN DOCTOR'S NERVE BAFFLES ARMED ROBBER

Dr. Edith Potter, research worker at the Billings hospital, had just entered her automobile, parked in front of 60 East Elm street, last night when a youth appeared beside the machine and said:

"This is a holdup!"

Dr. Potter perceived he was holding his right arm under his left, as though concealing a weapon. Reaching calmly out, she seized his right arm and pulled it forward, saying:

"I can't believe you mean it."

A weapon came into view, but the young bandit was so bewildered at the unorthodox conduct that he stood staring. Just then a man rode slowly by on a bicycle, eying the scene.

150 MILLION U. S. FUNDS FOR CITY, MAYOR PREDICTS

Returns from Washington and Pushes Program.

The City of Chicago will receive $150,000,000 from the federal government in loans and grants for a vast public works program to be started this summer, Mayor Kelly announced yesterday on his return from Washington, D. C. Of this amount $48,000,000 is expected to be in the form of loans, and $102,000,000 in outright grants, the mayor said.

Mayor Kelly spent two days in Washington, conferring with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Frank Walker, who is in charge of allotment of the government's $4,880,000,000 public works fund, and Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator. He reported a friendly reception of Chicago requests in all quarters.

Will Work with Council.

Immediately after his arrival here the mayor informed the city council at its meeting that he would work with the council on the allocation of the $150,000,000 to projects which will meet the approval of the federal government.

He then communicated with Chicago representatives in the state legislature, urging speedy passage of bills which will provide the city with collateral to qualify for the $48,000,000 loan. City employés were instructed to speed up preparation of maps, plats, and data on the projects which will be presented to the government for final allocation of funds.

"I made a blanket application for things Chicago needs," the mayor told the council. "We won't get everything we want, but we'll get just and considerate treatment from Washington.

Projects Must Provide Jobs.

"Our first job is to get together to decide which projects will meet the approval of the citizens of Chicago and the government. They must be projects which will afford work for all possible employables.

"The city will be able to meet the government's loan requirements. Bills now in the legislature have or will create a Fair authority, an airport authority, and a fire department authority with the right to issue bonds.

"In addition the city will be enabled by pending legislation to use as collateral $3,000,000 of motor fuel tax revenue now on hand and $3,000,000 expected next year. By pledging various city income we can qualify for the loan.

Favors "Necessary Things."

"We want necessary, essential things for the city and that's what the government favors. An engineer runs his base line and then begins working from that point. That's what I have done. We now have a general allocation and can turn our attention to the individual projects."

The mayor revised two points of a proposed works program during his Washington conversations, he said. The first was the elimination of a plea for funds to build three water filtration plants. These would cost $60,000,000, it has been estimated. The second change was the abandonment of a proposed $7,000,000 convention hall to be built in Burnham park.

"I found that the city can finance its own filtration plants with water certificates, and I did not want to use federal funds for the purpose," the mayor explained. "I felt also that the city could delay its convention hall project."

Largest Share for Repairs.

The largest share of the work relief projects will be street repairs, sewer rehabilitation, and similar projects, which will provide a maximum return to labor, Mayor Kelly said.

As a basis for the $150,000,000 allocation, the government officials estimated the number of Chicago's needy employables at 120,000 and fixed a sum of $1,150 as the amount each city should receive per employable on relief. "Such a system insures the just distribution of funds," the mayor declared.

GOERING AND BRIDE FLY TO SERBIA WITH TOY TRAIN FOR KING

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, June 6.—(AP)—Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German air minister, and his actress bride, arrived by airplane today for a visit to Jugo-Slavia and supervised solicitously the unloading of a large parcel.

Gen. Goering's party came in three planes. Representatives of the boy king met the party at the airport. Goering is to meet Premier Yevtich, Regent Prince Paul, and Queen Marie tomorrow.

FLYER, MOTHER, BROTHER FOUND DEAD IN PLANE

Monticello, Fla., June 6.—(AP)—A telephone message received here tonight said a rescue party had taken the bodies of Mrs. H. A. Lowman of Miami and her two sons, John and Byron, from the wreckage of a monoplane in the edge of a wood south of here.

The mesage said Carson Chalk, who sighted the wreckage from the air, went to the scene after landing his ship, identified the three bodies and assisted in their removal to Monticello.

Mechanic Dies in Crash.

FERNIE, B. C., June 6.—(AP)—Jack Beckwith, Vancouver airplane mechanic, was burned to death and Pilot R. B. Grant of Vancouver was injured slightly today after the undercarriage of their plane struck the top of a Fernie airport field marker as they were taking off and the craft crashed in flames.

SUES SEARS HEIR, CHARGING CLASH INVOLVING GIRL

Woodstock, Ill., June 6.—(AP)—Richard W. Sears III., president of the Woodstock Typewriter company and a grandson of the founder of a large mail order house, was named today in a $20,000 suit for damages filed in the McHenry Circuit court by Mrs. Gertrude Schackell, proprietor of a Woodstock inn.

Mrs. Schackell charges in her suit that on the night of April 22 Sears and a Dorothy Grimm took separate rooms at the inn and that later Sears permitted the said Dorothy Grimm to enter his room and that they became "loud and disorderly," disturbing the peace of the other guests at the inn.

When she went to the room to quiet them, Mrs. Schackell alleged, she was struck on the head by the Grimm woman, while Sears stood by and "aided and abetted the assault."

The inn proprietor alleged that she called police, and after they arrived the woman threw articles of furniture from the second floor of the inn to the first and otherwise acted in a "disturbing and riotous manner."

Mrs. Schackell's complaint was filed by Alford M. Pouse, former state's attorney of McHenry county.

IERC EXACTS LIFE HISTORIES OF ALL 9,000 EMPLOYES

Staf Puzzled: Why the 74 Queries? What to Say?

Nine thousand employés of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission were searching their memories yesterday to fill out new personnel forms posing 74 questions, and requesting detailed histories of previous employment and education.

In the matter of education, for example, the IERC now insists on knowing not only the schools attended, with dates of entrance and withdrawal or graduation, and degrees held, but also the credits won in the following subjects, with the names of the instructors under whom such credits were earned: Agriculture, dietetics, economics, engineering, law, nursing, psychology, public health, social work, sociology, research and statistics, and business, office, or institutional management.

Antiquarian Investigations.

One of the things that annoyed old employés was the demand for a record of previous employment, linked with the warning: "Consideration is possible only when information given is accurate and complete." How to satisfy the personnel bureau on details of work done ten or twenty years ago, perhaps for concerns now defunct, presented a man-size problem.

The form asks the present address of each employer, and "your supervisor." If any employer is out of business, the employé is to give "name and address of an executive of the firm who knows of your work."

Some staf members surmised the questionnaire was intended to make jobs for forty-five employés in the IERC personnel bureau whose tasks are shrinking because the commission has decided on no more additions to its force.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the IERC, said more complete data were needed for the files than were provided for in the job application blanks. Blaine C. Hoover, director of personnel, was in a hurry to get home when he was asked the purpose of the round-by-round chronicles.

"Nothing much," he breezed. "Drop in and see me in the morning."

AUTO KILLS CCC YOUTH.

McGregor, Ia., June 6.—[Special.]—Robert Goeke, 19, of the McGregor CCC camp, was killed half a mile from home last night when struck by a hit and run driver. He was hitch-hiking to his home on a farm near Waukon for a week-end holiday.

ENGRAVING CODE "ASSESSMENTS" GO OUT AS USUAL

Letters requesting voluntary contributions on the same scale as the code assessments under the defunct National Recovery act have been sent to the 800 members of the photoengraving industry by the national code "authority," according to Louis Flader, executive secretary. Flader said the revenue would be used to support the code authority pending possible action by congress to preserve NRA regulation in some other form. He said it was too early to tell what the response to the letter would be.

Bloomington, Ill., June 6.—[Special.]—Wayne C. Townley, prominent Republican leader in central Illinois, was today elected president of the McLean County Historical society.

PWA Likely to Separate Hammond Grade Crossings

Favorable consideration of the proposal to eliminate some 40 railroad grade crossings in Hammond, principally by track elevation, is in sight, according to word received yesterday from Representative William T. PROPONENTS WIN SENATE FRAY ON RELIEF CONTROL

Horner Administration Forces Beaten.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 6.—[Special.]—Administration efforts to halt the legislative progress of the Hickman relief control bill, which was passed yesterday by the senate, were overridden today by its sponsors, although the opponents condemned several features of the proposed new relief dispensing system as dictatorial in character.

A motion to reconsider the vote of 29 to 4 by which the bill was passed, and a prior motion to delay action on the reconsideration for a week were snowed under. As a consequence the bill now can be taken across the hall to the house for concurrence.

Bring Donovan Reproof.

Before defeating the motions the senate wiggled itself into a parliamentary tangle that brought a reproof for proponents from Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, who presides over the senate, and was straightened out only after two hours of debate and reading of the senate rule books.

"We've had two hours of oratory," Donovan rebuked the bill's sponsors, "only because one of you didn't think to move to table the motion to reconsider."

The main attack on the bill was made by Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago], who moved to reconsider. Ward said that there were no objections to drafting a measure that would change the present system of administering relief, but that more time should be given to the task.

"Under this bill the governor would appoint a state relief director who will be as much a dictator as you have claimed Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, to be," said Ward. "This one man could refuse to make allotments of relief money to any county board that doesn't coöperate with him. Also under this bill the counties would have to pay the salaries of case workers and other costs of administration."

Filtration Bills Passed.

Chicago's program to construct three filtration plants was moved along with the passage by the senate of two bills, introduced by Senator Ward. These measures would enable the city to sell 63 millions of water certificates to finance the program, and permit the Chicago park district to grant or lease lands to the city on which the plants would be built.

In the passage of another bill the senate approved the request of K. L. Ames Jr., state director of finance, for authority to compel retailers to obtain certificates of registration from his department. This power, Ames told the senators, would aid in the collection of the sales tax.

Election matters were a subject of interest to the senate today also, action being taken on two bills that would make drastic changes in the control of elections in the state and the method of electing justices of the state Supreme court.

Gunning Bill on Calendar.

At the request of Senator Thomas P. Gunning [Rep., Princeton] the senate took from the judiciary committee and placed on the calendar his bill providing for the election of a state election commission.

This commission of seven members, which will be elected in November, 1936, for a four year term, would have supervisory power and control over all elections in the state. It would have the power to review elections and send inspectors into any city on election day to watch for and report on violations of the election law.

Would Affect Supreme Court.

The new method of electing the Supreme court justices was proposed in a resolution for a constitutional amendment introduced by Senator W. E. Clifford [Dem., Champaign].

Each of the justices, whose terms will be increased from nine to ten years, would submit his reëlection to the voters without opposition. If the voters turned down a justice his place would be filled by an appointment by the governor, subject to the approval of a commission consisting of the chief justice of the court, the attorney general, and the chief justice of the Chicago municipal court. The appointee would go before the electorate at the next general election following his appointment.

Seeks Legislative Speed.

The lack of a definite legislative program at the opening of each session of the general assembly, which results in inactivity during the early weeks, would be eliminated by provisions in a bill submitted today by Senator T. V. Smith [Dem., Chicago], a professor at the University of Chicago.

Under this bill a legislative council would be created consisting of ten senators and ten representatives. This council would prepare a comprehensive legislative program during the interim, between sessions which will be made public a month before the convening of any session.

Bidwill Measure Passed.

Although Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest no longer is a senator, by reason of his ouster by the Democrats, a bill that he introduced while a member was passed today. The bill, which would permit cities under 300,000 population to issue bonds during the next eighteen months to pay claims incurred prior to April 1 this year, was called for passage by Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet].

Among other bills passed by the senate were:

Senate bill 367—Thomas E. Keane [Dem., Chicago]: Would bring employés of Cook county fee officers under civil service.

Senate bill 595—John M. Lee [Dem., Chicago]: Would provide for term annuities of $10 a month for park policemen and their widows when amount to credit of officer is insufficient to keep up payments for life.

Senate bill 599—Ward: Provides that Cook county clerk shall furnish city of Chicago certificates of forfeiture of withdrawal covering property withdrawn or forfeited to state for nonpayment of special assessments.

R. M. Shaw [Dem., Lawrenceville]—A series of bills incorporating into various existing acts, such as beauty culture, chiropody, and dental surgery acts, provisions of the civil administrative code relating to powers of the department of registration and education. One of the bills would vest the department's investigators with police powers.

Earlier in the day opponents of bills boosting the license fees of trucks, providing for regulation of the trucking industry by the Illinois commerce commission and making "prudent investment" the basis of fair value of utility properties for rate making purposes blocked advancement of the bills in a meeting of the committee on public utilities. A hearing on the bills will be held next Wednesday night.

KANSAS EX-BANKER KILLS SELF TO AVOID 36 TO 600 YEAR TERM

Emporia, Kas., June 6.—(AP)—Warren W. Finney, 62, former Kansas capitalist, died tonight of a bullet wound inflicted by himself a few hours earlier as officers waited to take him to the state penitentiary to start serving a 36 to 600 year sentence on twelve counts for embezzlement of $63,000.

Finney, once one of Kansas' wealthiest men, shot himself with an automatic pistol in a summer cabin near here.

Finney's conviction of embezzlement followed the collapse of his three banks as an aftermath of a million dollar bond scandal that rocked the state and sent his son, Roland, and the state treasurer, Tom B. Boyd, to prison.

5 AND 10 HEIRESS FEARED KIDNAP PLOT, RENO SAYS

Reno, Nev., June 6.—(AP)—Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, the Woolworth heiress, feared a kidnap plot during her recent stay here to divorce Prince Alexis Mdivani, an authoritative source revealed today. The disclosure was made after receipts of reports from Copenhagen that she would live in Europe because of "fear of gangsters" in the United States.

It was learned the elaborate precautions taken here by police and federal officers to guard her were to protect her from an asserted abduction plot in which members of the Barker-Karpis gang were supposed involved. It is known that a former eastern gangster, known here only as "Jack," arrived shortly after she came to Reno. He had been here previously and was known to have been in Reno at the same time Alvin Karpis, now Public Enemy No. 1, occupied a home in this city.

The gangster was supposed to have been the advance agent of his "mob" sent here to map preliminary steps in which was to have been a "million dollar" kidnaping. The day after his arrival, however, he disappeared, supposedly when he was informed through underworld sources that Reno was "too hot" for any kind of a kidnaping.

PAROLED CONVICT JAILED.

Stanley Wright, 30 years old, a paroled convict, was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge J. William Brooks in the Town Hall court when he pleaded guilty to passing a worthless check for $14 on a clothing company.

CHANGE OF VENUE GIVEN VOLIVA IN CITY HALL FIGHT

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, head of the Christian Catholic church of Zion, won a change of venue yesterday in his court battle to retain possession of the old city hall building in Zion which his city council leased to the church just before they left office in favor of the insurgent group. Voliva lost the first round of the fight last week when Judge Theodore R. Forby of Zion granted a temporary injunction to keep the Volivites out of the hall. The change of venue was taken on Voliva's plea that Forby was one of the insurgents who broke away from his church, and is consequently prejudiced. The new venue is the Lake county Circuit court.

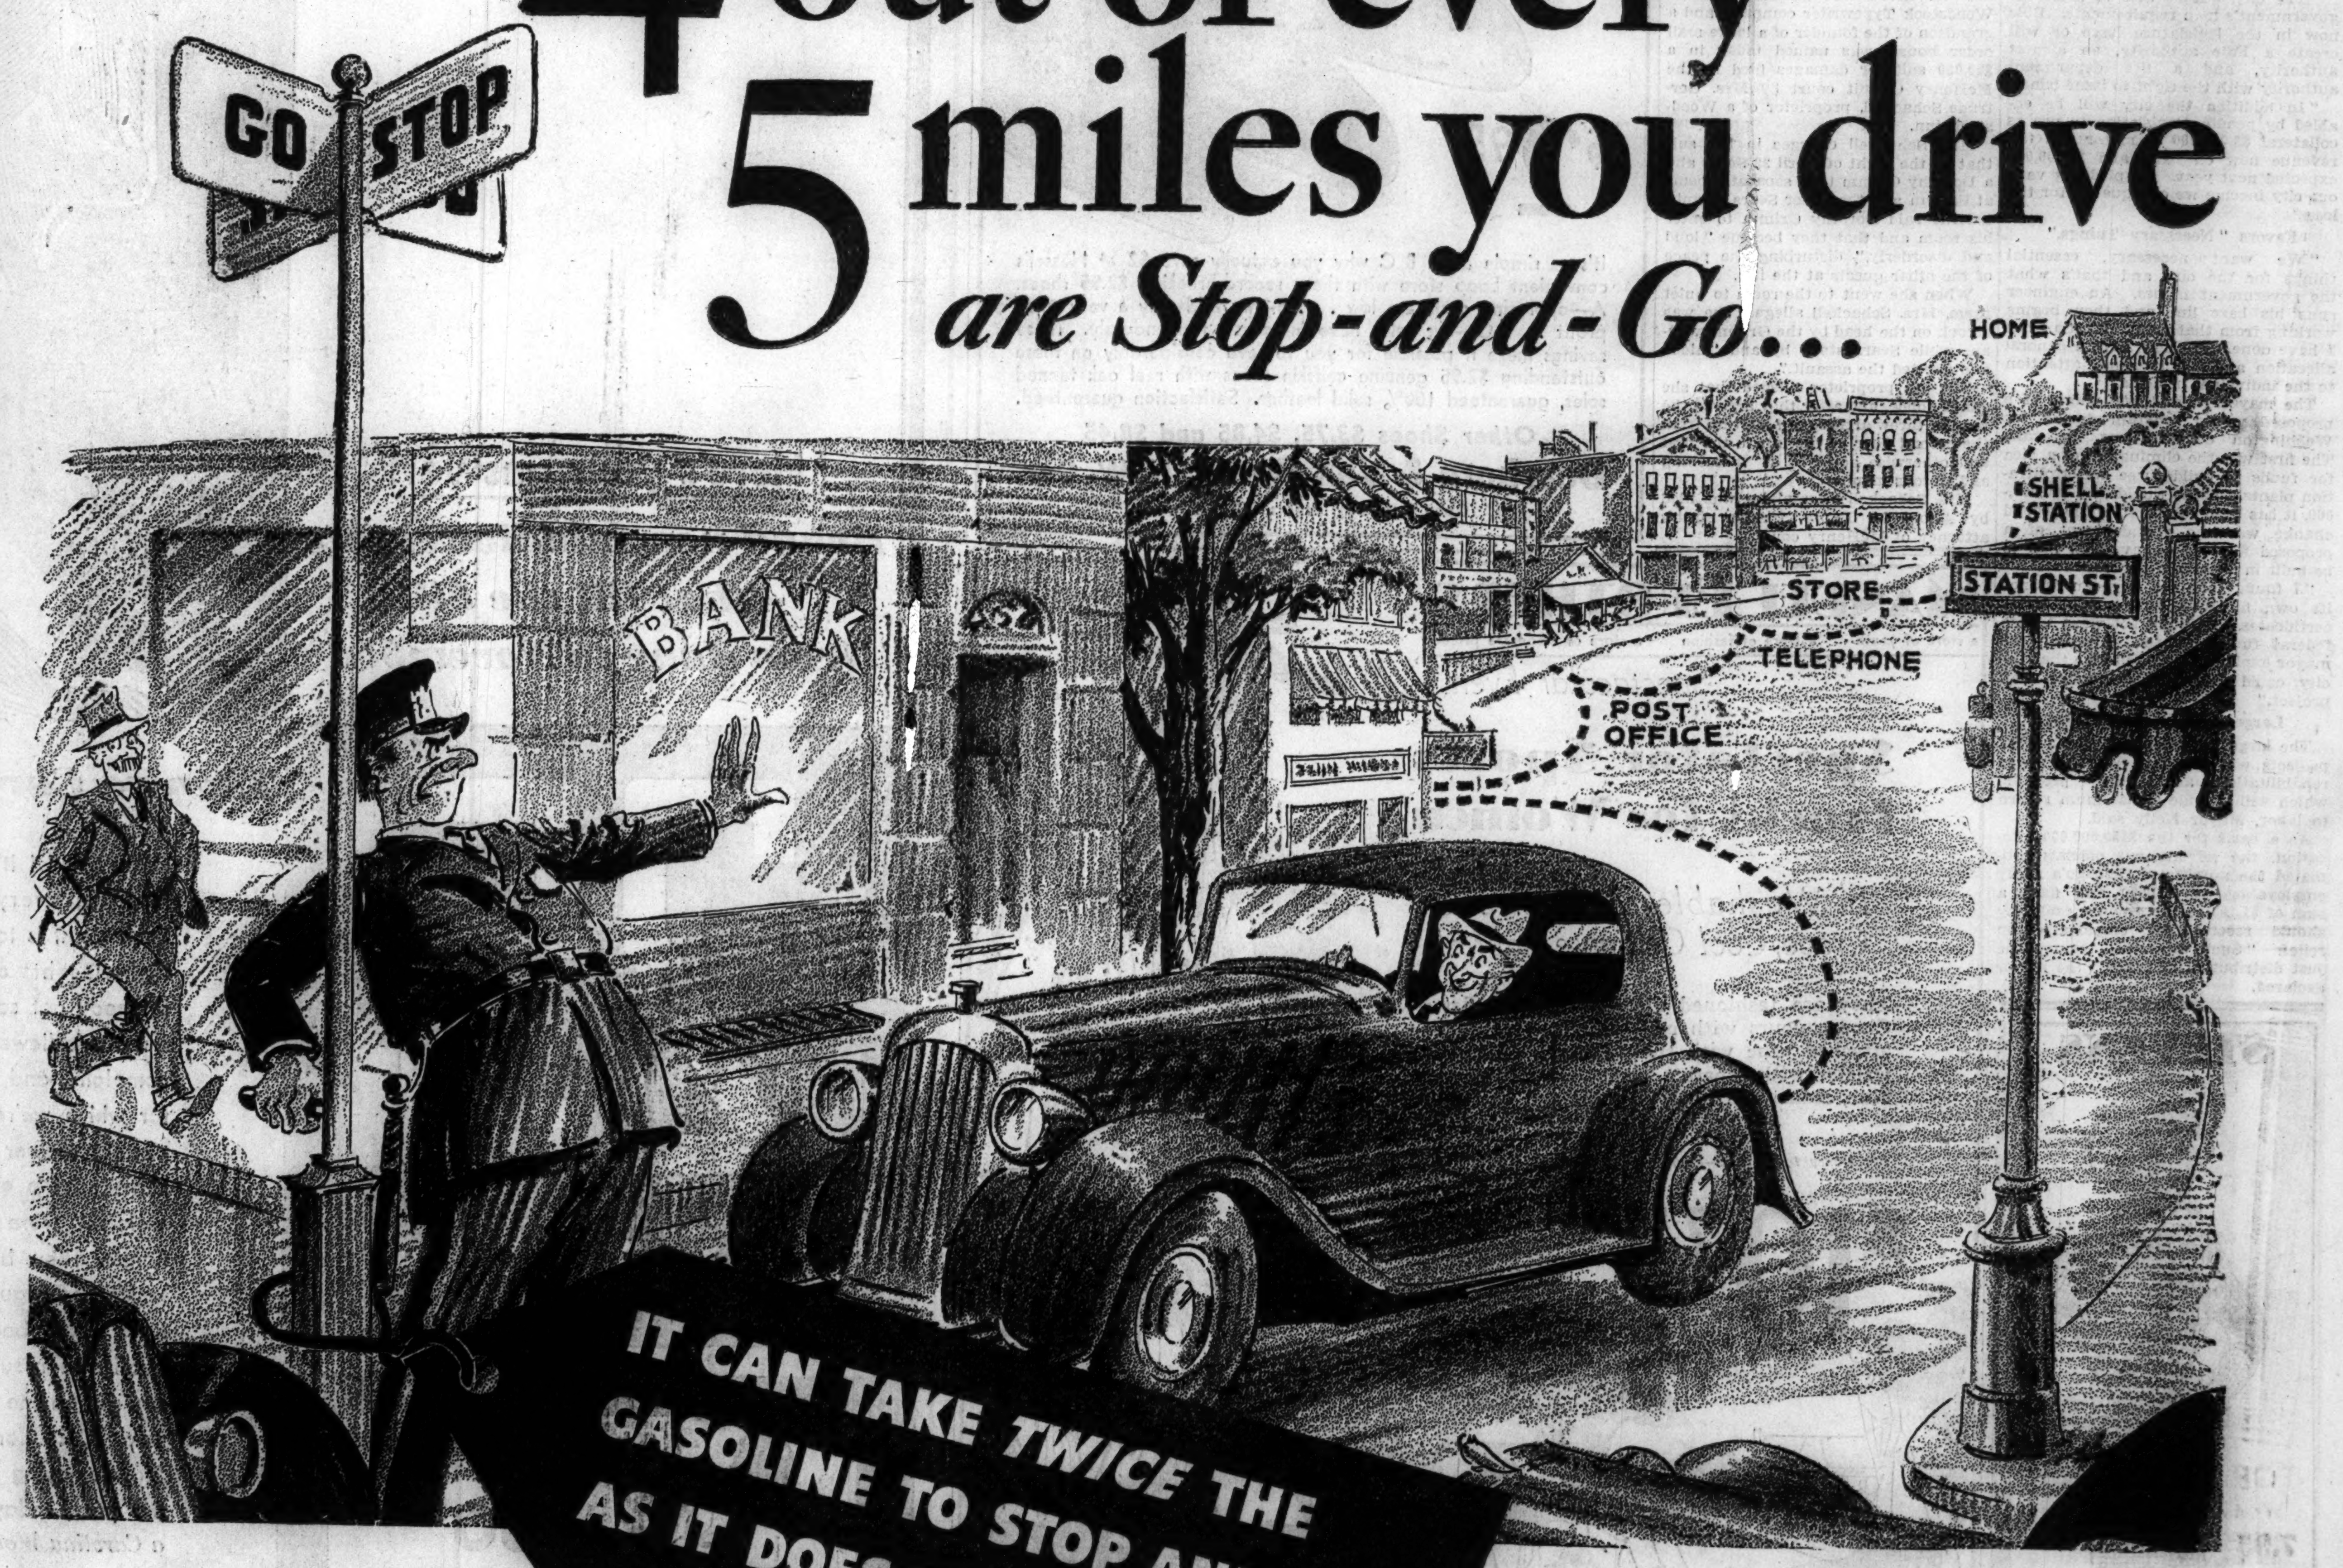
4 out of every 5 miles you drive are Stop-and-Go...



IT CAN TAKE TWICE THE GASOLINE TO STOP AND GO— AS IT DOES TO KEEP GOING

Today's starting, shifting and accelerating waste your money—if your gasoline hasn't these 3 Kinds of Power

It is not difficult to make a gasoline that merely STARTS quickly . . . or one that PULLS HARD . . . or one that gives you more MILEAGE on steady running.

But your pocketbook would be hard hit if your gasoline did only ONE of these important jobs well.

The big engineering job is to make a gasoline that has ALL THREE of these kinds of power . . . and in PERFECT BALANCE!

Today such a gasoline has been perfected. It is the FIRST truly balanced gasoline. It is called "Super-Shell."

It is another big achievement by the Shell engineers whose research helped to pave the way for the high-compression head principle used in 98% of today's cars.

SHELL

SAVES gasoline in 3 ways—

STARTING—With its even volatility, Super-Shell can save up to a cupful on every "cold" start. Even on sizzling days, your engine is relatively "cold" when not running.

SHIFTING—Super-Shell can save up to a cupful in 10 minutes of hard pulling, or rapid accelerating, or on hills.

SUPER-SHELL

JAPANESE MASS TROOPS TO SEIZE PEIPING, TIENTSIN

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, June 7—(Friday.)—(AP)—Japan's military representatives in China obtained full authorization from the Tokio government today to "urge the Chinese for early fulfilment" of the Japanese demands in North China. The demands were originally presented May 29.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 6.—Japanese military authorities at Tientsin today canceled departure orders for all troops scheduled to return to Japan June 15 upon the expiration of their enlistment terms. Maj. Gen. Yoshijiro Umetsu, chief commander of the Japanese garrison, issued the order. He stated that the cancelation of home leave was due to "a critical situation existing in north China."

Earlier in the day Japanese army officials in Shanghai announced they planned to occupy Peiping and Tienstin within three days.

A Japanese transport carrying reinforcements from Osaka was scheduled to arrive in Tientsin early next week. It will bear detachments of the 61st regiment from Wakayama, the 70th regiment from Sasayama, and the engineering battalion of the 4th division from Takatsuki.

Tientsin Garrison Doubled.

It was originally announced that the new troops were replacements of those whose terms had expired, but since the expirations of leaves have been canceled, it means that the Tientsin garrison, normally 3,000 strong, probably will be doubled. Further reinforcements from the Japanese garrison at Shanhaikwan have been streaming into Tientsin daily for the last three weeks.

In addition to the forces at Tientsin, the Japanese now have one brigade stationed within the demilitarized zone northeast of Peiping. In the event hostilities develop, now regarded as practically inevitable, all the Japanese forces of north China will be placed under the command of the Kwantung army, which controls the "puppet régime" of Manchukuo. They are commanded by Gen. Jiro Minami, who serves concurrently as ambassador to the Japanese protected state.

War Minister Ends Tour.

Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, Japanese minister of war, who has been on a three week's inspection trip to Manchukuo, returned to Mukden today. He said he would return to Tokio on June 16.

The Japanese garrison at Tientsin meanwhile completed its barricades at street intersections in the Japanese concession and conducted a military demonstration.

Two armored cars were followed by a detachment of 100 infantry men who marched through the streets of the Chinese city singing war songs.

Jap Demand Fulfilled.

NANKING, China, June 6.—(AP)—The resignation of Gov. Yu Hsueh-chung of Hopei province, whose dismissal was demanded by the Japanese military authorities in North China, was accepted today by the Nationalist government central political council.

Czech Nazi Chief Victim of German Currency Law

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PRAGUE, June 6.—Konrad Henlein, leader of Czechoslovakia's Nazi party, was a victim today of the severe German currency regulations. After a visit to Germany he was cycling to his native town of Asch near the border when he was stopped by German frontier guards. They found on him 54 marks more than he was permitted to take out of the country. The money was confiscated.

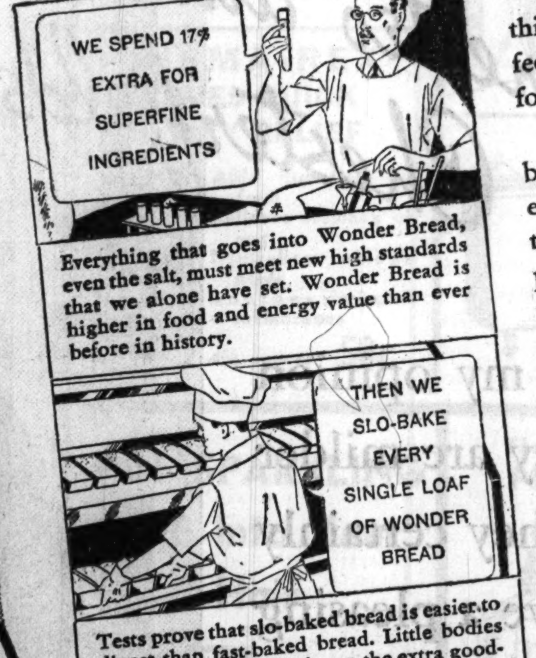
THIS NEW BREAD

is baked for your children!

We spent 5 years' research . . tested 1183 formulas . . consulted 2755 mothers. Now we offer the new Wonder Bread. Read why you owe it to your children to serve this finer bread.



Everything that goes into Wonder Bread, even the salt, must meet new high standards that we alone have set. Wonder Bread is higher in food and energy value than ever before in history.

Tests prove that slo-baked bread is easier to digest than fast-baked bread. Little bodies grow strong and healthy on the extra goodness that slo-baking brings to Wonder Bread.

EVERY MOTHER who wants to keep her children healthy and happy will welcome this good news. At last a bread has been perfected for children . . . rich in energy, high in food value, easy for little stomachs to digest.

We worked for five years to bring you this bread. Time and cost were disregarded. Our experts searched the country for the finest things money could buy, working with milk people, flour people, and shortening people to improve every ingredient. Today you can give your children—at no extra cost—all the benefits of a bread that costs 17% more to make than ordinary bread.

Every mother knows that milk is valuable for children because of its proteins and minerals. Wonder Bread gives this extra value in far greater quantities than you can expect in ordinary bread.

There are 24 kinds of flour to choose from, but only one is best. We use that one exclusively—flour from the very heart of the wheat berry. Even then, this flour is tested three times before we use it. And every ingredient, even the salt, must meet new high standards that we alone have set.

But it takes more than the best ingredients to make the best bread. So we put our years of baking skill and experience to work, and perfected slo-baking at a cost of $6,000,000. We consider this money well invested, for tests prove that slo-baked bread is easier to digest than fast-baked bread. All the good things that Wonder Bread brings your children—proteins, carbohydrates, and minerals—are more quickly turned into needed energy and nourishment! Little bodies get more real good from Wonder Bread.

And just watch the youngsters go after Wonder Bread. Delighted mothers tell us their children enjoy Wonder Bread plain and say that they themselves never knew bread could have such a full tempting wheaty flavor.

It costs nothing extra to serve the new Wonder Bread. Please buy it for thirty days and see what a difference it makes—how much more lively and happy your youngsters are. It's at your grocer's in the new air-tight wrapper with the familiar red, yellow and blue balloons.

CONSIDER HUGE INHERITANCE TAX TO SPLIT WEALTH

Nuisance Levies Expire on June 30.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Enactment of heavy inheritance taxes to "redistribute the wealth" was talked in New Deal circles here again today.

Reports that President Roosevelt might raise the tax question in a special message to congress were current. Mr. Roosevelt, according to rumors, might suggest the unprecedented inheritance taxes as an alternative to excise taxes which expire June 30 or as a "recovery" measure to supplant NRA.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau admitted that the treasury has a tax program drawn up, but insisted that he would not make it public until requested to do so by the ways and means committee of the house of representatives. Morgenthau has declared heavy taxes on inheritances to be in line with "our fundamental objectives."

Discusses 85 Per Cent Tax.

Taxes which would confiscate 85 per cent of large estates have been discussed tentatively by treasury experts, inquiry revealed. A system of double taxation would be used to achieve this "redistribution of wealth."

An estate would be subjected to the existing estate taxes which run from 1 per cent on $10,000 to 60 per cent on 10 million dollars. In addition each heir would have to pay an inheritance tax on his share of the estate, and this tax would be graduated like the present income tax to seize from 4 to 63 per cent of what is left.

This system of taxation on wealth might be brought forward by the treasury to replace the 451 million dollars in various excise taxes which expire June 30, according to reports.

"Know What We Need."

"We know what we need to keep within the President's budget estimates," was Secretary Morgenthau's remark when asked whether he was planning any tax program, and when reminded that receipts to date are within the estimates he replied, "But there are those excise taxes which expire June 30."

Congress has not taken any action to renew these levies, and there still is time for the treasury to suggest that instead of continuing nuisance taxes the congress substitute the radical inheritance tax plan. The excise taxes which must be renewed or replaced by other taxes and their yield are:

Tax on gasoline, 202 million dollars; electrical energy, 33 millions; automobiles, 32½ millions; tires, 28 millions; lubricating oil, 25 millions; telephone and telegraph messages, 18 millions; brewers' wort and malt, 3 millions; toilet preparations, 11 millions; furs, 7½ millions; jewelry, 4½ millions; radios, 3 millions; mechanical refrigerators, 5½ millions; sporting goods, 4 millions; firearms, 2½ millions; matches, 7 millions; transportation of oil by pipe lines, 10 millions; auto trucks, 5 millions; auto parts, 5½ millions.

Wants Bank Check Levy.

Secretary Morgenthau intimated also that if the excise taxes are to be continued he wants the 41 million dollar tax on bank checks revived.

Turing to the outgo side of the government's finances, Secretary Morgenthau said spending is running behind estimates. Treasury reports indicate a deficit for the first two years of the New Deal of 7 billion dollars instead of the 9 billions estimated by the President and Morgenthau. This is due to the failure to spend money as rapidly as expected.

MAJOR PRICE, murder and robbery, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary; ORCEE ROBINSON, murder and robbery, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary; EDWARD WILLIAMS, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge William V. Brothers.

Mrs. Mossie Crockett, 33 years old, 1157 Belmont avenue, former office assistant, yesterday was put on the stand as a witness against Dr. Frank R. Braune and Dr. Maurice L. Dale, who are on trial in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court on charges of murder by abortion.

Mrs. Crockett testified that she was in Dr. Braune's office when the operation was performed upon Miss Marie Dwyer, who later died. Dr. Braune, his former assistant said, performed the actual operation and she added that Dr. Dale exclaimed, "You're killing her!" and dashed out of the office. Dr. Braune then instructed Mrs. Crockett to "prepare" the patient, who had been anesthetized, and to take her to a hospital, she said.

Dr. Dale took Miss Dwyer to Dr. Braune's office at 306 South Wabash avenue two days before the operation on Feb. 22, Mrs. Crockett told the jury. The state is expected to conclude its evidence today, and Defense Attorneys John E. Northup and Samuel Hoffman will begin their defense.

Twelve equity suits, nine injunction petitions, and three criminal indictments are to be dismissed, Mr. Hassenauer said. Mr. Hassenauer received the order in the absence of United States District Attorney Michael L. Igoe, who is now in Washington.

A. F. OF L. SEEKS ECONOMIC RULE BY U. S., NEW NRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—While congress prepared today to approve an emasculated NRA, the American Federation of Labor's executive committee came out for a new NRA and revision of the American form of government, as hinted at by President Roosevelt, to circumvent the Supreme court decision by a constitutional amendment.

The A. F. of L. leaders, after a four hour conference on the NRA situation, declared they will lobby for a change in the constitution allowing the federal government complete and unquestionable control over the economic and social lives of every person in the country.

Extend NRA to April 1.

Earlier in the day, after much mental agony, the house ways and means committee reported favorably a resolution extending life of the NRA to April 1, 1936 and stripping President Roosevelt of power to approve or prescribe codes. Nineteen voted for the resolution and five were "Present."

The resolution is to be introduced in the house tomorrow under a special rule and after two or three hours' debate will be passed. At least one effort will be made to abolish even the emasculated NRA by the Republican minority. Democrats could see no difficulty in quelling this effort.

A new law replacing NRA and four other radical measures also were demanded by the A. F. of L. whose president, William Green, declared that unions "will not remain passive with this continuation of a skeleton."

Demand 30 Hour Week.

The four other measures besides a new NRA which the A. F. of L. demanded are the Wagner labor disputes bill, the 30 hour week bill, old age and unemployment insurance, and the Guffey coal control bill.

The A. F. of L. released results of a telegraphic poll which purported to show wage cutting in 43 industries and "tens of thousands of workers" discharged since NRA collapsed.

Working hours have been lengthened by 10, 12, and 18 hours a week, the A. F. of L. claimed.

The committee spent five hours drafting a four line thirty-three word section repealing the President's code powers. It read as follows:

"All the provisions of title 1 of such [national recovery] act delegating power to the President to approve or prescribe codes of fair competition and providing for the enforcement of such codes are hereby repealed."

Lift Part of Measure.

The remainder of the resolution was lifted bodily from the resolution introduced by Senator Bennett C. Clark and passed by the senate several weeks ago. It reads as follows:

"Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled that section 2 [C] of title I of the national industrial recovery act is amended by striking out 'at the expiration of two years after the date of enactment of this act' and inserting in lieu thereof 'on April 1, 1936.'"

Committee members said they believed that under the resolution voluntary codes entered into by industry would be legal. Richberg was said to have told the committee that he believed voluntary codes would not be workable.

Representative Thomas O. Jenkins [Rep., Ohio], prepared an amendment which he will offer tomorrow which would also deprive the President of power to set up agencies for any purpose whatever. This would kill NRA completely, inasmuch as even a skeleton force could not be retained. Jenkins, admitting that he anticipated defeat of the measure, said he was against the retention of 2,000 or more NRA employés merely as pay rollers.

While the overwhelming Democratic majority in the house quickly will approve the resolution tomorrow, more difficulty was anticipated in the senate because of the spreading of rumors today that other and more permanent NRA legislation was expected to follow the temporary measure.

Speaker Byrns declared additional legislation probably will be sent to congress within the next few days to carry out the President's ruling that government contracts will be awarded only to firms that comply with code requirements. A bill to revive the federal alcohol control administration will also be brought up in the house next week, he said.

The White House and executive offices paid little heed to the NRA situation today. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings said the government might be forced to prosecute industries which tried to control NRA price fixing agreements on charges of breaking the anti-trust laws. Cummings also said he was studying a large grist of "very ingenuous" suggestions for replacing the NRA.

A steadily growing demand for federal legislation authorizing a system of compacts between states establishing wage and hour standards was evident. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins is sounding out this possibility.

U. S. FLEET 920 MILES FROM SAN DIEGO; MOVES INTO LAST EXERCISES

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA, AT SEA, June 6.—The United States fleet was approaching San Diego tonight with only about 920 miles to steam before the scheduled arrival there, Monday morning.

Fleet problem XVI., the name for this year's maneuvers, is practically ended. The first analysis will be made at a confidential critique to be held at the naval air station auditorium in San Diego, June 14.

The most important studies will be devoted to the performance of the new ships, tested for the first time in company with the whole fleet. Among these are the destroyers Dewey and Farragut of the two stack, "broken-deck" type. They are the fastest ships the United States ever has built. Another is the aircraft carrier Ranger, which was built from keel up as a carrier. She is far more maneuverable than the Lexington and Saratoga, although not quite so fast. Five new 10,000 ton cruisers of the Astoria class also participated in a mimic war for the first time.

Born on Same Day, Elected on Same Day; Celebrate

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(AP)—Two representatives who claim to be the first two men in history born on the same day and elected to congress on the same day observed the coincidence today with a party for fellow house members and newspaper men. They are Representatives J. George Stewart [Rep., Del.] and Chauncey Reed [Rep., Ill]. They are 45.

M'DONALD QUITS TODAY; CABINET CHANGES LISTED

King George Cancels Trip to Races to Be on Hand.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 6. — King George today canceled his visit to Epsom Downs tomorrow for the Oaks race in order to be in London to take part in the changeover of the government from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council.

As at present arranged, MacDonald will go to Buckingham palace in the morning to submit his resignation as prime minister to the king, and after lunch Baldwin will go and kiss the king's hand on his appointment as prime minister.

MacDonald to Scotland.

In the evening MacDonald will leave London for a rest at Lossiemouth, in Scotland. Baldwin now is reported to have completed the reorganization of his cabinet, which shows, according to reports, little change.

MacDonald will take Baldwin's post as lord president of the council. Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, stays at the treasury. Sir Samuel Hoare, now chief secretary for India, goes to the foreign office where he will meet a staf dissatisfied because the job has not been given to Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal. Eden is popular and, by universal consent, has earned the position. He has the handicap of youth, however, and Hoare's banking and city connections have won him the job he desires.

Simon to Home Office.

Sir John Simon, now foreign secretary, goes to the home office and will act as leader in the house of commons in Baldwin's absence, while Lord Sankey, lard chief justice, will retire and Lord Hailsham, now secretary for war, gets the woolsack.

Malcolm MacDonald, Ramsay MacDonald's son, who is only 34, represents a concession to youth. He will become colonial secretary, thus setting up a record for cabinet rank only equaled by Winston Churchill who also entered the cabinet at 34.

2,000 ADVERTISING MEN CONVENE IN CHICAGO SUNDAY

More than 2,000 advertising leaders are expected to attend the four day thirty-first annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America, which opens Sunday in the Palmer house.

Chester H. Lang, president of the federation, yesterday invited President Roosevelt to address the convention either in person or by radio, and it was indicated that the President will accept if previous engagements do not conflict.

There will be two general meetings. Principal speakers at these will include Albert D. Lasker, president of Lord & Thomas; Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; John McKinlay, president of Marshall Field & Co.; Mr. Lang, who is advertising counsel for the General Electric company, and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, chairman of the consumers' advisory board of the NRA.

Fourteen departmental meetings will be held, at which 125 men and women will speak. The Tuesday morning session will be merged with that of the sales promotion division of the National Retail Dry Goods association in the Stevens hotel.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE VANISHING CONGRESS.

President Roosevelt accepts the Supreme court decision as putting the NRA out of business. He turns to the other points of his program. They are fourteen in number, including the social security bill, the Wagner labor bill, Tennessee Valley bill, AAA extensions, the holding company bill, etc. These fourteen points make up what is known in congress as the "must" program.

Mr. Roosevelt's administration has been remarkable in its relation to congress in that the President does not give his recommendations and permit the bills to be drawn by his party members in one or the other house, but sends over each bill as he wants it enacted. Congress has virtually accepted the administrative theory, which is at one with that of Louis XIV., that the parliamentary body is a place of registry. Laws are sent it to be accepted and the will of the prince is the law of the land. The Republican opposition has been so slight and Democratic opposition so exceptional to the rule that when the President has had a bill prepared by one of his official or unofficial aids it is to be accepted in congress. Debate, consideration, and the vote are at the best mere ceremonies.

The submission of congress to this new procedure in lawmaking is so complete as to constitute an abdication. As a legislative body congress adjourns as soon as it assembles and the members remain either as agents of administrative program or as helpless observers of the scene. For all practical purposes one division of government has been eliminated and there remains only the executive and the judicial. The latter has continued to serve its purpose, but the lawmaking body has been merged into the executive and has become a part of the process by which an executive order becomes a statute.

The willingness of congress to submit has made this change in government a peaceable part of the "peaceable revolution." No other President ever exercised such authority. No other laid programs down with "must" attached to them, and congress at no other time so completely accepted the theory of command performances.

THE MERIT SYSTEM FOR COOK AND THE SANITARY DISTRICT.

Two bills to bring into the classified civil service the present employés of Cook county and the sanitary district are pending in the assembly. If enacted and faithfully enforced they will improve public administration as well as protect the 4,000 public servants concerned from the unnecessary and unjust vicissitudes of political contest.

It is gratifying to note that both bills, H. B. 796 and 885, have not only the approval of the Civil Service Association of Chicago and the Citizens' association, but also the support of the president of the sanitary district, Mr. Woodhull, and the trustees, and that of President Clayton Smith and the members of the county board. The house committee on civil service also has reported them favorably and the senate committee already has acted favorably on the Cook county bill.

The merit system has been indorsed repeatedly by both parties, but the indorsement has not been translated very rapidly into law, for obvious reasons. In the present tendency at Washington to increase burocracy the merit system has been conspicuously ignored, but it is to be hoped this example will not be followed in Illinois. It emphasizes the importance of widening the scope of the merit system, and the people of the sanitary district and of Cook county unquestionably will favor its extension to the employés who serve them.

The failure of the Republican organizations in control of the assembly in 1929 and 1931 and of the Democratic organization in 1933 was a failure of public duty in the interest of spoils politics and should be corrected at this session. As the Citizens' association declares, all faithful and competent employés are entitled to protection in their tenure of office during good behavior, and the public has a right to the best obtainable service in positions maintained by the taxes it pays. The present assembly is under the complete control of the Democratic organization and its commanders. If the bills are not enacted there can be no doubt of where responsibility lies.

MR. SWEITZER'S CRACKER BARREL.

Mr. Sweitzer, among other achievements in politics, has made the administration of the county clerk's office which he held for a political generation highly fantastic. When everything else has been attended to relating to this affair it would seem that a general and searching view of all county administration would be in order and profitable. Mr. Sweitzer's custody of public funds appears to have been the open cracker barrel method.

The scene is that of the old fashioned corner grocery store with its barrels outside the counter and the friendly customers coming in to wait their turn and to chat with the proprietor, who is weighing out the orders and doing up his packages, mislaying his string, figuring on the wrapping paper, peering over his spectacles. From time to time the customers drop their hands carelessly in the cracker barrel or the dried apples and carelessly lift them out, filled with whatever they happen to touch. If the customer was a crony of the proprietor there might or might not be conversation regarding the surreptitious lifting from the barrels. Sometimes the storekeeper got even by adding something to the family bill and letting it go at that.

Mr. Sweitzer's open cracker barrel method of keeping money intrusted to him had this variation in that he himself followed the general habit. There, also, was the difference that, although the crackers were in his charge, they weren't his property. He was a clerk in the store and in this case the proprietor doesn't seem to have known what was going on. Mr. Sweitzer's whole attitude since discovery of the empty barrels has been that it was just a few crackers after all and what is that between friends? The fact that the episode is so grotesque has quite ceased to be an explanation of it. Public curiosity must carry the affair further than Mr. Sweitzer's particular case. The open cracker barrel custody of funds must be thoroughly investigated.

CIVILIAN OPINION IN WARTIME.

We suggested the other day that since civilian opinion exerts influence in wartime as well as in peace, some serious effort should be made to instruct at least the more articulate and influential part of our citizenry in the history of warfare and the rudiments of military and naval science. This instruction would not aim at making soldiers, though it would be useful in supplying a desirable background for military training, but rather at providing civilians with some essentials of a more competent judgment upon the events, personalities, and conduct of a conflict in which the nation may be engaged.

Objection to such an addition to education will be violent among pacifists, who, though they preach the horrors of war, seem always fearful that the study of it will incline the student to favor it. We do not think this objection deserves discussion. A more plausible objection may be raised by the professional soldier who may feel that it will produce only that little knowledge which, as Mr. Pope has said, is a dangerous thing. No doubt back seat driving ought not to be encouraged in any form, but the professional soldier cannot escape the intervention of civilian influence in what he likes to regard as his own business, but which has become, in fact, very much the business of all the people. And it seems obvious to us that since this intervention is inevitable, it is better for all concerned that an intelligent effort should be made to give it some basis in knowledge and some direction in accepted general principles.

But this statement may seem to deprecate the participation of civilian judgment in the conduct of war. We are far from that opinion. Professional military judgment is not infallible. It has shown the typical faults of the burocratic temper and mentality, too rigid devotion to rules and dogmas, incapacity to adjust practice to altered conditions, pride of opinion, and supersensitiveness in matters of authority and rank.

Especially the burocratic inelasticity of mind, a routine ridden habit which refuses to face new conditions, needs criticism and correction in war even more than in peace. The civilian mind formed in the intense competition of civil life may be more respectful of the controling facts of a situation than the military, and its very ignorance of military dogmas or principles may permit it to see what needs to be done when the military Bourbon is preoccupied with precedents and formulas which do not apply. Indeed, we believe one of the prime problems of preparedness for waging modern war is to devise means of bringing into its conduct more effectively the initiative and realism which the best civilian minds develop in competitive enterprise.

PROFESSOR REXFORD TUGWELL.

[Kansas City Drovers' Telegram.]

Prof. Rexford Tugwell, he of the imaginative, visionary mind, and prophet of doom for the territory west of the Mississippi river, has been under suspicion.

In the minds of the great bulk of American citizens that suspicion was translated into assurance by the Tugwellian speech of this week in which the greatest double-veil clairvoyant of the ages looked into the crystal ball and beheld the golden west transformed into "a trackless desert" and all the development of man brought low to be buried by sand and dust within a period of three hundred years from the present time.

A trackless desert! Inquisitive sojourners of coming ages to find the buried remains of a lost civilization—the steel beams of the great structures of a hundred cities between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains. To dig up the plowshares that converted a once great American desert into the greatest agricultural domain in the world's history, only to be buried by the sweep of cruel winds, bearing a never ending avalanche of earth and sand.

Gone forever! The fertile fields, the mighty tractors, the harvesters salvaging the breadstuffs of a hungry world, millions of sleek live stock. No more country homes; no white churches, buried by the débris of a former civilization; descendants of the sturdy pioneers transported to the lovely Matanuska valley of Alaska.

Dear Mr. Tugwell, kind Mr. Tugwell, is there no way this great expanse can be salvaged for future generations? Can it be done by planting innumerable trees and sowing grass seed? Can it be done by preventing soil erosion?

O, yes, says the professor. "To save the land and the people who depend on it is an aspiration in which all of us, it seems to me, can join. . . . And I am willing to take this kind of pledge."

Saved!

SCIENCE has been doing a lot of bragging in the last few days over the announcement made at the convention in New York of the American Institute of Homeopathy that medicine has added twenty-three years to the human span of life. Tut, tut, tut! How perfectly appalling! Twenty-three years more of radio announcers and radio jazz and radio creoners and the movies and hit and run autos and income taxes and the high and higher cost of living! Twenty-three years more of having to see the face of Greta Garbo in the newspapers! Twenty-three years more of reading about Douglas Fairbanks and Lady Sylvia Ashley! Twenty-three years more watching congress spend our money by the billions and quadrillions! Twenty-three years more of all the terrible alphabet things down in Washington! Thank you, science, but in the language of our new ruling class in these United States "It's a bum rap." Couldn't you commute the sentence to fifteen years, or at least give us three years off for good behavior?

PERSONAL. I wish to trade my lovely summer wardrobe, all in the very latest 1935 style. I have a very roguish bicycle suit consisting of a darling blue and yellow stripe polka dot shirtwaist and shorts so short that the police have ordered me off the boulevards several times already, and three flirtatious motor drivers have almost driven into Mr. Lincoln's monument in Lincoln Park because they watched me instead of where they were going. Will trade for heavy corduroy suit or Eskimo suit of bear fur. Have a perfectly darling latest style bathing suit which made all the beach censors shake their heads and give me a dirty look. As the ice will probably continue in the lake the rest of the summer will trade this sassy bathing costume for Norwegian skiing costume or North Pole explorer's suit. Will also trade my bicycle for snowshoes or toboggan, heavy fur mittens, ear muffs, warm muffler, or what have you? As for my new sheer silk stockings, oh la, la la! I'll give those silly things to anybody that calls and wants to take a chance on being able to wear them in Chicago this summer. Address Dazzling Daisy, Ritzenbocker Hotel, 765 Socialite Avenue.

WHICH IS A PRETTY FAIR JOB IN ITSELF.

Sir: Well, it rather looks as if Franklin D. will have to content himself with just being President of the United States from now on. G. P. K.

‡

AND NOW IT'S HAPPENED! Horror of horrors! Whither are we drifting? Some of the eastern newspapers have already published the thing in streamer headlines: "First Birthday for the Dionne Quinties!" Think of it—"quinties!" The very sound of the thing makes one grow pale and have severe shooting pains in the neck. Not content with such awful atrocities as "eatie shoppie" and "good-nightie" and "alritey" and "kiddies" and "okie," now we have to see that awful thing "quinties" staring us in the face every now and then. And next somebody will be changing "Mothers' Day" to "Muzzies' Day." Quick, Watson, the needle!

AMBUSH.

These cornflowers, this nest of redbirds, and this low-swung branch
From where we lean and look and lean again.

And when I'm old, send back to me
As in a silver horn, chaste, severe,
The strident sound of this small voice, the free

Brushing my arm, give to my flesh remembrance of the touch.
Scar it against forgetting as the staid

Unlovely beast is branded in the field
Before a reckoning day. Then let this blue and crimson,
These shrill untutored notes stay secret and unsealed

Behind my eyes, and ambushed among tears,
Yet, affording by their firm relentless presence there
A secret armory to face invading years.

"OH, DO NOT THOU FORGET," as the old Sunday School song said, "however deeply stained in sin they are thy brothers yet." Yes indeed, mercy and gentleness are two of man's noblest impulses, and so, while the storm is raging about them, I wish shyly to suggest that in the near future we have a "Be Kind to Democrats Day." VITAMIN D AND IRRADIATED FOODS.

COD liver oil as a household remedy has been used for many generations. More than a hundred years ago it was recommended as a sovereign cure for rickets. Just how the oil brought about a deposit of lime in the bones remained a puzzle until 1922 when McCollum and others proved that the oil contained a separate and distinct principle now known as vitamin D. It was then shown that this substance mobilized forces having to do with the growth of bone.

A few years earlier another investigator had exposed children suffering from rickets to ultraviolet light, and it was observed that marked improvement and finally cure followed this procedure. It was then concluded that the action of vitamin D and of ultraviolet light was the same. In other words, both agencies produced healing in rickets.

Then came a rather startling announcement by Steenbock and his coworkers to the effect that foods could be exposed to ultraviolet light, which exposure would endow them with properties that would counteract rickets. From certain other experiments it was found that if a peculiar substance called ergosterol is irradiated [exposed to ultraviolet light] the substance actually represents vitamin D. Ergosterol is present in cod liver oil in small amounts. It also exists in the skin. Whenever the skin is exposed to ultraviolet the ergosterol is rendered active, hence either procedure will lead to the production of a substance that will cure rickets.

The question then arose as to how far we could carry the irradiation of foods and render them more potent as to their vitamin D content. It was found that nearly all food products could be rayed and the result was an increased production of vitamin D. The amount, however, varied with the percentage of ergosterol in the food. Naturally, perishable foods—meats, vegetables, and fruits—are not suitable for irradiation, but cereals, biscuits, and bread are. Breakfast cereals, particularly, lend themselves readily to the process.

Extensive tests of some of these irradiated foods were conducted and it was found that practically all contained an appreciable amount of vitamin D. Through rat feeding experiments McCollum showed that with irradiated biscuits, for example, the amount of mineral salts in the bones was increased from 33 to 48 per cent.

From an economic point of view bread, if it could be irradiated cheaply, would be an exceedingly valuable source of vitamin D. In order to avoid excessive cost it was found that instead of irradiating the flour before manufacture, or the loaf after baking, the shortening and the yeast could be exposed to ultraviolet with the result that vitamin D was produced in definite quantities. By this means a loaf of bread can be raised in vitamin D potency equal to three teaspoonfuls of cod liver oil.

Any food that can be prepared with irradiated yeast or with irradiated ergosterol will prove salutary in the treatment of rickets. It has been shown that after irradiation the vitamin D power of yeast is one hundred times greater than that of cod liver oil, and ergosterol can be treated so that its vitamin D potency is 250,000 times that of cod liver oil.

Even though reinforced vitamin D foods are used for infants and young children, some concentrated form of the bone building vitamin D such as cod liver oil should be included in the diet as a routine measure.

TUBERCULOSIS.

P. F. L. writes: A member of my family has tuberculosis of the blood. Is this contagious?

REPLY.

Tuberculosis is contagious only when the patient excretes or expectorates live tubercle bacilli. The disease is usually spread from sputum that contains living organisms. The bacilli may also be found in the discharges from the bowel, the urine, and occasionally in the saliva.

We do not speak of "tuberculosis of the blood," although the blood may contain tubercle bacilli. We usually describe the disease as of the part of the body affected. Pulmonary tuberculosis means that the lungs are attacked. We refer also to skin tuberculosis, bone tuberculosis, tuberculosis of the intestines, etc.

SCURVY.

REPLY.

Vitamin C in generous quantities is needed. The most potent vitamin C foods are raw cabbage, raw spinach, tomatoes, tomato juice, lemons, oranges, grapefruit, limes. Other good sources are celery, rhubarb, turnips, peas, spinach [cooked], peaches, pineapple juice, raspberries, strawberries, tangerines. Fairly good sources are cooked beans and cabbage, beets, cauliflower, collard, cucumbers, endive, lettuce, onions, green peppers, potatoes, pumpkin, sweet corn, turnip greens, watercress, apples, bananas, grapes, grape juice, pears, watermelons. The amount in milk is variable.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Chicago, May 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In October, 1934, I sold out my interest in a partnership business to the partner, who undertook all responsibility for debts. 1. I wrote the creditors explaining how much inventory was on hand and why I had to sell out. 2. He failed and they want to hold me for $212 owing them. 3. I am a milkman with five dependents and wish to know whether this will be brought before a judge and if notification will be sent me. 4. Can they get garnishment against me? 5. I never signed any contract with this company or my partner. I paid $20 deposit on an apartment and the owner signed a lease to another party for the same flat. It is for May 1, 1935. He says he spent my $20 and I will have to wait three months for it. 6. How can I collect sooner? W. O.

1. The creditors could not be forced to accept a change of debtors.
2. This is within their legal rights.
3. Yes.
4. No, they must first secure judgment against you.
5. We see no reason why the oral testimony should not be sufficient.
6. In view of the small amount involved, we would advise you to try to wait three months, but if you wish to try to force matters you should employ an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CLEAR OF MORTGAGE.

Chicago, May 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have just paid the mortgage on my home and would like to know the proper procedure of closing the matter. Will you kindly inform me what papers are to be recorded and taken care of? E. H. D.

If the papers are in usual form you should have received from the mortgage holder the abstract, insurance policies, trust deed, principal note, and coupons. You should take the trust deed and principal note and all of the paid interest coupons to the trustee named in the trust deed, secure from him a release and record such release.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Chicago, May 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the owner of a business vacant lot, paid for in full, and taxes have been kept up by myself to date. There is a considerable amount of this vacant property adjoining mine which a resident of the locality has been plowing up and farming for several years, without due authority to do so. If I do not offer objection to this procedure can this party, through any legal technicality after a term of years, claim ownership of the land? R. A. C.

If he has no paper title his possession would not give him a legal claim short of twenty years, but we suggest that in order to remove all possibility of difficulty you ask him to enter into a lease agreeing to pay you a nominal rent so as to make clear that his possession is not adverse to you.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

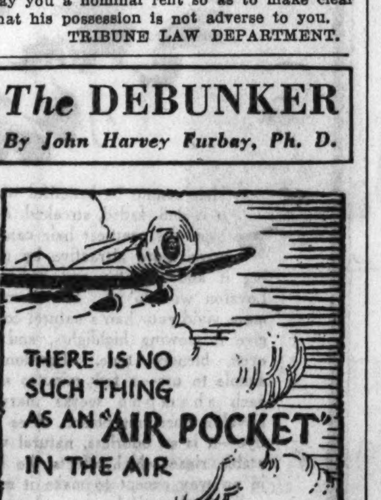
DIVISION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, May 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. An estate consisting of a 160 acre farm was left by the deceased fourteen years ago to nine heirs. I am the wife of the oldest heir, who died twenty months ago. Besides myself, there are three children, one a minor. Now they want to sell the farm to one of the heirs for $5,000. They tell me I will get half of my husband's share and the other half will go to the children. 2. They make no mention of what was done with the proceeds from the farm for the last fourteen years. 3. I refused to sign for the sale and they tell me they will force a sale and that I will have to pay the entire cost of said sale. 4. Do you think $5,000 is a fair price, and [5] should I hold out until they produce the records for the past fourteen years? I know for several years they received $500 a year rent, but we never got any of it. I have an idea they have a prospective buyer who will give them a bigger price after they get through with us. 6. If a guardian will have to be appointed in Illinois [farm is in Kansas] for my boy who is a minor [7] can they put the boy's money in escrow until he is of age? 8. Will it be given to the guardian to be taken care of? A. N.

1. You do not state whether there was a will.
2. There may have been a will leaving a life interest to one of the parties.
3. Ordinarily the cost of a partition sale is assessed against the proceeds of the sale.
4. Obviously, we are not in a position to estimate the value of the real estate.
5. If you have no more information than is given in your letter, we would advise you to consult an attorney before signing.
6. Yes.
7. Yes, in the sense specified under 8.
8. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



There are no holes in the air for planes to drop into. What is usually called an "air pocket" is not a pocket at all, but a disturbance in the air currents, due to changes in temperature, ground contour, etc. This word illustrates the fact that fallacies and wrong ideas are constantly coming into being as new sciences are created and new fields opened.

BUT WHO WOULD OBEY SUCH A LAW?

Chicago, June 4.—To the average thinker, and even to the more thoughtful, a proposal to forbid ransom payments bears the earmarks of being inhuman; but it is not.

So long as the states and the nation permit ransom paying, just so long will this most inhuman and damnable practice continue. I say stop it, and there is only one way to stop it, and that is by [best of all] passing a federal law prohibiting any one, no matter how rich, from paying ransom.

When these lazy, lousy racketeers and murderers come to realize there is no money at the end of the kidnaping rainbow, then and not till then will the worst in the category of crime cease to stir the nation and break the hearts of fathers and mothers.

W. B. FREEMAN.

QUESTION.

Chicago, June 3.—When I received my application at the HOLC last Saturday they gave me a sheet which had the space for three loan companies in the loop. They told me that I must get the names signed by these loan companies, and if I could get a loan from one of these three I should go through with it. If I could not receive a suitable loan from these men then I could go back to the HOLC and receive a loan from them.

When Mr. Roosevelt signed the bill last week doesn't that allow us to get a home loan from the HOLC instead of going to a loan company? E. H. BOWYER.

NOT FORGOTTEN.

Chicago, June 2.—I thought that when Loeb and Leopold were convicted and sent to prison the idea was to punish them for their crime, but it seems now that the idea was to punish all of their relatives. Every little while we read an item about the boys, their birthdays, how long they have been locked up, and so on. Why keep opening old sores? Why not drop the matter and let their relatives have a chance to forget their misfortune? JOHN D. POLLARD, M. D.

LILACS IN THE PARK.

Chicago, June 2.—Answering Katherine Pope's letter as to why we don't have lilacs in our parks: She should live near the Lincoln park gardens where I do and she would understand.

All through the flower season groups of young rowdies pass our place at night laughing gleefully and boasting about how many flowers they had snatched in the dark.

In a two blocks walk along the edge of the park I saw the only two lilac bushes which were left, broken at the roots. The long thick stalks, too large to break or tear off, were lying on the ground dying. L. HAMILTON.

SCHOOL CLERKS.

Chicago, June 3.—Much is being said these days about pensioning the 65 year old teachers to make places for the many normal school graduates who have waited long for positions.

It seems to me a better solution of the problem would be to assign these waiting applicants to the school clerkships where they rightfully belong. The training they have had prepares them for these positions and their work as clerks in the schools rounds out their normal school training for teaching.

These positions rightfully belong to the normal graduates and were filled by these prospective teachers until a former administration, about five years ago, conceived the idea of creating these civil service, vote getting positions. This was hurriedly put through to the chagrin of the normal students and for no benefit to the schools.

The clerk is expected to take charge of a classroom if an emergency occurs, but these civil service clerks are not prepared for this kind of work.

There are from 300 to 500 clerks employed by the board of education in the city schools. F. S.

THE NEXT MOVE.

Chicago, June 1.—May I ask any one to give me any reason why an officer who openly flaunts the constitution should not, in the same breath, either offer his resignation or challenge impeachment?

May I ask if the constituted authorities have any choice but to bring impeachment proceedings where the officer publishes his complete belief in the necessity of scrapping the constitution which he so lately and so publicly promised to support?

It would seem that the proper authorities should no longer hesitate to start impeachment proceedings lest the public should classify them as aiding and abetting the overthrow of the constitution.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

HIGH COURT GETS DUAL PICTURE OF MRS. VANDERBILT

Decision Is Reserved in Custody Case.

New York, June 6.—(AP)—The fight for custody of 11 year old Gloria Vanderbilt was carried before the appellate division of Supreme court today with opposing lawyers alternately denouncing and defending the girl's mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt.

During the hearing, which ended with the court reserving decision, the weeping Mrs. Vanderbilt was pictured on the one hand as a woman who continually neglected her child for social pleasures and on the other as a loving mother who was made the victim of a "plot" to separate her from her daughter.

Charges Maternal Neglect.

Reviewing the evidence adduced before Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew, who decided that little Gloria should spend five days a week with her paternal aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, counsel for the latter urged that Justice Carew's decision be upheld and said:

"The testimony clearly shows that Mrs. Vanderbilt's actions with regard to her child formed a climax of maternal neglect that warped the mental, spiritual, and physical nature of this child."

The attorney, Joseph M. Proskauer, charged that Mrs. Vanderbilt followed "a hectic life of pleasure in this country and abroad while her daughter, whom he referred to as "this poor little rich girl," grew ill from lack of proper care.

"Mrs. Whitney urged the child to go to her mother," he said, "but the little girl screamed: 'If you send me back I'll kill myself. I hate her. I hate her'."

Draws Different Picture.

Drawing an entirely different picture, Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt, said the mother showed a steadfast "affection and love for Gloria that always continued from the time the child was born."

He cited the "X's," representing kisses, which appeared on letters from Gloria to her mother in support of his contention that there was a warm bond of affection between the two.

Charging that Mrs. Vanderbilt was the victim of a "plot," by which her own servants were hired to spy on her, Burkan declared she was placed under "espionage and surveillance" as early as 1932.

Hits Hohenlohe Angle.

After seeking to discredit testimony that linked Mrs. Vanderbilt's name with those of Prince Hohenlohe and Lady Milford-Haven, Burkan pointed to his client and said:

"This woman now stands destroyed. We ask this court to give us our vindication. As things stand now no decent man or woman can invite her into their homes."

Proskauer contended that Mrs. Vanderbilt's only concern in keeping her daughter's custody was a fear that her allowance might be cut. He referred to her friendship with A. C. Blumenthal as "the blumey period of hectic life that this woman was leading."

When he began to go into the religious aspects of the case, presiding Justice Francis Martin halted him, saying the court would decide the case on the sole question of "in what way the child will be most benefitted."

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was accompanied by her sister, Lady Furness, wept during Proskauer's arraignment of her habits. Mrs. Whitney also attended the hearing, but showed no emotion.

END JURISDICTION OF BRITISH COURT OVER DOMINIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 6.—"The last fetter," in the words of the lord chief justice of England, which bound Ireland to England was struck off today by a decision of the judicial committee of the privy council, which hitherto has been considered the last court of appeal of the British empire.

The judicial committee handed down decisions in two cases, one from the Irish Free State and one from Canada, so Canada is equilly liberated, and implicitly all other self-governing dominions.

Lord Sankey, lord chief justice, who rendered the judgment, based it on the statute of Westminster. He held the statute gave the legislatures of the dominions the right to abrogate appeals o the privy council from their own Supreme courts if they so desired.

ELECTRIC STRIKE ENDS DESPITE SOME DISCORD

Boyle Keeps Terms Mum; Peace in Toledo.

Belleville, Ill., June 6.—[Special.]—A new labor dispute threatened for several hours this morning to prevent resumption of service by the Illinois Power and Light company here. Differences quickly were adjusted, however, and tonight the company's plants once more were operating normally.

The new difficulty arose when the 250 electrical workers who had been on strike for two months until their demands were settled last night appeared for work. They were prevented from entering the plant by picket lines of union gas fitters. They had announced at 2 a. m. today that they too wanted wage increases comparable to those given to the electricians.

Will Arbitrate Demands.

By eleven this morning, however, the picket lines were disbanded. Both the electricians and the pickets went to work together. Demands of the gas fitters were not met, company officials said tonight. The strike was called off while the two sides arbitrate the issues.

Tonight this city had full gas and electric service for the first time in 60 days. The 52 other communities served by the same light and power company all were receiving electricity. The gas service is not yet completely restored, but it will be normal within two days, company engineers said.

Other Plants Resume Work.

The 6,000 men thrown out of jobs because of the electric power famine through this section of the state were back at work today. Manufacturing plants and business houses, crippled by the power famine, were humming again.

"Umbrella Mike" Boyle, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who was in charge of the negotiations here for the electrical workers, refused today to disclose what wage or hour concessions the strikers won. He said he was going to Danville.

The strike began on April 3, in the central Illinois district and spread to southern Illinois. Steel towers carrying power lines were dynamited, wires were cut, and machinery wrecked by vandals who drained off oil from transformers, during the two months.

Toledo Edison Strike Ends.

Toledo, O., June 6.—[Special.]—Electrical and office workers in the plant of the Toledo Edison company resumed work this morning. Industrial activity, curtailed yesterday in Toledo and several other cities in southern Michigan and northern Ohio, was proceeding as usual.

At the massmeeting last night, in which the strikers voted 237 to 22 to return to work, Oliver Myers, business agent, told the workers that President Roosevelt, the department of labor, and several local agencies were anxious for the strike to end.

Negotiations between representatives of the workers and plant officials are to be resumed next week in New York City, Myers said today.

ASKS MINNEAPOLIS COURT TO BAR POLICE FROM SEIZING PAPER

Minneapolis, Minn., June 6.—[Special.]—Arthur Kasherman, publisher of the Public Press, this afternoon filed an order directing the city of Minneapolis, Mayor A. G. Brainbridge, and Chief of Police Michael J. Johannes to show cause tomorrow why they should not be enjoined from interfering with the distribution of the publication.

District Judge W. C. Leary signed the order to show cause, but refused to sign a temporary restraining order.

About 20,000 copies of the Public Press issued on May 25 were seized by police as they were being distributed to newsstands, Kasherman charges. The issue contained charges that "police protection" was furnished vice and gambling resorts.

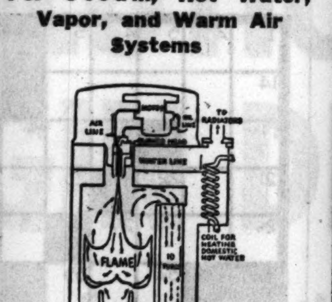
For Steam, Hot Water, Vapor, and Warm Air Systems



Burner at top, oil burns downward. Flue connection at bottom. Heat usually lost up chimney is trapped.

It burns oil in a different and better way. The burner is at the top. The oil moves downward in a gentle, quiet flame.

When the flame approaches the bottom of the firebox, it is turned upward by a flow of air. The hot gases rise to the top of the firebox. Then they are led downward again, through water-surrounded tubes, to the exit flue at the bottom.

This exclusive boiler design not only gets all practicable heat out of the oil, but traps the heat usually lost up the chimney by natural draft, so that it is absorbed by the furnace water.

All this means money in your pocket. You can take the word of thousands of owners who report fuel savings from 20% to 50%!

Plenty of domestic hot water winter and summer. The water heater is built into the furnace. In fact, all the parts are inside one handsome, lacquered steel shell. The G-E is the only complete, co-ordinated automatic oil furnace—every part designed and built to work with every other part.

CARDINAL SEES NO MILLENNIUM IN NEW THEORIES

Asks Generous Gifts to Charity Sunday.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

In an appeal that all Catholics of he Chicago archdiocese make generous contributions to the church's charitable institutions on Sunday, Cardinal Mundelein has asked his people not to forget that despite a government's "new and often untried experiments," the church "is ever interested in the advancement and betterment of her children's physical and social condition as well as their spiritual welfare."

Sunday is the feast of Pentecost, sometimes known as Whitsunday, or the birthday of the Christian church. Cardinal Mundelein pointed out in his appeal that Pentecost Sunday for many years has been recognized in this diocese as a day for special charitable giving.

Sees No Early Millenium.

The cardinal declared that the church "is not easily swept away by new theories and remedies that promise an early millenium for the world. She has lived for twenty centuries, she has seen kingdoms come and kingdoms go and peoples vanish from the earth, and constantly she has verified the words of her divine founder, 'the poor you have always with you.'"

While the cardinal pointed out in his appeal that although the poor are always to be found, yet the church would lack prudence if she endeavored to keep those who are poor always poor, or those who are untaught, always in ignorance, or halted the betterment of the social and financial condition of the laboring and toiling masses.

"As long as you did it to one of these you did it unto me," was quoted by the cardinal as Christ's precept for church charity, which, he added, is reinforced throughout the New Testament by examples of preaching and practice.

Preach and Practice Charity.

"And what he [Christ] taught and did, that is what he expects his church to teach and do," the cardinal's appeal went on. "From the very beginning the church has preached charity and has practiced charity. That is the very life of the church; whenever and wherever bishops or priests neglected it, there invariably the church would go into decline.

"It is hardy possible to think of the Church of Christ as divorced from her mission of charity."

Cardinal Mundelein then pointed to the sweep of the church's charitable institutions, which combine to meet every human need. He pointed to "the modern militia of Christ, the devoted laymen of our Society of St. Vincent de Paul, who because inspired by a genuine love of their neighbor, perform their mission of charity far better than any body of so-called trained workers, as recent experience has shown."

Anniversary for Cardinal.

Sunday's annual pontifical mass, which is to be celebrated by Cardinal Mundelein at Holy Name cathedral, will also commemorate the 50th anniversary of the cardinal's first holy communion, and the 40th anniversary of the first mass he offered as a priest.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Birdling Takes Ride

June 6, 1935.

ONE of the little mutant pheasant chicks took a ride yesterday that wasn't on his schedule. He must have been just as surprised as I was over what happened. Carl and I went down to the pens where the bantam hens and the Japanese silkies are sitting on game bird eggs.

The mutant pheasants are just coming out of the eggs so it is mighty interesting to look them over. When we gently lifted one of the bantams to see how many more mutants had hatched out we counted five. They are handsome little dark colored fellows. One egg has half opened with a squirming chick just ready to step out into the world.

As Carl held the hen in his hands a few feet above the nest imagine our surprise to see a baby chick poke its head out of the feathers of the hen! He had burrowed so deep into the warm plumage of the bantam that he had been lifted right up with the setting hen. Needless to say we placed both hen and chick on the nest in a hurry so that the little fellow wouldn't scramble out of his feather bed and fall to the ground.

When we looked at the silky hen incubating the caller and wood ducks we encountered a little problem. The caller ducks are out—and walking around. This family has so intrigued the setting hen that she is quitting her job of incubating the three wood duck eggs. When Carl and I saw the situation it was decided to take the three eggs not hatched and give them to another hen in the next pen.

The 14 little Muscovy ducklings that are having the time of their lives on one of the ponds here at the Wheaton farm don't know it, but they have distinguished company this season. A pair of grebes [helldivers as they are commonly known] have moved into this pond and are nesting there. Two years ago I found the nest of a grebe on this pond and four little ones.

Last season the wise grebes apparently decided that the drouth was too severe to risk their home on a small body of water, so they built a nest elsewhere. Now the pond is at a high level so they are going to raise a family on the old homesite.

The next time I hike to this pond I am going to take along something to eat for the Muscovy ducklings. They are so tame, come up to you so quickly and stand around so patiently looking for a tidbit, that you want to sit down on the bank and feed them. Yesterday the 14 dogged my footsteps all around the pond while I was trying to locate the grebe's nest. And they followed me around in spite of the advice of the old duck in charge of them who obviously was quite suspicious of me.

When I returned to the barnyard I saw a deluded barred rock hen that insists upon incubating a clutch of ten guinea hen eggs which never will produce a thing. This nest was flooded by a heavy spring rain and the eggs were chilled. Although the guinea chicks should have hatched out a week ago, the poor old barred rock is still on her hopeless job of bringing out a family.

The woods on the farm never will have a more beautiful carpet of flowers, nor a richer fragrance than they have now. It is wild geranium and mandrake week—with the purple geraniums holding their heads high above the ground. In the east woods there are thousands of these blossoms standing among the umbrella tops of the mandrakes whose heavy, sweet fragrance is everywhere. And adding to the beauty of the wood plots are some late blossoming haws—now white with blossoms.

PAGEANT TELLS OF RED CROSS HISTORY HERE

Chicago Group Reviews 20 Years' Work.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The dramatic history of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, from the Eastland disaster, which occurred in 1915, one month after the chapter's formal organization, to the less thrilling but "more difficult" job it is fulfilling now among unemployed war veterans, was outlined yesterday in a pageant at the chapter's twentieth anniversary celebration. More than 500 persons attended the chapter's anniversary luncheon in the Congress hotel.

That an intensive organization campaign to perfect the chapter's disaster preparedness setup is expected this year was indicated in an annual report prepared by James T. Nicholson, manager.

New Organization Needed.

"The formation of a revised disaster preparedness plan is under way," this section of the report read. "While a similar organization was perfected a few years ago, changing conditions have made necessary a new organization. The chapter territory is being divided into disaster divisions, each with a subcommittee organization which will function toward preparedness before disaster and as a relief agent in the emergency following any catastrophe which may occur."

During 11 months of the fiscal year which ends June 30, a total of 2,200 new cases were registered by the war service department, of which 600 are under care, the balance receiving needed family service.

Volunteers Number 3,500.

Volunteers included nearly 3,500 women serving in the chapter workrooms and 1,500 additional women working in churches, schools, and club auxiliaries. More than 70,000 garments and 85,000 surgical dressings were made by them, including all layettes required by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

More than 2,600 students were certified after completing Red Cross first aid courses. Members of the Cook county highway police department received their certificates for first aid courses at the meeting through Sherif John Toman. Boy and Girl Scout troops, fire and police department men, and industrial employés attended in all 115 classes in first aid instruction.

At Speakers' Table.

At the speakers' table were James B. Forgan Jr., chairman of the chapter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mrs. Augustus Carpenter, Miss Edna Foley of the Visiting Nurse association, Col. A. A. Sprague, Col. Hugh Scott of Hines Memorial hospital, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, and Mrs. Ellen S. Ament.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham portrayed the "spirit of the Red Cross" in the pageant. Mrs. Ament, Mrs. Cudahy, and Mrs. Crane, wearing red veils with the Red Cross uniform, represented the administrative volunteer service. Miss Margot Atkin was the narrator. More than 150 persons took part, including children and families of veterans.

Prior to the pageant Brig. Gen. S. C. Stanton, retired, was presented with a certificate for meritorious service for the Red Cross since 1893.

LAVAL SELECTS FRENCH CABINET AMID NEW RIOTS

Acts to Halt Country's Money Crisis.

of the second day of the crisis was even more desperate. Francois Pietri, navy minister, who had seemed to be making headway, suddenly ran into insurmountable difficulties.

Bank of France Steps In.

It was rumored that the Bank of France, determined to support only a government prepared to ask unlimited financial power from the chamber, forced Pietri to pass in his hand by threatening to shut down on credit facilities when the state tries to raise cash for pay rolls June 15.

Following Pietri's failure, President Lebrun called back Bouisson, whose answer was an angry "No." Then in desperation the president summoned former Premier Edouard Herriot, who would not even admit he had been officially asked to form a cabinet, and then Yvon Delbos, one of the radical Socialist firebrands. The latter flatly declined the dangerous honor.

Bided His Time.

Throughout the crisis he had bided his time, and waited until all the cards were stacked in his favor. Naturally he did not create the crisis, but he correctly estimated its evolution and foresaw the turn of events. He could easily have had the premiership after Premier Flandin fell, but wisely kept himself in the background.

Yesterday he agreed to look into the situation, but even when he seemed assured of a small majority, his instinctive Auvergnat caution, which has guided him unscathed through the mazes of European diplomacy, caused him to turn down once more the tempting chance of becoming the country's savior.

Steps In at Crucial Time.

Another day of confusion eliminated the field and left Laval standing alone with the whole country clamoring for him. By evening the situation was looming in the eyes of most Frenchmen as a crisis as dramatic as that of February, 1934, when former President Gaston Doumergue was called back from retirement, or that of 1926 when the Poincare inflation epic commenced.

By holding out long enough to let the Radical Socialists turn down a chance of making the government, Laval was able to impose his own conditions on that powerful party and that is just what he has done.

When the chamber has voted he will wield a greater power over France's finances than any Republican premier has done.

Will Avoid Deflation.

Laval is reported to have very definite ideas of what he will do with his unlimited powers. There is strong reason to believe that he has no intention of carrying out a drastic deflation which might arouse popular resistance, but simply will make a few obvious reforms to clear up the worst of France's financial mess.

By the end of the summer, if all goes well, it is anticipated that public hostility to devaluation, which is rapidly diminishing, will have dwindled to the point where a strong government can take any measures it sees fit to align the franc with the dollar and the pound.

This may or may not solve France's financial problems, but will definitly avert the greatest danger facing the third republic—civil war over the issue of devaluation.

Italian Princess, a Cousin of King, to Marry Duke

TURIN, Italy, June 6.—(AP)—Princess Maria Adelaide, a cousin of the king, and the Duke Anticoli published banns in the city hall today, implying an imminent marriage.

REPORT PIUS TO CHANGE METHOD OF NAMING POPES

ROME, June 6.—(AP)—Reports persisted in Italian official circles tonight that Pope Pius plans to reorganize the conclave for election of future popes.

Death has reduced the number of cardinals to the unusually low figure of 50, compared to the possible, but never reached, maximum of 70.

Many prelates said the pope is debating the project of transferring the right to elect the pope from the cardinals alone to the cardinals and bishops meeting together—or to the cardinals and archbishops together. The United States electors would thereby be increased from four to well over 100.

COL. McMULLEN, FORMER PATENTS CHIEF, INDICTED

Faces Charges of Taking Lobby Gratuities.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Col. Joseph I. McMullen, former chief of the patents section of the judge advocate general's office, was indicted today by the District of Columbia grand jury on a charge of accepting gratuities from a firm lobbying against a tax measure pending before congress in 1932.

Second to Face Charges.

Col. McMullen is the second high war department officer to face charges as a result of the sweeping investigation into lobbying within the department by the house military affairs committee. Col. Alexander E. Williams, former assistant quartermaster general, was recently sentenced to dismissal from the service by a court-martial for accepting a $2,500 loan from a tire tube lobbyist.

The grand jury indicted McMullen on two counts. One alleges he received a retainer of $1,500 on July 6, 1932, from the Cuban-American Manganese corporation for representing it in opposing a proposed excise tax on importation of the metal. The second count alleges he accepted $250 on Jan. 1, 1933, from the same corporation as monthly compensation.

Measure Introduced in 1932.

A measure to impose the excise tax was introduced in congress in 1932. The house investigating committee learned that the Cuban-American firm was active in fighting its passage.

During the period of his alleged lobbying activities McMullen is said to have operated a private law office. He told the military affairs committee that the gratuities were for legal services.

The section of the United States penal code under which McMullen was indicted makes it a criminal offense for an officer to receive compensation from a private source for services rendered or to be rendered in relation to a matter in which the United States is interested.

ECUADOR FOILS SOCIALIST PLOT; NABS ARMY MEN

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, June 6.—(AP)—A socialistic revolutionary conspiracy uncovered today in the military garrison at Porto Viejo was confined to that city, authorities asserted.

Maj. José Paredes, judge advocate general of the army, was en route to the city to conduct an investigation into the plot, in connection with which four officers were arrested.

The governor of this province announced that "supporters of Col. Luis Larrea Alba [opposition leader who returned from exile May 29] attempted to gain possession of the barrack at Porto Viejo but failed due to the loyalty of the troops."

WOMAN ENDS HER LIFE.

Mrs. Jennie Matousek, 48 years old, wife of an unemployed butcher, committed suicide yesterday by shooting herself in the head in her home at 4548 South Kenilworth avenue, Forest View.

DEBRIS BLASTED IN FLOOD PATH AT KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., June 6.—[Special.]—Army engineers dynamited driftwood piled against the piers of several bridges over the Kaw and Missouri rivers near here today as the crest of the flood poured past this city.

The dynamite crews were kept busy preventing the formation of dams by the drifting trees and debris carried by the surging waters. The engineers predicted that if the channels were kept clear there need be no fear of an overflow of the rivers into the low lying industrial or residential sections.

To the west nearly 80,000 acres of rich potato growing farm land was under water as the river melted dikes near Lawrence. Most of North Lawrence was under water. Nearly 2,000 farmers were homeless.

Failure of the levee north of Lawrence allowed the river to spread over another 125 miles of low farm land.

The crest of the flood is expected to flow into the Mississippi near Hermann, Mo. There 80,000 acres of bottom lands already are under water tonight. Army engineers said the Mississippi would not rise appreciably.

At McCook, Neb., today seven more bodies of victims of the tornado and flood which swept the Republican river valley a week ago were recovered. The Red Cross officials here now estimate the death toll in Nebraska at 145.

Extremists Burn Church in Spain; 5 Die as Walls Fall

LERIDA, Spain, June 6.—(AP)—Dispatches from the village of Surri today said extremists there had burned a church and that the collasping walls killed five persons and injured eight critically. The dead were reported to be three women and two men. Civil guards took over the control of public order and began an investigation.

APPROVAL GIVEN TO TREATY FOR CHECK ON ARMS

Pact Has Been Signed by Forty Nations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—The senate, without a record vote, tonight confirmed for the second time a convention prohibiting the exportation of arms and munitions of war without the consent of the countries to which they are consigned. The convention has been signed by 40 nations.

Originally transmitted to the senate by President Coolidge in 1926, the treaty was not acted upon until June 15, 1934, when the senate ratified it with a reservation providing:

"That such adherence to this treaty shall not be construed as denying any right of sovereignty which the Kingdom of Persia [Iran] may have in and to the Persian gulf, or to the waters thereof."

Opposed by Great Britain.

Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] submitted this reservation and it was accepted without discussion. Great Britain, however, promptly objected, in informal conversations, asserting that she always had maintained a patrol over the waters of the gulf to prohibit gun running and slave trading.

The Iranian government is in dispute with Great Britain over the sovereignty of the Island Bahrein, a valuable oil concession, and by special treaty, Great Britain is obligated to protect the Shaikh of Bahrein against assaults upon his territory.

The senate recalled the treaty early this year, at the request of the state department, and the foreign relations committee eliminated the reservation. Senator King today sought to put in a modified reservation disclaiming "any opinion or view by the United States as to the sovereignty or right of any nation in the Persian gulf." But this was rejected.

"Too Much Sovereignty."

"I want to fix it so that Persia's sovereignty over the gulf shall not be affected," King said. "They regard it as their lake, just as we regard Lake Michigan as ours. Great Britain already has sovereignty over too many of the waters of the world anyway."

Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, argued that the King proposal was meaningless and therefore should not be included. He said the convention was "one of the most valuable treaties ever agreed to, constituting a far step in advance in the orderly control of arms, ammunition, and implements of war."

Besides prohibiting the shipment of arms to any country without its permission, the treaty sets up a licensing system designed to permit a lawful export to individuals, corporations, and partnerships. It prohibits exportation to certain areas where there is a lack of governmental control and where there is a tendency to banditry. It requires full publicity, every 90 days, of all arms shipped from the signatory countries, with their destinations.

U. OF C. RADICAL INQUIRY WILL BE RESUMED TODAY

Hutchins and Jung to Take Stand.

The state senate committee which is investigating charges of radicalism on the campuses of tax exempt and tax supported universities and colleges in Illinois will hold its third hearing this morning. The inquiry is being conducted under a resolution offered by Senator Charles W. Baker [Rep., Monroe Center] as a result of allegations of radicalism made by Charles R. Walgreen, head of the drug store chain.

The session today will open at 10 a. m. in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle. Harry Jung, head of the American Vigilant Intelligence association; Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, and George A. Works, the university's dean of students, are to appear as witnesses. Several students also will be called.

Attempt to Restrict Evidence.

Counsel for the university and members of the committee are understood to plan limitation of the testimony to facts concerning actual classroom instruction in subversive "isms," and to an explanation of the policy of Dean Works' office toward campus organizations, over all of which he has direct supervision.

Much of the testimony thus far at the two sessions of the committee has concerned the off campus activities of University of Chicago professors in various organizations of a radical nature.

Senator Baker has indicated that he will question Dr. Hutchins concerning his reputed participation in a campaign for students for the Soviet Anglo-American Institute to be held in Moscow this summer. Dr. Hutchins has agreed to be present at the hearing.

Students Protest Ousters.

At the university yesterday 28 students met in the Classics building to protest the university order disbanding the Socialist club and the university chapter of the National Student league.

The meeting was addressed by Albert Goldstein, Georg Mann, graduate student, who was president of the Socialist club, and Judith Schoenberg, a junior, who headed the Student league chapter. The gathering was held under the auspices of the radical continuation committee of the anti-war strike.

Indicted Woman Fined for Striking Cafe Owner

Mrs. Bella Butman, who is under indictment with six others for conspiracy to appropriate the $140,000 estate of James Thomas Kelly, West Madison street miser, was fined $50 yesterday by Judge Edgar A. Jonas in the Women's court for assaulting a restaurant owner in a dispute over change. The complaint was signed by Nick Mallas, owner of a restaurant at 509 Madison street, who said Mrs. Butman struck him and broke his glasses. Mrs. Butman, who said her real name is Bush, admitted that her husband, Julius Bush, and another companion had been drinking.

REVOLUTION IN GIN DISTILLING!

"Controlled Condensation" Developed by Hiram Walker Assures Uniform Gin Flavor

300-Year-Old Gin Problem Solved

For more than 300 years people have wondered why gin should be smooth one time and not so smooth the next.

You yourself, for example, have often mixed your favorite cocktail, using the same proportions as usual, without getting the same results as usual.

Neither you nor your recipe is to blame—it's the gin. For, contrary to popular belief, good gin is the most difficult liquor in the world to make!

Juniper berries, coriander seed, sweet orange peel and other essential gin ingredients, vary in flavor not only from each other—but also from themselves!

Nobody Need Ever Complain Again!

For 300 years, all that the finest gin formula could do was to control the proportions of the ingredients . . . . but Hiram Walker's "C. C." Process actually controls the flavor variations of these ingredients! It eliminates the danger of any one flavor "running wild" and coming through too strong!

This remarkable "C. C." Process, in use since the opening of Hiram Walker's Peoria distillery, a year ago, enables you to buy, mix, serve and taste a gin so smooth and so perfectly balanced, that nobody need ever complain of variations in flavor. For Hiram Walker has added to the world's most famous formula for flavor, the world's most important process for uniformity.

No Extra Cost to You

Hiram Walker's London Dry Gin is distilled from grain spirits—a very important distinction to remember in gin. And the "C. C." Process is an assurance of flavor perfection day in and day out, in the bottle you buy any day! It will pay you to insist upon this world-famous gin—it costs no more.

TEACHERS RUSH TO RETIRE; FEAR ANNUITY CUTS

80 Apply as Legislature Considers New Law.

Teachers are appearing daily at the board of education offices to apply for voluntary retirement before the Illinois general assembly acts on bills that would level their retirement gratuities, it was disclosed yesterday.

Under the present law a retired teacher may draw a pension of $1,000 plus a maximum retirement payment of $1,500, or a total of $2,500 a year. Under the proposed law, retirement payments would be limited to $500 a year, which, with the $1,000 pension, would provide a total annual income of $1,500 a year.

80 Ask for Retirement.

The school board will be asked to act on the applications of 76 teachers and four principals at its meeting next Wednesday. This total of 80 applying during the last few days shows the extent of the rush when compared to the total of 141 who applied for the entire fiscal year ending last July 1.

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, pointed out that with the regular pension and retirement payments combined, a maximum total of $2,500, a teacher could receive more by resigning than many of the teachers now working in the schools.

There are 9,718 persons in the Chicago teaching force of 14,000, including substitutes, whose annual salaries are now below $2,500, taking into account economy cuts of 23 per cent. These cuts were not imposed on those who enjoy retirement payments inasmuch as the amounts were set by statute.

200 Get $2,500 a Year.

There are 200 former Chicago teachers drawing $2,500 annually from the pension and retirement payments.

"We expect to save $600,000 a year by reducing the retirement payments," say McCahey, who returned to Chicago yesterday from Springfield where he had urged the reduction. "There isn't another retirement system like this one in any school board of the country. The public should know the facts."

The regular pension, entirely separate from the retirement setup, is paid from a fund to which the teachers themselves contribute. A teacher pays at the start $4.50 a month and payments are graded upward to $10 a month as the salary increases. Teacher contributions make up 25 per cent of the pensions paid, while the rest comes from a tax levy.

Paid Out of School Funds.

The retirement payments are paid out of the school educational or operating fund in their entirety. The teacher is required to serve 15 out of the last 20 years in Chicago. Retiring at the age of 65, a teacher would receive $1,000 a year. One hundred dollars is added for each year up to the age of 70, when the teacher is eligible on retirement to obtain the maximum of $1,500.

In 1926, when the retirement act went into effect, the board paid out $12,000, with twenty persons resigning from the system. The appropriation has grown by leaps and bounds until this year the budget contains an appropriation of $1,125,000 for retirement payments alone, or the equivalent of a week's pay for all employés of the Chicago system. Since the act went into effect 1,057 have voluntarily retired to come under the payments.

Lower Retirement Age Urged.

The proposed legislation in Springfield would not touch the regular teachers' pension plan, but would reduce the retirement payment to $500, and provide for a compulsory retirement at 65 years of age. School officials contend that this would make for more efficiency and provide an opportunity for 4,000 qualified young women who are on the waiting list for assignment in the system.

Earlier in the day the school board's special lease committee, headed by Trustee Harry Solomon, met and discussed plans for obtaining defaulted rent payments. Solomon declared that lessees of school property would either have to pay or get out. He said the committee had talked of requiring lessees in the future to put three months' rent in escrow to be taken by the board in the event of a default.

Ickes Urges 'Service Charges' in Lieu of Taxes on Housing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today advocated "service charges" in lieu of taxes on federally aided housing projects and urged that he be given authority to determine what portion of the "service charges" would be returned to the local authorities.

Ickes' plan to remove large blocks of tax values from the jurisdiction of the municipalities was proposed before the senate education and labor committee in connection with the Wagner housing bill. The bill would authorize an appropriation of 800 million dollars for loans and grants to local housing authorities, or for federal housing projects where no such authorities existed. The 250 million dollar allocation for housing in the four billion dollar work relief bill could be applied as a credit against the 800 million appropriation.

Against Outright Exemption.

Langdon Post, housing commissioner of New York City, advocated outright exemption of housing projects from local taxation, but Ickes said he thought this plan would be unwise. Instead, he would assess a "service charge" on each room against the tenant, the money to be paid to the federal housing division, which in turn would decide what amount should be returned to the local authorities in lieu of taxes.

Ickes also objected to the provisions of the bill vesting complete control of the housing activities in the federal housing director, saying it should be vested "directly in the secretary of the interior." He opposed a provision making it mandatory upon the housing division to give precedence in allotments to local housing authorities, saying this would result in "a waste of experience and information the housing division has accumulated."

La Guardia Position Cited.

Mayor La Guardia of New York in urging passage of the bill said it was "out of the question to provide housing in keeping with the standards of this age and to eliminate slums with private capital."

La Guardia also lamented the difficulties encountered by the government in its housing activities, much of which he blamed "on the semicolon boys here in Washington who distort the constitution dotting i's and crossing t's against the interests of the common good."

He said the plans of the government to eliminate congested slum areas created artificial land values which made it necessary either to allow subsidies or else build elsewhere.

Property Owners Complain.

"When we decide to build elsewhere the real estate people complain that their property is injured," he said. "Of course it's injured, but there's nothing sacred about 6 per cent. After their property is left vacant for a while and the profit is taken out the high land values will force them to raze the slums and replace them with decent housing."

Commissioner Post said a billion and a half dollars could be spent on housing New York alone and that the city "could profitably exempt it from taxation to the extent of $10,000,000 a year."

In reply to this La Guardia said he could "absorb exemptions of $100,000,000 a year in the assessed valuation without feeling the pinch."

CLASH ON DELAY IN CERMAK ROAD VIADUCT PLANS

Yesterday's hearing before the Illinois commerce commission on the construction of a viaduct for the New York Central and Rock Island railroads over the proposed widening of Cermak road at Clark street was enlivened by clashes among lawyers for the commission, the city, the Chicago Surface Lines, and the state highway department.

Attorney Harry Weber for the surface lines asked a delay in order to present plans now being prepared to show that the viaduct in its present tentative form would create hazards to the safe operation of street cars and automobiles.

"I object to this stalling by the surface lines," said James Danaher, attorney for the city. He was joined in his objection by Lee Freedman, assistant attorney for the commerce commission.

"We are not stalling," Weber retorted angrily, "and I protest against the poisonous situation counsel for the city is trying to create."

He scoffed at Danaher's warning that too much delay in the construction of the viaduct might mean that the government will dedicate for other projects funds now earmarked for this improvement. Weber asked if the state highway department is ready to submit its plans for the street widening.

ITALIAN FLAME THROWERS SAIL FOR AFRICAN DUTY

Press Calls Britain Foe in New Attacks.

ROME, June 6.—(AP)—An Italian newspaper attack on Great Britain's opposition to Italy's East African plans climaxed in open talk of war between the two European nations today even as Italy rushed more soldiers into Africa.

"If it is war she [Britain] is looking for instead of peace," the newspaper Ottobre said, "she can have it."

Simultaneously 100 modern flame throwers were shipped to Benito Mussolini's war machine assembled in East Africa, and the first detachment of the Sabauda division, the third to be sent across the Mediterranean and down the Red sea, sailed from Cagliari, Sardinia.

Britain an Enemy.

Ottobre, whose edition authorities quickly seized, said England was going far toward provoking war in Europe, or even the world, by placing obstacles in the way of Il Duce's African policy.

"Italy's enemy in East Africa is not so much Ethiopia as England," said its editorial.

"Italy does not want to find herself waging war tomorrow against a vassal of Britain. She prefers to regulate her accounts with a power which thinks she can remain in the shadow while arming the hand of an assassin.

"We do not always have to live under the eternal weight of Malta, Suez and Gibraltar," it asserted defiantly. "The development of aviation has changed the value of certain strategic points."

The Giornale d'Italia, attacking the alleged British attitude of covetousness, stated that England wants to link Cairo with Cape Town along an uninterrupted line from north to south Africa. The paper said that for this reason England, through the league of nations, is trying to prevent Italian action in Ethiopia, and permits the arming of Ethiopia through the Sudan and British Somaliland.

Arbitors Meet.

Another newspaper, Messagero, said England has arranged a subsidy with Emperor Haile Selaissie of Ethiopia to give his troops regular wages.

Meanwhile, in Milan, the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission held its first meeting. Pitman B. Potter of the United States, one of the members acting for Ethiopia, said: "The meeting was purely preliminary and concerned with matters of procedure and establishment of a program of study." The commission, he said, will not attempt to go into the question of "border delimitation."

SUIT IS DISMISSED SO NEW ONE JUST LIKE IT CAN GO ON

A few minutes after her suit for separate maintenance against Otto Naus was dismissed in the Superior court yesterday, Mrs. Lillian Naus 3444 South Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, filed a similar bill in the Circuit court through her attorney, Norman Becker. In seeking dismissal of the Superior court action, Mrs. Naus explained that she returned to her husband at his request last May 20, three months after she filed the bill. Later, she said, her husband told her he had suggested the reconciliation for the sole purpose of avoiding the risk of an alimony burden. Accordingly, she sought to clear the records for a new action based on allegations of cruel acts subsequent to the "reconciliation."

MY HOUSEHOLD LINENS IN RAGS ALL ON ACCOUNT OF CHEAP SOAP

HARSH ALKALI and hard rubbing simply wrecked the linens I had been so proud of. Good soap would have saved them—and saved me a lot of grief and hard work! Believe ME! I changed to American Family just in the nick of time.

Believe Me, I Changed to American Family Just in the Nick of Time

All my sheets and towels and tablecloths would have gone the same way—if I had not changed to American Family when I did! My friends knew what they were talking about when they told me there is only one soap to use in this hard lake water—and that's American Family. No other soap makes such rich double-suds, no other soap is as safe and mild. It's going to be my soap from now on! I can't afford to use anything else!

American Family Soap

So–
I up and told her

THAT wife of mine is a swell person, but she's done nothing but experiment with coffee for the last six months. She's fussed with this and she's fussed with that. I've seen her experiment with half a dozen different ways of measuring the coffee and water. She's tried all systems of making her coffee. She's hopped around from one brand to another. And we haven't gotten anywhere.

So, last night, I up and told her: Let's get back to Hills Bros. Coffee – and stick with it. I don't know what it's got. They talk about Controlled Roasting, and ground right to taste right, and vacuum-packing – and a lot of other reasons why it's better. Anyhow... I know we get a lot more pleasure out of drinking coffee when we use Hills Bros.

BABY CABBAGES ARE PERFECT IN SPRING RECIPES

Cooked or in Salads They Are Delicious.

"Hostessing with Sunday Suppers," a booklet of menus and recipes for light evening lunches, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Every company seems to be furnishing free recipes with its product nowadays. The milk companies leave tidy little cards with the morning quart, the insides of cartons of all sorts are plastered with them, and you can amass a sizeable kitchen library just by clipping the offers of free leaflets in any of the women's magazines.

Fortunately for the existence of cooking editors, the field isn't entirely covered, even at that. Now take these crisp, green baby cabbages. It's simply our good luck that no one has troubled to tuck neat printed inserts under their top leaves. As it is, we can have a more or less free hand with a few really choice recipes that have recently found their way into our kitchen.

One of our favorite ways of cooking spring cabbage is in milk. The cooking time here is brief enough to allow the cabbage to keep its fresh crispness and its delicate flavor and color.

Nine Minute Cabbage.

2 cups milk
1½ quarts shredded new cabbage
1 cup thin cream or top milk
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons melted butter
Salt, pepper

Heat the milk and cook the cabbage in it for two to five minutes. Add the cream or rich milk, the blended flour and butter and seasonings, and cook rapidly for three to four minutes, stirring constantly. Serve at once.

If your thoughts turn saladward when you see one of these succulent little cabbages, here are a couple of combinations you're sure to enjoy: Cabbage, chopped peanuts, and pimiento; cabbage, chopped green pepper, and tart unpeeled apples with an additional flavor touch of lemon juice.

Cabbage au gratin is an appealing luncheon dish, served with crisped bacon. Instead of the usual grated American cheese as topping for the casserole, however, substitute grated Parmesan occasionally. The added dash is enough to make the most pampered luncheon guests sit up and take notice.

Sweet-sour cabbage may be a dish you've made only with red cabbage, but it has a delicate appeal when made with green spring ones. With puffy brown sausages, braised pork chops, or a roast of pork, it's not to be treated indifferently.

SWEET-SOUR NEW CABBAGE.

Slice one medium sized onion and cook until nicely browned in a little hot bacon fat in a sauce pan. Add a cup of stock or water and a quart of shredded new cabbage, one apple (chopped but not pared), and cover. Cook for 8 to 12 minutes or until the cabbage is just tender. Add a fourth cup of cider vinegar and one tablespoon of brown sugar that has been mixed with a fourth teaspoon of ground cloves. Cover again, continue cooking for a few minutes, and serve hot.

Then there's a salad, a quite distinctive salad, that's made only with the green outer leaves of the cabbage.

Cabbage Salad Rolls.

3 ounces cream cheese
1 tablespoon chopped chives
2 tablespoons ground cooked ham
1 tablespoon pepper relish
6 large outside cabbage leaves

Mash the cheese and mix thoroughly with the chives, ham, and relish. Wash, dry, and chill the cabbage leaves, then spread each with a thin layer of the cheese mixture. Form into tight rolls and chill.

PURDUE REVEALS HOW TO RETAIN VEGETABLE COLOR

Why Cooking Alters Natural Tints.

The good cook wants to keep the natural color of her vegetables. She usually has no trouble with carrots, but the green vegetables often fade. The red may change to blue or purple or the white may turn yellow.

The natural color of vegetables is due to color substances or pigments of different chemical composition, explains Aneta Beadle, extension specialist, Purdue university.

The green pigment is called chlorophyll, and is found only in those plants or parts of plants that get the sunlight—not in the roots underground. In these green parts are also iron and vitamins.

Lose Some of Vitamins.

Chlorophyll does not dissolve readily in soft water. If soda is added the chlorophyll changes—decomposes—into chlorophyll salts, which are very green. But the soda that gives the color takes away some of the flavor and also some of the vitamins.

Green vegetables should not be cooked with soda. A better way to retain the green color is simply to cook the vegetables in very little water for a very short time, leaving the lid off the pan. Very tender greens need to be cooked only until they are wilted. This is the way to keep the most flavor, as well as the most color. It will also save the vitamin values.

Red vegetables—beets, red cabbage, and red onions are colored by pigment called anthocyan. Red vegetables may change in color in the process of cooking. Red cabbage turns purple when the water in which it is cooked is hard or alkaline. To have red cabbage red, add a little vinegar, or some other acid when you serve it.

Why Beets Lose Color.

Beets contain enough acid to keep them red. Beets lose color for a different reason. They "bleed" if cut up in water, or if there is any cut surface exposed to water. Their red pigment dissolves in water. Therefore, the less water used in cooking the better the color of the beets. Steaming still is better. Cooked in their skins, they cannot bleed much, especially if they are cooked with an inch or so of the tops still on. The tops, especially of young beets, are, to many people, as good as the root.

White vegetables stay white if cooked in soft water, but if the water is very hard, if soda is added or if they are cooked too long, they turn yellow. The pigments that cause this change are called flavones, which are colorless in acid, yellow in alkali. This change is most noticeable in white onions, celery, cauliflower, the white parts of cabbage, and in rice.

Something About Carrots.

Carrots get their color from the pigment carotin. Cooking scarcely changes them.

Usually, where there is carotin, the vegetable is a source of vitamin A. The vegetables and fruits that contain carotin are often good sources also of other vitamins, some of which are easily lost in cooking. So if vitamins are to be saved even the "fast color" vegetables should not be cooked longer than is necessary to make them palatable.

HEALTH CONTEST IS TO WIND UP IN CHILD PARADE

A children's parade, closing the community health week contest in Rogers Park, will be held Saturday afternoon in Ashland avenue from Morse to Rogers avenue. Some of the children will march, others will ride bicycles and 862 of the youngest are scheduled to ride in baby carriages.

Mayor Kelly is expected to lead the march which begins at 2:30 p. m., and will cut a huge cake which will be placed on the reviewing stand at Rogers avenue.

Winners of prizes for the prettiest baby, the youngster with the best teeth, the healthiest father and mother, the healthiest set of twins, the healthiest grandmother and the healthiest policeman and fireman will be announced at the end of the ceremonies. During the week several thousand children in Rogers Park will be examined free by physicians.

'New Cabbage' Is Mature; Leaves Almost All Green

"New cabbage" is not new in the sense of being immature; it has leaves that are green almost throughout the head, and is a different variety from winter cabbage.

WISE PARENTS DON'T LOOK AT CHILD TOO MUCH

Steady Gaze Makes Him Self-Conscious.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"The boy's grandmother is always looking at him," said a father the other day. "She adores him, but she's making him so self-conscious and 'smart-alecky.'"

Don't look at your children too much; for, if you do, you will do one of two things—either "spoil" them, or the opposite, which is to look for and surely find something amiss.

"There are a lot of things I don't see," said a wise teacher to me once. And many a mother can well do the same.

It stands to reason that if you look at a child long enough you're bound to see something that needs correcting. His face may—and probably will—be dirty.

He may—[illegible]—probably will—be putting his heels on the newly upholstered chair.

His nails may—and surely will—need cutting.

As you look at him you may remember that he forgot to pick up his clothes and to put up the towel rack. You may remember an errand to be done for supper—or that he hasn't fed the dog yet or he needs a sweater on. Goodness, his sins of omission or commission may be as many as—ours!

Or your young daughter, as you gaze at her, may prove to have gone in for lipstick in a big way. Or her skirt needs pressing. Or her hair is untidy. You remember she has not put away the lunch dishes, or tidied her room, or cleaned the salt cellars, or done her studying, or brushed her teeth—O, the list could go on indefinitly.

If you look at your children too continually, or too long, or too much, you're sure to find something wrong.

So, don't. If your apartment or house is small, and they are much under foot, look at them sometimes not as a parent (which implies both one's pleasure in them and one's duty toward them) but as human beings. They will always have "left undone those things which they ought to have done, and done those things which they ought not to have done," as the good old prayer says. So, "have mercy upon them, miserable offenders," and look at them with eyes of affection, and let the correcting be done as seldom as possible.

Don't let your boy or girl get into the state of mind one did who said, when his mother looked at him, "What have I been doing now?"

The in betweens (boys and girls from 6 to 12) are oftenest the "miserable offenders." Our booklet, "Living With Our In Betweens," that is, the children from 6 to 12, will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Gradually beat in ¾ cup of sugar. Beat the yolks, ¾ cup of sugar, and the strained fruit juices until light and foamy. Fold the flour, about one-fourth at a time, into the yolk mixture. Lastly fold in the beaten whites. Bake in an ungreased angel food pan in a slow oven [325 degrees F.] for 60 minutes. Invert and let hang until cool.

LOWER PRICES NOTICEABLE ON FOOD COUNTERS

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Thrifty shoppers who are trying to keep down their food bills will find at least a dozen items reduced in price since this time last week. Comparatively few foods have been marked up.

Butchers who have had trouble in finding meat bargains as a result of the 1934 drouth and government reduction programs, now have items that can be offered at attractive prices. They have cut the rates on rib and pot roasts of beef, calves' liver, and link and bulk sausage.

Bargain Rates on Fish.

Butchers also are getting relief from shipments of fresh fish coming from the Greeat Lakes and the ocean. Herring, halibut, and Lake Michigan trout will be on the fresh fish bargain counter for the week-end shoppers.

Distributors point out that there are 162 varieties of commercial fish available in Chicago. Last year's catch of fish was 25 per cent greater than in 1933. It is reported that for the first four months of 1935 the landings over the Boston pier amounted to 112,743,235 pounds, against 86,905,412 pounds for the corresponding period in 1934, an increase of 31 per cent.

Ocean fish reach butchers in Chicago within a day after being landed. Lake fish reach the city on the same day they are caught.

Butter Prices Down.

Butter is down about 2 cents a pound over last week in many retail stores. Baking potato prices have been sliced as much as 10 and 12 cents a peck. Other old potatoes and the new crop are about the same as last week. Fresh asparagus is slightly lower. Fresh tomatoes are a few cents off; the wholesale supplies are increasing and the quality is improving. Fewer green tomatoes appear on the grocer's counter.

Other items offered at lower prices include cucumbers, spinach, rhubarb, raspberries, pineapples, roasting ears, watermelons, and cantaloupes.

Fresh rhubarb is coming from local gardens. Raspberries are of high quality and are much lower than they were last week. The berries are arriving from Tennessee, Kentucky, and southern Illines, as well as California.

Roasting Ears Lower.

Most retail stores are offering roasting ears at the lowest prices this season. The quality is considered high, due to improved methods of packing and transporting the corn. Cool weather this season has aided in getting green corn to market before it has lost its sweetness.

Cheese prices have been brought up to about the level prevailing recently, excepting last week, when retailers offered it at special sale prices. Celery is slightly higher, rates varying with quality and size of stalks.

Eating Apples Cost More.

The best cuts of sirloin and round steaks are higher than last week. Leg of lamb is also up.

The first shipments of peaches from Ozark orchards in Arkansas arrived this week. Early peaches have been coming from Georgia during the last few weeks. Gooseberries are coming from Indiana but few are to be found in retail stores. The first of southern Illinois' cherries reached Chicago this week.

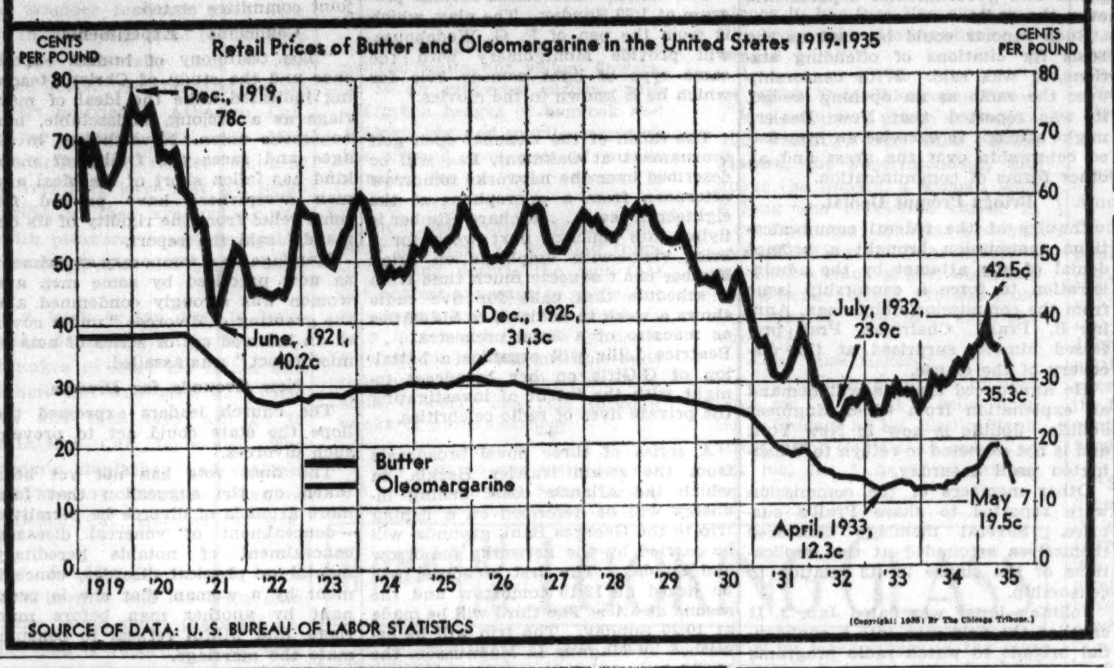
How the Price of Butter and Oleomargarine Fluctuated Since 1919



TRIBUNE RECIPES

ORANGE ICE CREAM.

½ cup orange juice
½ teaspoon orange extract
2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 cup whipping cream

Combine the strained orange juice, the orange extract, and the sweetened condensed milk. Chill these. Whip the cream to a custardlike thickness, but not stiff and dry. Fold it into the chilled mixture and pour the blend into a freezing pan. This will take one to two hours to freeze to a stiff mush. At this time remove from the freezing unit and scrape the frozen part from the sides and bottom of the pan. Then beat all this vigorously for two minutes and place again in the freezing compartment, leaving it this time for one hour, or until thoroughly frozen.

1 cup light brown sugar.
2 eggs, beaten well.
1 cup sour cream.
1 1-3 cups flour.
1-3 cup chopped nuts.
¾ teaspoon soda.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Blend the cream and eggs and mix with the brown sugar. Stir in the dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Add the vanilla and nuts and beat two minutes. Turn into a buttered loaf pan and bake in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] about 30 minutes.

RHUBARB AND APPLE COMPOTE.

Peel of one-half lemon
1½ cups water

PRUNE PIE DE LUXE.

1 medium sized orange
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup medium brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of cinnamon
1 cup prune juice
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 baked pastry shell
2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon lemon extract

Pit the cooked prunes, cutting them in half. Remove the rind and all membrane from the orange and dice the pulp. Combine the fruits with the butter, salt, sugar, cinnamon and prune juice and bring to a boil. Blend the cornstarch till smooth with 2 tablespoons of cold water and stir carefully into the hot mixture. Continue cooking until thick. Turn into the baked pastry shell and cover with meringue made from the egg whites, beaten stiff and flavored with the lemon extract. Brown in a moderate oven [330 degrees F.] for 15 minutes.

CHEESE CHOPS.

Reheat the rice in the chicken gravy for ten minutes. Add salt, minced giblets, and pour into a hot serving dish. Sprinkle with the grated cheese.

PRICES DECLINE IN SOME CUTS OF FRESH PORK

The committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago yesterday issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores:

"Pot roast of beef and round steak are recommended as economical meat buys in Chicago retail meat stores over the coming week-end. A decline in prices of some cuts of fresh pork also has occurred during the week."

MOCHA MOLD.

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup sugar
1½ cups hot, freshly brewed coffee
1 cup sliced dates
1-3 cup chopped English walnuts
½ teaspoon vanilla
1-3 cup whipping cream
Whipping cream for garnish

Soak the gelatin for five minutes in the cold water. Add the hot coffee and sugar, stirring until the sugar and gelatin are completely dissolved. Chill in a shallow pan until the mixture is slightly thickened. Stir in the dates, nuts, vanilla, and one-third cup cream, which has just been whipped until stiff. Pour all this into individual molds, or into one large fluted mold, and chill until firm. When just ready to serve, quickly dip the molds into hot water and turn out immediately onto dessert plates. Top with swirls of additional whipped cream and serve.

"Hasn't Scratched Yet"

SKILLET MEAL.

[Ham Patties, Potatoes, and Pineapple.]

2 cups cooked ham, chopped
2 eggs, beaten
1-3 cup dry bread crums
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ cup cooking fat
6 slices canned pineapple
¼ cup dark corn sirup
Pinch of powdered cloves
3 boiled sweet potatoes
1 cup pineapple juice

Combine the ham, eggs, bread crums and mustard. Shape into six patties. Heat one-quarter cup of cooking fat in a skillet and, when hot, slide in the pineapple slices, cooking until brown on both sides. Drain out the slices and thoroughly brown the ham patties in the same way. Now place the pineapple slices in a baking dish or another skillet and deposit a ham pattie on each side. Cut the cooked sweet potatoes in lengthwise slices and place them in the first skillet, pouring over them the corn sirup. Dust with powdered clove and fry until brown and glazed. Place these in the second skillet around the ham patties and over all pour the cup of pineapple juice. Heat thoroughly in a moderate oven and serve on a large hot platter.

TRY TART JELLY AS A BASE FOR CAKE FROSTING

Way to Solve Problem Pointed Out.

Nothing is more delicious than a good cake and every self-respecting housewife prides herself on making at least one kind with a lightness and texture her neighbors envy. But finding an interesting and unusual icing is a problem. Next time the problem confronts you, go to the jelly closet for inspiration. With any tart jelly as a base, you can make an excellent frosting.

One-half a cup of jelly, a dash of salt, and an unbeaten egg white are the requirements. Place jelly in a bowl and set it over hot water. Add the egg white and salt and beat with a rotary egg beater until the mixture is stiff enough to stand in peaks. Spread on the cake, garnish with bits of clear jelly, and serve at once.

If your jelly closet is empty, or nearly so, start to refill it with:

RIPE PINEAPPLE JELLY.

3 cups juice
6½ cups sugar
1 bottle liquid pectin

To prepare the juice, pare two medium, fully ripe pineapples. Chop very fine or grind. Place in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into a large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over the hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard half a minute. Remove from burner, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. This recipe makes about nine glasses.

APRICOT AND PINEAPPLE JAM.

1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple.
1 No. 2 can apricots.
2 cups sugar.
3 ounces blanched almonds.

Cut or crush the apricots into small bits and cook with the crushed pineapple and sugar until thick. Add the coarsely chopped blanched almonds and pour into hot clean glasses and seal.

Pour into a pan lined with a mixture of the zwieback crums, cinnamon, sugar, and melted butter. Bake one hour in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.]. Serve warm with a spoonful of strawberry jam atop each serving.

PINEAPPLE AND RHUBARB CONSERVE.

4 quarts cutup rhubarb.
2 oranges, juice and grated rind.
3½ quarts sugar.
1 cup chopped nut meats.

Cook the fresh pineapple in a covered kettle, with a small amount of water, until tender. Add the rhubarb, orange juice, grated rind, and the sugar. Cook this mixture slowly until thick. Add the chopped nuts and turn the conserve into hot sterile glasses. Seal at once with melted paraffin.

2 cups cooked kidney beans.
2 teaspoons chili powder.
1½ tablespoons butter.
1 medium large onion.
3 slices bacon.
3 bay leaves.
1 teaspoon salt.
Spaghetti.

Chop the onion and bacon into bits and fry until brown in a heavy pan. Add the meat, salt, and chili powder and let fry for ten minutes. Then add the rest of the ingredients except the spaghetti and simmer over a dawdling fire for about one hour. By the time the mixture is ready to come off the stove, have the spaghetti just cooked. The meat mixture is served over the cooked spaghetti.

VISCOUNT BYNG, HERO OF VIMY RIDGE, IS DEAD

Heart Trouble Fatal to Leader of Canadians.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 6.—Viscount Byng of Vimy, hero of the storming of Vimy ridge which has been described as "one of the most brilliant exploits of the world war," died today at his home in Thorpe hall, Thorpe-le-Soken, Essex. He was 73 years old. Heart failure following an operation caused his death.

Lord Byng was commander of the Canadian corps in the world war and to him fell the difficult job of capturing Vimy ridge from the Germans. He did the job with such thoroughness that military men saluted him as a brilliant commander. For his service he received the thanks of parliament, a grant of $150,000 and elevation to the peerage.

Example of Heroism.

Later in the war he was commander of the 3d army. Following the German drive in March, 1918, his weary troops were in a critical position. Another general urged him to retire to a safer spot.

"One of my ancestors was shot for cowardice. I am staying where I am," Byng replied with a chuckle.

He referred to Admiral Byng who was shot in 1757 for failing to relieve the Island of Minorca, which was beseiged by the French. As Voltaire put it, "The admiral was shot to encourage others."

Lord Byng won additional fame after the war, first as governor general of Canada for five years, 1921-'26, and then from 1928-'31 as commissioner of the London police force, which had fallen into disrepute. He cleaned up the force, restored the morale of the men by increasing promotions for merit and punishing wrongdoers and increased the use of automobiles against automobile bandits.

Smashes Night Clubs.

Another of his jobs was the smashing of the west end night clubs which were dodging closing hours by bribing police. His investigation led to the jailing of Mrs. Kate Meyrick, notorious night club queen.

In recent years, Lord Byng and Lady Byng traveled widely. Last winter they visited Hollywood where they met Mae West. The war hero found her "very charming," but denied he had kissed her.

Lord Byng was the seventh son of the late earl of Strafford. He himself died without issue and his titles become extinct. He was holder of two titles—baron, by creation in 1919, and viscount which he received in 1928 after his return from Canada.

GAG ON SPEECH, PRESS IS SEEN IN FEDERAL ORDERS

Regard Radio Reports as New Threat.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—The question of New Deal censorship of freedom of speech and freedom of the press flared up here again today with the discovery of a mystery clause in a program designed by the federal communications commission to clean up the air.

The clause was found in a letter of instruction by Dr. Charles B. Jolliffe, chief engineer for the commission, to field supervisors. It ordered the field representatives to deliver confidential reports of attacks on governmental officials and governmental departments over the radio.

Such reports could be used as the basis for citations of offending stations, it was said. With censorship over the radio as an opening wedge, it was reported that New Dealers might attempt to exercise an iron fisted censorship over the press and all other forms of communication.

Brings Prompt Denial.

Inquiry at the federal communications commission brought a prompt denial of any attempt by the administration to force a censorship issue from the commission's chairman, Anning S. Prall. Chairman Prall professed himself surprised at the discovery of the clause.

He announced that he will demand an explanation from Chief Engineer Jolliffe. Jolliffe is now in New York and is not expected to return to Washington until Saturday.

Other members of the commission were reported to share Prall's surprise. Several members confessed themselves astounded at the implications of the clause in its relation to censorship.

Jolliffe's letter was dated Jan. 3. It enrolled the field men into a confidential brigade to watch radio programs for violations of ten commandments drawn up supposedly by Jolliffe.

The commandment which brought up the question of censorship asked for reports on "all libelous or slanderous attacks upon individuals, officers, or government officials."

Other Clauses Cited.

Other clauses sought reports on objectional religious programs, objectional medical programs, programs carrying too much advertising, programs involving boycott, advertising from professional people, fortune telling, lotteries, and schemes of chance, and "anything against the public interest."

Chairman Prall pointed that the letter was sent out before he took office. Prall succeeded Eugene O. Sykes as the commissioner's head Jan. 17. Sykes, an ardent New Dealer, is still a member of the commission. He could not be reached for comment.

ENGLISH CHURCH ACTS TO PUT BAN ON REMARRIAGE

Cites Vow "Till Death Us Do Part."

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 6.—Though making allowance for human frailty and the necessity of facing the facts of life, a joint committee of the convocations of York and Canterbury recommended today that the Church of England refuse to sanction the second marriage of a divorced man or woman during the lifetime of a former partner.

"The church cannot formally bless a second making of vows 'till death us do part' while the former partner is still alive," the majority report of the joint committee stated.

Condemns "Experiments."

"The testimony of human experience and the study of Christ's teaching indicated alike the ideal of marriage as a lifelong, indissoluble, monogamous union. Nevertheless, in all ages and races the frailty of mankind has fallen short of the ideal and men everywhere have pressed for some relief from the rigidity of its demand," said the report.

Marriage as a temporary experiment as now practiced by some men and women was strongly condemned and the granting of divorces "under cover of an inferred act or series of acts of misconduct" was assailed.

New Grounds for Divorce.

The church leaders expressed the hope the state could act to prevent such divorces.

The final vote has not yet been taken on the suggestion that four more grounds of divorce be permitted—concealment of venereal diseases, concealment of notable hereditary mental or physical disorder, concealment by a woman that she is pregnant by another man before marriage, and willful refusal to consummate the marriage.

FRANK S. WATERS, INDUSTRIALIST, DIES ON ESTATE

Frank S. Waters, president of the Lyon Metal Products company of Aurora, died of a heart attack on his country estate west of that city yesterday. He was 57 years old. Although not in good health for several years, Mr. Waters returned from a vacation trip to Florida a few weeks ago and announced that he was "feeling fine."

Mr. Waters and his brother, Beverly, founded the products company in Chicago in 1889 and in 1906 moved the company's headquarters to Aurora where the principal plant was later built. It was merged in 1928 with the Durand Steel Locker company of Chicago Heights. Today the concern ranks as one of the largest manufacturers of steel lockers and shelving in the country.

Surviving the the widow, Mabel Kilbourne Waters, and two brothers, Beverly L. of Aurora and Raymond T. of Chicago. Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the home. Burial will be in Spring Lake cemetery in Aurora.

Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich., June 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Steve, sister of the Dillinger henchman, John Hamilton, tonight was convicted by a federal jury of having harbored Hamilton and Dillinger in her home here when they were fugitives from arrest after Dillinger's escape from jail at Crown Point, Ind. Charles Campbell, son of Mrs. Steve, was exonerated. Earlier in the day, before the case was given to the jury, Mrs. Steve told how Hamilton and Dillinger came to her home, stayed for several days, and departed later for Little Bohemia lodge, near Mercer, Wis.

'Oldest Twins' Separated by Death of Woman, 90

Palmyra, N. Y., June 6.—(AP)—Death today has separated the 90 year old twin sisters of this village. Mrs. Celia A. Wilcox died yesterday, leaving her sister, Mrs. Julia Mattison. They were conceded to be the country's oldest twins after a controversy early this year between the Fox brothers of Catawissa, Pa., and Halley, Idaho, nearly 89 years old, and the McCarger brothers of California, who had just passed their 84th birthday.

BERMUDA PLANS TO REDUCE POPULATION BY BIRTH CONTROL

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 6.—(AP)—All that remained today of Bermuda's vigorous "cut down the population" plan was a feeble remnant—a proposal to legalize the dissemination of birth control information. The proposal was adopted.

Other and more drastic proposals of a house of assembly select committee—providing voluntary and compulsory sterilization for eventual elimination of the labor surplus—were dropped by the lawmakers after a white hot controversy that raged for weeks.

A report that the board of health favored the legalization of abortion and the payment of bonuses to those undergoing sterilization willingly led to a request to Gov. Sir T. A. Cubitt for copies of the board's minutes. The governor refused, declaring it would not be in the public interest.

DAIRY COMPANIES REJECT DRIVERS' PAY BOOST PLEA

Both sides appeared ready to stand firm and not yield a point today when representatives of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union and the Chicago dairy companies meet today in a final effort to arbitrate the union's demand for a wage increase of from $40 to $45 a week.

Members of the Associated Milk Dealers met last night and made their final decision not to accede to the union demands. That decision will be given the union representatives today at 10 a. m. in the Midland club.

The dealers declared that present market conditions made the increase impossible. The union points out that the drivers took two $5 cuts in 1932 and they are now asking for only one of them back. The union has taken a strike vote and represents itself ready to call for a walkout if today's negotiations fail.

In the meantime word came from Washington that a congressional delegation will ask the President for a $100,000 appropriation for an investigation by the federal trade commission of milk prices. This would bear on the reasons for the vast difference in the price received by milk producers and the price paid by the ultimate consumer.

Two Well Labeled Robbers Hold Up Three Stores

Two robbers, one cross-eyed and the other wearing a sailor's cap, committed three robberies on the north side yesterday afternoon. In the meat market of Albert Weil at 1241 Sedgwick street the pair obtained $78. Then they separated. An hour later the sailor went into the Consumers store at 5550 North Clark street and took $10 from H. T. McCue, the manager. The cross-eyed man held up the A. & P. store at 2820 Diversey avenue at about the same time, taking $52 from the manager, Thomas Kohler.

SHE FELT MARVELOUS WHEN HABITS BECAME REGULAR

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Relieved Her Constipation*

Read this splendid letter: "I tried everything with little or no results. I felt miserable, was 20 but looked much older, and my skin was continually breaking out.

"I decided to try ALL-BRAN, three meals a day for about a week. Elimination became regular; I felt marvelous and looked better. Even my outlook on life was changed."—Mrs. Armand Hamel, Pawling, N. Y.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. It also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle. More effective than "bulk" in leafy vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell Blair.

Home Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell Blair are pictured above just after their marriage yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's stepmother, Mrs. William Paul Martin, in Lake Forest. The bride, the former Mrs. Helene Martin Howard, was gowned in gray chiffon with a large bachelor button blue hat and she carried a small old fashioned bouquet of blue and yellow garden flowers.

The wedding service was read by the Rev. Mr. McHatton of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church in the presence of half a dozen relatives, after which half a hundred friends joined them to drink the health of the bride and bridegroom.

The bride was unattended and Chauncey B. Blair acted as best man for his brother. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, who spent part of the winter here, as did he rdaughter, the Marquise d'Ivanrey, is in Biarritz now, so was not at yesterday's ceremony. Neither was the bride's mother, Mrs. William Wilkins Carr of Philadelphia, who has her little grandson, Martin Howard, with her in Atlantic City at present. This is a second marriage for both the bride and bridegroom.

Club Delegates in Final Rush to Poll Books

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Detroit, Mich., June 6.—[Special.]—By plane, train, and automobile additional Ohio and Oklahoma delegates to the triennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs are rushing here tonight to push the campaigns of their favorite candidates for the federation presidency. They will arrive in time to register before the closing of the registration polls at 4 o'clock tomorrow.

Ohio, which is presenting Dr. Josephine L. Peirce for the post now held by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, Mass., expects to increase its present delegation of 250 by at least half a hundred. This estimate was given by Miss Elizabeth Haymaker, campaign manager for Dr. Peirce.

At least two dozen Oklahoma delegates, unable to arrive earlier this week, are expected tomorrow to back the candidacy of Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson of Tulsa. This will increase the Oklahoma delegation to approximately 150.

With these developments in the federation's presidential campaign the windup before the election Monday promises to be as lively as many a political fray in which the delegates' astute political brothers have engaged.

Headquarters of the two organizations in the Statler hotel here are placarded with huge campaign signs and stocked with bushels of pamphlets. Workers are giving out flowers

Episcopal Diocese Holds Annual Fete for 700 Acolytes

More than 700 youthful servants of the altar participated in the annual acolytes' festival of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church, held last night in St. Luke's procathedral in Evanston. About 100 acolytes from Milwaukee were among those who attended a dinner with their rectors in the parish house and who later figured in the religious ceremonies.

John Scudder and Bride to Visit Relatives

Couple on Way East After California Wedding.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. BARRETT SCUDDER of Lake Forest are preparing to welcome their brother, John C. Scudder, and his bride, the former Florence McCormick, who were married in California last Saturday and who are coming east on their wedding trip.

John Scudder formerly lived here, but for the last year or so he has been calling the University club in San Francisco home. He and Miss McCormick were married in Atherton, Cal., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCormick, reside. None of his relatives here have met Mr. Scudder's bride, so they are looking forward with pleasure to welcoming her when the newlyweds arrive early next week.

After a week or ten days in Lake Forest Mr. Scudder will take his bride to Milwaukee to meet his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. J. Arnold Scudder, and then they will go to Desbarats, Ont., Can., for a visit. The bridegroom's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. Chandler Egan of Pebble Beach, Cal., were at the wedding.

Barrett Scudder does not know where his brother and his bride plan to live, nor much about the bride except that she is reported to be very attractive and that she was educated in Rome, Italy.

Leave for Simpson Wedding in East.

Quite a group of Chicagoans left yesterday afternoon for Boston to be present tomorrow at the marriage of Miss Beatrice de Monocal and William Simpson, which is to take place at high noon in Emanuel church, with a breakfast following at the Beacon street residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. de Menocal.

Included in the group were the bridegroom's father, James Simpson—his mother went east earlier, as did the junior James Simpsons—the John McLaren Simpsons, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler [Mrs. John Simpson's mother], Dustin Grannis, Earl Kribben, Philip B. Hosmer and his son, Philip Jr., and Hugh McBirney Johnston, who with John Simpson are the only Chicago ushers. James Simpson Jr. is to be his brother's best man.

Mr. Simpson and his bride will sail at midnight tomorrow on the Europa for a wedding trip in Europe and upon their return they will live on Long Island.

Dinner Tonight for Miss Shaw

Mrs. Clay Judson is hoping that the weather tonight will be seasonable as to temperature and that there will be no rain, for she wants to serve dinner to about half of the sixty guests she and Mr. Judson have invited to a dinner-dance for their sister, Miss Theodora Shaw, in the garden of their residence on Astor street.

Next week the Judsons and their children will be going out to Lake Forest to spend the summer at Ragdale, the country place of Mrs. Judson's mother, Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw. The Judsons and the John T. McCutcheons [Mrs. McCutcheon is the former Evelyn Shaw] alternate having Ragdale summers, so this year the FLOWER lovers who have observed that Mrs. Donald B. Douglas of Lake Forest invariably wears white flowers pinned to her frock or coat—carnations or sweet peas or gardenias from her own greenhouse—might expect that she would exhibit white flowers at the Lake Forest Garden club show Saturday and Sunday at Walden, the Cyrus Hall McCormick estate in Lake Forest. Instead, Mrs. Douglas is doing a terrace with yellow flowers in pots, a graveled pavement with a black gravel star in the center, and black iron furniture with yellow cushions.

Mrs. Douglas' own garden has neither white nor yellow flowers. It is an all-green garden, with evergreen hedges of hemlock and juniper, ivy and myrtle carpeting the ground, and pots of purple pansies for a color accent in spring.

The Lake Forest Garden club show is a sight we wouldn't think of missing despite the fact that our nearest approach to gardening this spring has been the purchase of a larger pot for the gardenia tree, which has innumerable buds that never bloom. The show is a sight to carry city folk through weeks of gardenlessness.

A DAY or so ago mention was made here that Shane Leslie, the Irish lecturer and author, had married the daughter of Henry C. Ide, a former governor general of the Philippines. Another daughter of Mr. Ide was the girl to whom Robert Louis Stevenson willed his birthday because, you may remember, her own birthday fell on Christmas day and she did not like combined Christmas and birthday gifts. Shane Leslie's daughter is next in line to inherit this birthday, which is being passed down the family.

A GROUP of Chicagoans visited the women's prison at Dwight, Ill., recently, and Miss Helen Hazard, the superintendent, told about the inmate, a woman with a long and checkered career in New York and Chicago, who had escaped. They had been unable to get even a trace of her, when one day a letter arrived. It was from the missing prisoner and she wrote:

"Dear Miss Hazard:

"You will be surprised to hear from me. I am at a relief shelter in Chicago at No. Blank, Blank street. For God's sake come and get me, for I have no privacy here."

Through the Looking Glass

The old weather man has made it a bit difficult to realize that the vacation and travel season is about to swing into step, and before we know it, we'll be packing up bag and baggage for that precious few weeks of change of scene. High time, we know, to be getting organized!

The manufacturers this year have outdone themselves in the way of slick kits to do away with all the bother of wrapping up separate bottles and jars of your favorite cosmetics—and they're a godsend! One that has won our heart completely is a trim and compact little affair of rubberized moire, smart and neat as a new pin, and containing everything you'll need to keep your skin in apple-pie order, no matter how far from civilization you choose to wander.

There is, first of all, a smooth-as-velvet, lemony cleansing cream that's as soft and satiny to the touch as a bridal gown. Then there's a richer, heavier nourishing cream—and if yours is to be a wind-and-weather vacation, with more sunshine and blowing breezes than you're used to, it will do great things in the way of keeping your skin soft and supple and free from a wind-and-weather look.

For removing the creams, or for a stimulating waker-upper in the morning, there's a tangy skin freshener, that both smells and feels elegant, and leaves your skin soft and smooth and ready for your make-up. And the last articles to complete the ensemble are a box of dull-finish face powder, almost guaranteed to ward off the last vestiges of shine on the most recalcitrant of noses, and a neat little black-cased lipstick, the texture of which is all that you could ask for by way of smoothness. Both the powder and the lipstick come in shades for all types, and the colors, we think, are particularly nice.

The case itself is a chubby little zipper-top affair, and swank enough to attend any house-party with its head in the air. It comes in several colors—among them a glossy black and a buttercup yellow. And nicest of all, this galaxy of really nice cosmetics costs astonishingly little. It won't unbalance even the slenderest of budgets to treat yourself to this touch of traveling elegance. Sam Goldwyn Pays More Than $150,000 for Play "Dodsworth"

Hollywood, Cal., June 6.—[Special.]—It was announced from the movie offices of Sam Goldwyn, the producer, this afternoon that negotiations had been completed for Goldwyn to acquire movie rights to the novel and play "Dodsworth." The purchase price will exceed $150,000 and, according to the Goldwyn offices, will set a record.

The negotiations were carried on with Joseph Bickerton, New York attorney as intermediary, and the payment will be shared by Sinclair Lewis, author of the novel "Dodsworth."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Advertising Men's post of the American Legion, seeking to raise funds for the Edward Hines Jr. hospital, plans to sponsor a tour through the middle west of a play called "Signal Drums," which had its première last night in the Goodman theater. John McMahill Jr., head of the dramatic department of a Chicago music conservatory, is the author, and also the leading man in the company, which contains a number of experienced professionals.

"Signal Drums" deals with melodramatic events in central Africa, and is a satisfactory blend of the standard ingredients for this form of theatricalism. An outpost of the British empire; a fine spirited doctor and bacteriologist, endeavoring to stamp out a pestilence among the natives; opposition to science among the blacks, led by a fiendish witch doctor who has a terrific death curse to put upon his foes; a growling villain of a white planter who seduces all the good looking women in sight, flogs them with his slaver's whip, steals the doctor's serum, and infects his drinking water with the plague germs—these are among the important elements in the tale.

The play is reminiscent of the series of dramas of African life which followed the vogue of "White Cargo," almost ten years ago, but it is neatly put together and conveys a few thrills. The great moment comes when the ruffian of the story is compelled to swallow the drinking water that he has infected, and the native signal drums begin to send a message to London for airplanes bearing a new supply of serum to save the lives of several dying principals.

Mr. McMahill as the doctor; Don Merrifield as the remorseless villain; Vaughn Covert as the black wizard; Jeffrey Mongerson, as a 13 year old boy who carries the heart interest; Miss Quimby Booth as the half-caste siren who tries to seduce the hero; and Elaine Magnusson, as an erring wife, deserve pleasant mention. The single stage setting—an African hut interior—has been effectively arranged; and there is a general air of competence in the proceedings. The American Legion's audiences on the tour will, I believe, get their money's worth.

New Swagger Coats Deserve Your Attention

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Coat collectors are all excited over a big showing of swanky new swaggers. The kind of separate coats every one needs to complete a well planned summer wardrobe. Some of these swaggers come in dark colors and smart checks and plaids for general wear, but the spotlight stealers are the pastel woolens and fancy corduroys. Most all of them are cut with a wide loose fullness, dolman, regency or peasant sleeves, lined throughout with harmonizing silk and with quite a few different collarlines.

Smooth woolens are used for the white coats that are going out almost faster then they can be packed. A white coat is the most practical "extra coat buy" this summer judging by the demand. You wear these white winners over dark blue, brown, and black dresses of either thin wool silk or cotton. They can also be worn with party frocks of cotton, and thin silks. They are especially effective as the white top for pastel tinted and all dark shades of trim tailored linen suits for cool weather wear, and they can always be used with a white flannel skirt, teamed with twin sweaters of white or colors.

The corduroy coats in this collection come in grand eye-catching colors, yellow, a new tangerine color scarlet, powder blue, pink and what is the second most popular choice of the season—all shades of yellow. The corduroys have trick weaves or textures, wide wales, as thick looking as furrowed plush, a candlewick tufted effect and a cross bar wale.

These same pastels and bright shades are also available in the summertime woolens such as fuzzy tweeds, featherweight rabbit's wool, and the summer fabric presented by a famous wool textile house, called coolaine.

If you like scarfs with your coats, you'll like the creamy white coats with a soft silk ascot scarf of white and big orange dots. Besides being a most interesting collection of extra coats, the price tags make them grand finds of the season.

Fashion photograph. . . . Pleated sleeves that reach the elbow, a transparent yoke with bands of the small patterned printed silk that fashions the dress and a high interesting collarline make this the ideal street costume for summer. The wide brimmed straw hat is trimmed with white ribbon bands and bow.

THE SLEEPING CHILD

By Alice Grant Rosman.

SYNOPSIS.

The girls of the Chevening family of Fendon Edge, near London, are pursuing careers, Pauline producing plays. Eleanor is studying medicine. Jenny, the youngest, runs a hat shop and changes fiancés now and then. Audrey, an orphaned cousin, with a talent for design, has for 15 years been as a daughter to Anne and George Chevening, the girls' parents. Audrey becomes engaged to Miles Buchanan. Miles has been forced, through adversity, to shut up most of the Priory, his inherited home. He and Geoffrey Burton are partners in a stock breeding venture. Anne Chevening had been in love with Audrey's father, Hector Chevening. Her parents had broken up the romance and persuaded her to marry his cousin. Later Hector, a victim of the war and penniless, had brought his wife and child to visit the Chevenings, at George's invitation. Anne still loved Hector and felt he still loved her. Shortly after they left Hector shot his wife and himself. Neighbors had heard them quarrel. Audrey was in the next room, apparently asleep. No one ever spoke to her of the tragedy, which Anne fears she may have caused. She loves Audrey as her own child, but her sense of guilt is a barrier between them. When the engagement is announced gossip begins. Miss Dorset, Miles' aunt, has stated that Audrey's father was killed by the Turks. Miss Fell, village gossip, calls Audrey a cuckoo in the nest. Both remarks are overheard by the rector's two demon children, who repeat them to Audrey. Audrey receives a begging letter from a man signed Uncle Bert, recalling his friendship with her mother. The letter recalls to Audrey's memory the tragedy and quarrel preceding, which she had not slept through and which had been about a man in her mother's life. Geoffrey Burton has become a woman hater since the desertion of his faithless wife. Miles tells Audrey it was lucky they had no children. Audrey fears she may have inherited traits of her own faithless mother's. She goes to London, where the Chevenings have a small flat for the use of the family. Rumors of the gossip in town reach Anne, and fearing they may have been the cause of Audrey's flight she follows her to London.

INSTALMENT XLI.
NEWSPAPER FILES.

Audrey about the same time was letting herself into the flat, having gone straight there from the train that morning to warn Bennett she would want dinner and a bed, and to get a key.

She was tired and miserable, which was not surprising, for the excursion to Fleet street had been duly undertaken, not in search of drawings, however, but to look up newspaper files of fifteen years ago.

It had seemed to her in the night that this was the first step—to read exactly what had happened, set down coolly by some one who would not be trying to soften the blow or spare her feelings. She could not remember the date or the month, and it had been a long search and horrible, many times nearly given up, and unrevealing in the end.

There had been none of the sensational headlines or the disclosures she had expected, just a short announcement of the tragedy and a paragraph or two about the inquest some days later, sympathetic references to a gallant officer and a few lines of her uncle's evidence that his cousin was happily married and had seemed ten days before to have no pressing anxieties. No mention of a letter or a quarrel, nothing indeed remotely resembling what she remembered of that night, and it had seemed unreal, so that she read it over and over with a confused sense that all this trouble in her mind was merely a nightmare and presently she would wake.

She had hoped there might be a photograph of her father and that she would discover that she was like him after all for she had known him so briefly that she could not tell. But there was no photograph to give her this reassurance or to lend reality to what she read and she closed the files at last and set out to walk to the flat feeling that even to be moving would be a relief and help her to clear her mind.

And then she was glad there had been no photograph and no disclosures, suddenly horrified because she had been reading in cold blood about her father and mother, feeling no grief for what they must have suffered, but thinking only of herself and Miles.

Reality was upon her at last, bringing such distress that she could not after all walk home, but called a taxi, hiding herself away and reaching the flat, her problem still unsolved, and not in the least knowing what to do next.

As she opened the door a rush of footsteps along the passage met her like a cheering breeze and Jenny dragged her in, slamming the door behind her exuberantly.

"Devil! What do you mean by not letting me know? What's the post-office for or the telephone if it comes to that? Bennett has just told me you were in town and I've promised to go out to dinner with Tommy. Never mind though, you can come. He's very flush at present and if we decide to dance perhaps he can get another man."

"I couldn't walk a yard, much less dance," declared Audrey, flinging her hat on the sitting room couch and sitting down, exhausted. "I've been grubbing in Fleet street for hours and only want a bath and bed."

It was soothing to lie outstretched on Jenny's bed, listening to her voice and watching the darkness come outside the window. London was beginning to light up like another Jenny, putting jewels in her hair, and by and by above the distant roof tops there would be a fiery glow as from a witch's cauldron; and down below cars and taxis racing by on mysterious, lovely errands which you could only guess.

She had so often watched this London in the past, loving its dusky profile in the night—but not as she loved Fendon Edge—and at the thought of that, the home where she had found sanctuary and happiness which were now perhaps lost forever, she turned over to the wall, flinging an arm across her face.

A few days ago it had seemed to her that she could ask Jenny what she could ask no one else, but she had traveled far since then, immeasurably far, and was now sure Jenny could not help her, and knew no more than she.

"What is Miles doing while you gallivant, if that's what you think you're doing?" inquired Jenny suspiciously. "Have you quarreled with him?"

"No, I haven't. What do you take me for?"

Audrey explained the little matter of Geoffrey Burton's departure for the north, owing to the faithless Mabel, and found herself saying urgently:

"Do you think women like that can't help it, Jen?"

"You silly rabbit, they don't want to help it," exclaimed the youngest Miss Chevening with scorn for her innocence. "They're out to have a good time at anybody's expense."

"But surely there are women who are just made like that?"

"O, but they're potty and don't count."

Jenny, required by her generation to have at least a ready answer to such knotty questions, gave it with a flourish, but potty was hardly the word to console Audrey just then, and sadly she dropped the subject, setting herself instead to cheer her friend on her way to a merry evening.

Anne, when the interminable journey had come to an end and she was in London at last, felt lost in a strange world, and all the past which her present anxieties had called up relentlessly, could not rid her of this sensation. It was so long since she had permitted any impulse to sweep her as she was being swept now off her guard to do the thing which her heart rather than her head dictated, that she seemed to be living in two different dimensions, to be at once the girl of thirty years ago and the woman of today.

As the taxi carried her to the flat, she no longer thought consciously of what she should hear when she got there; to that extent the woman was in the ascendant, the woman who had survived despair and had not believed it possible to feel very deeply about anything again. But it was the girl in her who saw through the taxi windows the hurrying panorama of the streets, and felt the pain of all this sudden magic laid upon her spirit as by a ghostly hand and leading her to what?

When the taxi stopped and she looked up for lighted windows there was help for neither the girl nor the woman, for the flat was lost in a maze of others, and she could not place it. She had used it so little that she was no more than a casual visitor here, had to answer the hall porter's questions as to her destination and hear him tell her which button to press and which turning to take when she reached the fifth floor. Even then he seemed to distrust her ability to make the journey unattended and took charge of the lift and carried her up, escorting her to the door and ringing the bell for her.

As she summoned a smile to thank him, she wondered whether she was looking distraught, and pulled herself together, but the explanation was, of course, that the hall porter was a respecter of persons. It was one of his necessary qualifications.

Bennett flung open the door with a martyred air of "What now?" and then drew back to admit her employer, so much taken by surprise that she could only gasp.

"Good evening, Bennett. . . . I've come up to town unexpectedly and want a bed. Are the young ladies in yet?"

Anne tried to make the question casual. She had been quite unable when the moment came to phrase it in any other way.

20th Century Films Story of Movie Success

Company Proves Gold Mine in Two Years.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 6.—[Special.]—The shoestring that untied a gold mine. That is the Twentieth Century Pictures corporation.

It was founded two years ago by Joseph Schenck, then head of United Artists releasing combination; Darryl Zanuck, just belligerently stepping out of the Warner Brothers film combination with a record of much success as head of production and a big row with his superiors there; and by William Goetz, ambitious young son-in-law of L. B. Mayer, movie magnate.

Schenck was just retiring from motion picture production, having seen the fadeout of the film stars who had made him well known as a producer, including his ex-wife, Norma Talmadge, her sister, Constance Talmadge, his ex-wife's brother-in-law, Buster Keaton, Camilla Horn, John Barrymore, Al Jolson, Fatty Arbuckle and some others.

Zanuck was looking for a place to utilize his youth, pep, ideas and drive in producing movies if he could find an associate to come forward with financing and releasing arrangements. Goetz with some film experience and a combination counting room mind and producing mind, was eager to do something on his own after getting in preliminary experience as a studio executive in his father-in-law's producing concern, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Schenck, shrewd old hand at the business of financing films listened to Zanuck carefully. "Have you confidence in your ability to turn out successful pictures?" "All the confidence in the world," Zanuck replied and offered to stake his own limited resources.

"Well, I guess then I won't retire from the production of movies," Schenck told Zanuck. "We'll form a company." Goetz was glad to join.

Schenck, as is his careful custom, hunted up money resources, other than his own bankroll to provide the funds which he and his associates would spend in buying stories, hiring actors, paying scenarists, renting studio space and forming a crew of cameramen and technicians. They named their organization Twentieth Century Pictures.

Zanuck became its presiding production genuis. Schenck wore the boss title and stayed on as head of United Artists releasing corporation. That Zanuck didn't exaggerate in expressing his confidence to Schenck and that Schenck didn't misjudge in accepting Zanuck's estimate of his own powers has been demonstrated by the current deal which merges Twentieth Century with the financially more powerful Fox Film organization.

To do this Schenck had to desert United Artists, much to the confusion of Pickford, Fairbanks, Chaplin, Goldwyn and other United Artist partners who had been relying on Schenck and Zanuck's eight or ten films a year to provide the bulk of the company's output while the other partners coasted along and contributed occasional special films as they chose to make them.

The merger between Twentieth Century and Fox is reported to move Schenck back into the class of movie millionaires and probably places Zanuck and Goetz on a financial pinnacle somewhere near Schenck's.

Zanuck's prestige grew so much during his two years at Twentieth Century that Schenck and Goetz both divested themselves of a minor portion of their holdings in that closed corporation and contributed to Zanuck's share in order to keep the little yellow haired, short mustached Bohemian-American producer happy and contented with his partnership arrangement.

Southern Block Fine Example of Homespun Quilt

Mountain Homespun.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Again southern women have outshone their northern sisters in creating an unusual quilt block, "Mountain Homespun." Other than that its origin is southern, its history is unknown. Like Topsy, "it just grew" and enjoyed high favor as a fine example of homespun in the patchwork field. The block possesses all the requirements for quiltdom's perfect nine patch, and has the intriguing design of mountain homespun.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

John Scudder and Bride to Visit Relatives

Couple on Way East After California Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon are leaving today for two weeks in the east and they do not plan to open Bird Center until some time in July. They are going east primarily to attend the graduation exercises at the Milton academy, for their eldest son, Jack, is a member of the graduating class. Miss Shaw's wedding to John Lord King will take place on June 27.

Mrs. Judson will have a new and very interesting studio in Lake Forest this summer in which to work at her sculpture, for she bought Lincoln's Indiana home from A Century of Progress and has had the log cabin moved to Ragdale.

Chicagoans Will Sail on Normandie.

When that new queen of the seas, the Normandie, sails out of New York harbor today at 1 o'clock it will have have aboard quite a number of Chicagoans, including Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, who is going over to act as a godmother to the former Rosemary Baur's and Bartle Bull's baby daughter in London, and then for her usual summer sojourn on the Riviera; Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell and her grandson, David Hotz, who will not return until early September; the James Ward Thornes, who plan to be away until early September, also; Miss Frances Whedon and her niece, Miss Frances Jeffery; Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler and her son, Robert T. Wheeler; Mrs. John Stillwell and her son, Newcomb Stillwell; Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Gilliland, Miss Frances Hooper, Miss Katharine Wolcott, and the Milton G. Woods.

Two young Chicagoans sailed from New York on the Aquitania very early today to get an "international" flavor all their own, for they will be "guides" at the league of nations in Geneva this summer. The pair, two of six selected from 250 applicants, are Miss Betty Durham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Durham, and George Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale. With them sailed Manly Hudson, the Bemis professor of the Harvard law school, and Betty's grandmother, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, at whose chalet in Geneva Betty will stay.

Mrs. Durham went east for the sailing and will be back Saturday. Young Mr. Hale, in his eagerness to start work on time, will miss his own graduation at Yale.

Other Chicagoans on Aquitania.

Among other Chicagoans on the Aquitania are Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, who is going for her annual visit to her son Miller and his family in England; Miss Peggy Hambleton and her sister, Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords and the latter's sub-deb daughter, Anne; Capt. and Mrs. C. Ross Cuthbert [Beatrice Kirk], who plan to return home in mid-July.

Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, who with Mrs. Ezra J. Warner landed on the Aquitania Wednesday, arrived in Chicago yesterday but Mrs. Warner will not arrive until today. Mrs. Warner has rented her house in Lake Forest for the summer to the John Payne Kelloggs so she will visit her children, the junior Ezra Warners, the Thomas C. Dennehys and the Edison Dicks during the summer months.

The Kelloggs' own house on Westminster avenue in Lake Forest is rented for the season to the Charles Garfield Kings, who spent the winter in California and the late spring at White Sulphur Springs. Mr. and Mrs. King, now at the Drake in town, will move out to Lake Forest around the first of July. Their daughter, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, who went to New York last Monday, will return to Lake Forest next Tuesday.

Elizabeth Hambleton Going to Germany.

Miss Elizabeth Hambleton, younger daughter of the Chalkley Jay Hambletons, is sailing on the Hamburg next Thursday to spend the summer abroad. She is going with two other young women and the trio will spend six weeks bicycling through Germany. Miss Hambleton is a student at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Hambleton and her elder daughter, Miss Jessica, are going up to the Hambleton summer place at Fish Creek, Wis., the middle of next week. Mr. Hambleton and Chalkley Jay Jr. will spend the summer at the Hambletons' town residence, 46 East Elm street, with week-end visits to Fish Creek.

Homeward bound to England will be Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alister McCormick [the former Joan Stevens], when they sail next Friday from Montreal on the Duchess of Richmond, for both are English born.

The younger Mrs. McCormick, having left her husband and children at home in Santa Barbara, will arrive here tomorrow, but only for a fleeting stop, as she and her mother-in-law will leave Sunday for their trip.

For the senior Mrs. McCormick, with nine brothers and sisters in England, it will be a genuine family reunion, for she plans to go from one to the other all summer long. She and her daughter-in-law plan to stay until Oct. 1, possibly long enough to see Mrs. Hamilton McCormick's grandson, Anthony, oldest son of Edward McCormick, receive his diploma from Oxford in the fall.

Clifford Leonard Takes House in Lake Forest.

Clifford Leonard of New York has taken Etterby hall, the Lake Forest home of Mrs. Thomas B. Marston, for the summer. He moved in Saturday, following closely on the heels of Mrs. Marston's departure for the east, where she went to see her son, Thomas Ewart Marston, sail for England, where he will spend the summer studying for a thesis on modern history.

Mrs. Marston will spend the summer with the Thomas Osgoods [Mrs. Osgood was the former Dorothy Marston] at Lake Placid. Mr. Leonard's children, Hope and Clifford Leonard Jr., will join him at Etterby hall the middle of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell spent a strenuous day yesterday moving from their apartment on East Chestnut street to the Lake Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Welch, which they have taken for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Welch have moved out to their farm near Antioch for the season, planning to stay there until after harvest time, but Mrs. Welch's daughter, Priscilla Curtis, has remained in Lake Forest with the Mitchells, near tennis courts and gay young friends.

After a gay but brief stay in Chicago Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair left Tuesday for Long Island, where they will spend the early part of the summer.

Miss Eleanor Holden returned yesterday from the east where she has been busy with the reopening of her summer home at Black Point, Ct. She will return there for the summer in about two weeks.

English Speaking Union Names Officers.

Donald E. Welles was elected president to suceed Victor Elting at the annual meeting of the English Speaking union yesterday at the Palmer house. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, John J. Mitchell, Roy C. Osgood, and Robert Stevenson are the vice presidents; John J. McDonough, the honorary secretary; Miss Grace Telling, active secretary; C. R. Whitworth, treasurer; new directors, Mrs. Ronald Boardman, Mrs. Charles Breasted, Mrs. Dallas Phemister, Durand Smith, and Victor Elting.

It will be hard to resist buying several pairs of white shoes and a new bathing suit or two today at the special sale the Junior auxiliary of the Children's Memorial hospital is to have at the White Elephant Rummage shop. The proceeds from the selling will, of course, go to the hospital. Assisting as salesgirls will be Mrs. William Hunt, Mrs. John R. Hurley, Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., Mrs. Ralph Isham, Mrs. Herbert Kennedy, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Mrs. Roy Flannery, and Mrs. Horace Wetmore.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins, headed by Mrs. Earle Zimmerman, will hold a benefit sale from 10 to 5 o'clock today at the home of Mrs. Herman H. Hettler in Highland Park.

The prince of Siam was given a dinner last night at the Tavern by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Netcher.

The charming dress shown today is a summery model and will make up smartly in any of the washable materials—cotton, linen, or silk. Chinese damask is an ideal choice for this design, and will be correct for the cape, too. A cotton crêpe in coral, with white motifs, made the original dress.

The pattern, No. 3371, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

instead of cigars and decorating visitors with arm bands and hat ribbons.

As the result of the warning issued yesterday by Mrs. Poole that "all electioneering is forbidden in the convention hall," demonstrations at the Masonic temple, the place of meeting, are limited to songs on the part of various delegations.

At each of the sessions since the opening of the convention Tuesday night, Mrs. Lawson and Dr. Peirce, now first and second vice presidents of the federation, respectively, have flanked Mrs. Poole on the platform and appeared on the friendliest terms. Feminine rivalries and animosities have flamed, however, among the workers.

In other addresses today the present administration at Washington came in for severe criticism. "It is one of the major delusions of this disintegrated time that the need of the hour is strong government," said Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin.

"It is not strong government we need as much as wise government. Government invested with the virtues of insight, dignity, moderation, justice, tolerance, and an acute sense of social values.

"To me it is incredible that in a world of tragically unfilled human need we should set out upon the quixotic attempt to increase welfare by destroying wealth or declining to create it.

"More goods at lower prices, not fewer goods at higher prices, is the only logical and socially defensible goal of an age of science and technology. We must be careful lest in our effort to stabilize we actually sterilize the nation's enterprise. The current mania for repressing, restricting and reducing our maximum productive capacities unless it is minimized, rationalized, and effectively corrolated with politics that build instead of blight the buying power of millions, will make poverty the permanent heritage of our people."

In a forum on economic trends Harper Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., newly elected president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, flayed the legislation of the Roosevelt administration as "hurried and emotional."

"What we need is a little wise, careful, and rational thinking," stressed Mr. Sibley. "Woman's future rests on insurance policies. You are interested in the investments of these companies and the investments depend on the conditions of industry.

"So many people seem to think there is something wrong in profits," he continued. "Great inventive genius is one of the glories of America. We want security but security can only come from successful industry. We cannot tax to the wall."

Mr. Sibley was opposed in his stand by James A. Wilson, councilman in Cincinnati and for ten years vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and Blackwell Smith of Washington, D. C., acting general counsel of the NRA.

Asked by Mrs. William Dick Sporberg of New York the attitude of the federation of labor on wage earners who continue to accept relief instead of available jobs, Mr. Wilson was mildly "booed" when he said: "Every man able to work is anxious to work." He excused strikes on the basis that "it is only natural that mankind should want to improve its condition."

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE BRIDGE SIDE OF THE NEWS.

Reno, Nev.—After two weeks' residence in the divorce city, Mrs. Grace C—— has withdrawn her suit against her husband, and is flying back to him by the first plane.

"I've tried eighteen different partners," she is quoted as saying, "and not one of them understands my bidding. After all, I guess Roger isn't so bad."

Denver, Colo.—As an outgrowth of the send-a-dime chain letter racket, an enterprising victim of card-phobia is mailing a plea to send the work of your favorite bridge authority to the man at the top of the list, and put your name on the bottom. "If you follow my plan," he says, "you will eventually get 1,500 books on bridge. You can then put them in a large pile and burn the whole lot, thus saving countless beginners untold headaches."

San Francisco, Cal.—Pierre L——, one of the pioneers who has been sent up to Alaska by the government to farm the country, is taking 500 decks of cards along. Mr. L—— was questioned as to his game preference. Was it poker? Or perhaps bridge? Or did he play blackjack?

"Naw," said Mr. L——, baring his teeth in a smile. "I don't play no games with these cards. I tear 'em in two."

Salem, Mass.—An old law was discovered on the statute books which forbids the playing of any games on Sunday. In the eighteenth century, two striplings were put in the stocks for throwing up a stone and catching it. This was considered to be a form of "Catch." The only thing that prevents the modern urbanite from going to his bridge club on the Sabbath is the Sunday baseball game.

Westchester, N. Y.—George O—— owns a dog that can distinguish the spots on the cards. Upon command he will designate the ace of any suit called for in a deck spread out before him.

New York City—Bridge used to be considered a "sissy" game on the lower east side, but now even the long-bearded pinochle devotees, and the hairy-chested poker fiends are taking it up—a bit timidly, to be sure, and usually behind locked doors, but in the back rooms of delicatessens the call is no longer "150." It is "Six spades—and double that—you chiseler!"

Etiquet Basic in Success of All Young Men

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"When you are going around with a boy is there not some way of letting him know that you would like him to be a bit mannerly without making him angry? I always thought it proper for a boy to get out of the car and help a girl in. Also, my understanding is that a boy should come and ring the bell when he has asked a girl to go out with him, instead of sitting in the car out front and honking the horn.

"It seems that some of our young men who are critical if a girl laughs loudly or does anything unladylike are not aware of some of these bad manner points they act themselves. I wish you would drop the boys a hint, Miss Blake, or tell me how it can be done without making them mad. It isn't pleasant to have the neighbors laughing at you."

There, boys, is the hint you need. We'd urge you to take it before the girl is forced to buy a book of etiquet and present it to you. Of course you should get out of the car and help the young woman in. And you should not sit out in front, honking your call for all the neighbors to hear. The wonder is the girls have let you get away with such ill bred behavior this long.

Apropos this etiquet appeal, we've been hearing enough lately to realize that girls are much more adept at catching on to polite behavior hints than are you boys. They read etiquet advice, apparently, and more to your interest, young men, they compare boys on this standard of nice behavior. You have the identically same opportunity as young women to absorb the needed information if you happen to have been deprived of it in your home training.

It isn't to make a dandy out of you that we plead your etiquet cause, but because a number of you lose out with girls simply because you do not practice the niceties. Nor do the girls want to make sissies of you, if that's your argument. You see, when a girl goes around with a young man, above everything else she wants to be proud of him. Pride in the one you love is a high percentage of the quantity known as love.

You boys know this to be true. You like to exhibit that girl of yours around proudly, and when some one says of her that she's a well bred person your chest expands. Your own good taste is flattered. It's the same with the girls. They like to exhibit you just as proudly and hear people say that you are a well bred young man.

Tissue Cream Is Miraculous in Erasing Wrinkles

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I have a cheering report from a woman whose two months' experiment with a good tissue cream should settle whatever doubt there may be afoot that such care is all poppycock. That's exactly what I heard it called by one whose skin could stand, more than any one else, just a little more of said poppycock.

The first woman of whom I speak is a housewife and mother, in the early forties. As she tells it, she was just one of those women who managed to argue herself into the belief that her household duties well done should be sufficient unto the day. O, she owned a jar of cleansing preparation, of course, but soap and water constituted the usual treatment, and a good enough treatment in so far as it goes. None better for scrubbing, but not enough to offset the shriveling and wrinkling that pursue the course of a dry skin.

Forty-three found her with that kind of skin in which, perhaps, no particular blemish could be discovered, but also with the kind of skin in which no beauty could be discovered, either. It had the look of a sturdy tweed, let's say, guaranteed to wear, but not guaranteed to cast any glow.

Her severest critic, a daughter of 21, got after her about it. Now, what she did is the object of this confidence today. What any number of housewives could do. After she got her husband off to work and the youngsters off to school she first set about a good cleansing with a cleansing oil, which she wiped off assiduously.

Then she would slather on great gobs of a richer cream known as a tissue cream and go about her work with her face so decorated. If the doorbell rang, she argued, the peddler could just take her "as is." His motives wouldn't have anything to do with her pictorial charms, anyway, she argued. And she was going to give her skin a chance. I forgot to mention, she slathered her neck with the skin food, too. Every little while she'd stop and give her face and throat a few slaps and pats in the usual massage way, and you can take my word for it that that two months' steady treatment did simply marvelous things to that woman's skin. I saw it before and after.

Rosa Ponselle Sings for Speaker Byrns to Boost Sirovich Bill

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Rosa Ponselle and Lawrence Tibbett were the star witnesses today before the house patents committee, appearing in favor of the bill introduced by Representative Sirovich of New York to create a federal department of art, literature, music, and science.

After their testimony Mr. Sirovich took them to call on Speaker Byrns. In the speaker's office they decided that the best way they could bear witness for their cause was to break into song.

Representative Jenckes of Ohio and employés of the speaker's office crowded in to hear the two Metropolitan Opera stars sing "Annie Laurie." Miss Ponselle responded to the cries of "Encore!" by singing "O Sole Mio" solo.

The speaker was so moved by the music that he kissed Miss Ponselle's hand with courtly grace, but neglected to indorse the Sirovich bill in the excitement.

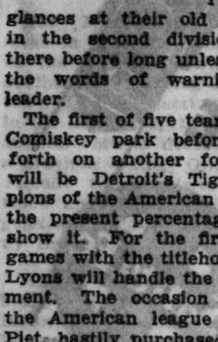
KRUEGER SHOOTS 71 TO LEAD NATIONAL OPEN

SOX HOME; SEND LYONS AGAINST TIGERS TODAY

Tony Piet to Make Debut at Second.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Manager Jim Dykes, crippled in one foot, but still functioning up to par in the head, will have his White Sox back at Comiskey park this afternoon. They will return from St. Louis this morning, happy that rain relieved them of work yesterday and permitted them to move back into second place while Cleveland was losing to Detroit. Starting with today's toil Boss Dykes will try to make the Sox quit casting longing glances at their old familiar haunts in the second division. They'll be there before long unless they profit by the words of warning from their leader.



TED LYONS.

The first of five teams to appear at Comiskey park before the Sox set forth on another foreign excursion will be Detroit's Tigers, still champions of the American league although the present percentage figures don't show it. For the first of the three games with the titleholders today, Ted Lyons will handle the pitching assignment. The occasion also will mark the American league debut of Tony Piet, hastily purchased by the Sox to fill the gap at second base.

Tony Ought to Help.

Piet, if he shows even a semblance of the form displayed for a couple of seasons with the Pirates, will be a welcome addition until such time as Jack Hayes can resume work at his regular second base post. Hayes went out of action with a chipped thumb bone on May 21 at New York and happenings since then offer sad testimony to his value. During Hayes' absence the Sox have dropped nine games while winning five. Some of these defeats can be traced directly to weakness at second base where Glenn Wright, Marty Hopkins, and even Dykes, who moved himself from third base only because the situation was desperate, proved failures.

When he arranges his lineup this afternoon to make room for Piet, the Sox manager will drop the newcomer into the second notch of the batting order. Hopkins, who batted there, will be dropped to seventh. Whether Al Simmons will be returned to the third spot or be retained in fifth to which he was demoted Wednesday, is something Dykes will not decide on until this afternoon. Simmons for the past several weeks has been hitting under the .200 mark. Zeke Bonura also is in a slump. These defections have been as costly as the loss of Hayes.

May Drop One Player.

Before Piet can be formally enrolled today as a member of the Sox cast one man will be dropped from the active squad. The 23 player limit can be maintained by taking Muddy Ruel off the eligible list and making him a coach. If that isn't done one of three fellows will have to go. The trio is made up of Joe Vance, Babe Phelps, and Wright. It is said that a pitcher must be turned over to Toronto as part payment for Piet, but whether this has to be done immediately isn't known.

Instead of having pitchers to give away, Dykes is seeking them. He made overtures to both Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers and Connie Mack of the Athletics. What they wired back isn't known, but Dykes admitted that the replies gave him a big laugh, although not a pitcher. However, something may develop prior to the June 15 trading deadline.

Hayes Back Sunday?

Hayes may be ready to go into the lineup by Sunday, but there still is no telling how long it will be before Dykes recovers from his sprained right ankle. He is hobbling around with the help of a cane and thinks he will be back to normal in about a week. It is likely to be closer to three weeks. If Hayes gets back within a few days Piet could be moved to third, provided he hits hard enough to warant benching Hopkins, who while a light hitter can do a fairly good job of fielding at third.

Vernon Kennedy, who was billed for yesterday's pitching job at St. Louis, will be started against the Tigers tomorrow and on Sunday the champions will face Johnny Whitehead, who beat them twice while compiling his eight straight victories.

PITTS REPORTS TO ALBANY CLUB, BUT CAN'T PLAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Syracuse, N. Y., June 6.—Alabama Pitts came to Syracuse this evening and it seemed like Old Home week.

There was a delegation of more than a hundred at the railroad station to meet the clean looking youngster—he's 24—who made good in Sing Sing and was graduated only this morning.

They were hoping some eleventh hour decision might change the ruling of Judge W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional leagues, that voided his $200 a month contract with the Albany baseball team, which was playing the Syracuse Chiefs this evening at the flood lighted municipal stadium.

Crowd Cheers Him.

But no luck. The ruling that no ex-convict could hold a minor league berth still stood when the game was called at 8:30 o'clock, and Edwin C. Pitts, dressed in the same new suit he donned at the prison this morning, was introduced at the home plate by former Police Chief Matthew L. Cadin.

There could be no question how the 2,000 spectators stood on the anti-convict ruling. Wave after wave of applause swept across the grandstand and bleachers.

The players felt the same way. Gathered in a semi-circle around the flustered, spot lighted youth, they called out:

Sees Game from Box.

With tears in his eyes the star of Sing Sing baseball and football teams stood in the Albany dugout and watched the players batting fungoes.

"Wouldn't you like to be in a uniform?" somebody asked the man who had served five years and two months for robbery and gun toting.

"Boy, oh boy! would I!" Pitts exclaimed.

He watched the game from a box and as the ninth inning arrived he remarked jocularly:

"This is the latest I've stayed out at night for a long time."

After the game he left on a bus with the rest of the Albany club for Albany, where he will don a uniform for the first time Sunday before a game with Buffalo. But unless the minor leagues' executive committee upsets the anti-convict ruling, he'll have to remain on the sidelines after play starts.

Evers Ready to Fight.

Declaring Pitts' one year contract holds good even if the club has to make him assistant business manager, Albany's manager, John J. Evers, said: "This man is going to play even if it forces me out of baseball to put him in the lineup."

Even if Pitts loses his job with the Albany club in the final showdown, he has nine jobs already waiting for him, including offers from baseball teams in New York City, Dayton, O., Schenectady, and Philadelphia, and from the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers, and Philadelphia Eagles professional football teams.

LANDIS IS SILENT.

Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, yesterday refused to discuss the case of Edwin [Alabama] Pitts, the freed Sing Sing convict whose effort to play baseball with Albany of the International league has been blocked by a minor league ruling.

The commissioner, suffering from a cold contracted at a ball game, won't have anything to say unless and until the case is brought before him, his secretary, Leslie O'Connor, said.

DEAN, MARTIN FOR PITTS.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 6.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean and Pepper Martin, star teammates of the St. Louis Cardinals, joined today in a plea in behalf of Alabama Pitts, Sing Sing's star athlete.

They telegraphed William G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Minor Professional Baseball Leagues, asking him to rescind his order barring Pitts from baseball.

Bramham has refused to allow Pitts to play with Albany of the International league.

THEY'RE ALL GOOD AT HITTING THE BALL

Baseball players as well as golfers gathered yesterday at the Oakmont Country club for the beginning of the National open golf tournament. Members of the St. Louis Cardinals were paying a visit to the golfers who had watched them play the Pittsburgh Pirates earlier in the week. Talking It Over ROGERS HORNSBY has all the major league magnates envious of his trading skill. . . . Since the season started the boss of the St. Louis Browns has received more than $100,000 in cash besides several ball players who have made a better team of the Browns than before the deals were made. . . . In addition, Hornsby can have $35,000 from Cleveland for Catcher Rolly Hemsley, if he wishes, and $20,000 from the Tigers for Outfielder Solters. . . . Indiana and Ohio State were tied for first place in the Big Ten baseball race.

Warneke, Lee Pitch for Cubs Against Cards

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke and Bill Lee, those two excellent Cub pitching gentlemen who got taken for rides by the St. Louis Cardinals in last Saturday's double header at Wrigley field, this afternoon will try to get revenge for the multiple abuse. Lon and Bill, be it known, are going to pitch in two games to be played in St. Louis.

We are too far away from wrestling and prize fighting to dwell long on a grudge build-up on the orthodox lines. Nevertheless you must realize, if you were out to Wrigley field on the opening day of the Cards' recent stand, that Lon is pretty angry and Bill is hotter yet than Lon. Lon had the satisfaction of having participated in a really thrilling game, though beaten, 4 to 3, in twelve innings by Paul Dean. Bill had no such solace. He was a 4 to 1 victim, and principal, in a sloppy exhibition during which the Cubs were panicked into five errors by Phil Collins and associates.

Weather Halts Red Final.

Since their three losses in the Cardinal series the Cubs have won three straight, the final from the Cards and two straight from the Cincinnati Reds. They had planned to take three straight from the Reds yesterday behind Tex Carleton, but rain, cold, wet grounds, high wind, and the prospect of no customers caused the game to be postponed. There may have been other reasons for the postponement, but no announcement covered these other items.

The Cubs naturally are curious to find out the reaction of the outburst of dissension on the Cardinal outfit. They are not under the impression, however, that the Deans will be any softer than usual as a result of the flareup among the world champs.

Though the Cubs lost three out of four in the recent Card series here, they say they feel that any single break in two of the three games they lost would have turned the tide in their favor. These games were the Warneke game and the one in which the Cards won after trailing 5 to 1 with one out in the ninth.

George Stainback, ailing outfielder, did not go to St. Louis with the team, but it is planned to have him join up in Philadelphia Tuesday.

JESSE OWENS IS NAMED CAPTAIN AT OHIO STATE

Columbus, O., June 6.—(AP)—Jesse Owens, Ohio State university's record breaking athlete, was elected captain of the 1936 Buckeye track team tonight.

Members of the team selected Owens as their leader shortly before they departed for a western tour, which will take them first to Milwaukee for the Central intercollegiate meet at Marquette university tomorrow and Saturday.

Election of Owens marked the first time in Ohio state's athletic history that a colored athlete had been chosen to lead a varsity sport.

GENE SARAZEN TO TOUR WITH BABE DIDRIKSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 6.—Gene Sarazen, former British open and American champion, will make an exhibition tour with Mildred [Babe] Didrikson in July. Sarazen made the announcement this morning just before starting play in the national open at Oakmont.

"I believe Miss Didrikson may develop into the best woman golfer in the United States," Sarazen said.

Miss Didrikson, star in the women's track and field events in the 1932 Olympic games, entered the professional golf ranks last week.

MAYBE BRENDARD WILL PAY BACK ALL THAT $4,920

Dixiana Filly Meets 2d Instalment on Cost.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Into the winner's circle at Washington Park yesterday galloped Brendard, a 2 year old daughter of Epinard-Brenda, to return dividends on the investment she represents to her owner, Charles T. Fisher, master of Dixiana farm in Kentucky.

It was her second trip into this charmed circle and as she glanced around at the admiring public she assured Owner Fisher that she would not betray the trust he had put in her.

Up until two weeks ago, like most horses of her age, she had done nothing for her master except run up a pretty formidable lot of bills.

Earnings Up to $1,400.

But Owner Fisher had expected that. In fact, months before Brendard first saw the light of day her owner had already assigned a whole clean page on the debit side of the ledger to Brendard and her probable expenses.

Brendard's share of this purse and the one she won the other day amounts to $1,400.

Let's see what it has cost Owner Fisher once again to experience the acute pleasure of seeing a filly of his own breeding bring his silks home to victory and thus reach a point where she is an asset rather than a liability.

Van Dusen Figures It.

Five thousand dollars might not be overestimating it, according to Clyde Van Dusen, trainer and boss of all the Fisher thoroughbred horse enterprises, who has been in charge of Brendard from the time a mating between Epinard and Brenda was arranged, until he saddled her for her second straight victory yesterday. The way he would itemize it, not from official bills rendered and bills paid but from memory, would be about as follows:

Purchase price of mare Brenda—$2,000.
Breeding fee—$1,000.
Care for mare one year—$480.
Care for Brendard one year—$240.
Breaking and training of Brendard—$1,000.
Veterinarian and incidentals—$200.
Total—$4,920.

This is not more than a few hundred dollars away from the average production cost of a piece of racing property such as Brendard promises to be. And Brendard has begun to pay dividends much sooner than a great many horses do. Some of them never return dividends at all. So you can see these actors and actresses at the big racetrack shows do not grow on trees or come out of a pump.

Must Win Stakes.

Now how soon will Brendard wipe out all those expense items Owner Fisher and Trainer Van Dusen have charged against her? Perhaps never. But to do it this year it is essential that Brendard become a stakes winner. She could, of course, win ten or a dozen overnight purses but few horses accomplish that many victories in one year even though they run in cheaper company.

To make her eligible for stake races where she can run for richer prizes there has been an additional cost. There is hardly a limit to her earning possibilities should she develop into a great star. And this she promises to do.

The Futurities, Hopefuls, Lassie stakes, Selima stakes and others coming along a little later in the season will offer Brendard her greatest opportunities.

Whips Higher Cloud.

She conquered her field easily in yesterday's 5 furlong event and was in front from start to finish. Her margin of victory over Higher Cloud, from Hal Price Headley's stable was 2½ lengths. Sandy Boy, from New Orleans, finished third. The favorite, Sir Gawaine, a son of Sir Gallahad III., which many had rated as the best 2 year old here until this race came along, finished fourth.

Brendard paid $8.40. A lot of customers wagered on her and were happy. Still, the greatest take-a-chance fellow is Owner Charles Fisher, who invested all that money to produce a Brendard.

Lots of people who love horses and who can afford it take these chances year in and year out, and they lose just as often as the punter who tries to pick the winners; more often—most producers of thoroughbreds will testify.

MAC KENZIE, 72, IS ONLY OTHER TO EQUAL PAR

Horton Smith Ties for Third Place.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakmont, Pa., June 6. — Alvin [Butch] Krueger, a right handed baseball pitcher from Beloit, Wis., who can hit golf balls, took the lead today in the opening round of the 39th open tournament of the United States Golf association. Mixing a swift, straight ball off the tees with a plate clipping fadeaway on the greens, the slim, red haired Wisconsin professional pitched a handsome 71, one under par for what is unanimously termed one of the most difficult chores in golf.

Tonight, with a brief truce in the battle of Oakmont restraining the charge of 157 of the game's most talented workmen, Krueger rests with a one stroke lead over Roland MacKenzie, the former Walker cup star who turned professional in Washington, D. C., three years ago, about the same time that Krueger was adding a golf pro's job to his already full athletic repertoire at the Beloit Country club.

Champion Dutra Shoots 77.

More important than that one shot edge on MacKenzie, however, is the fact that the versatile Krueger, better known as Butch, has an even more comfortable margin over several of the tournament favorites, not the least of them the huge Olin Dutra, who is defending the championship rated as golf's greatest. Olin met up with several of the dreaded Oakmont bunkers on his second nine today, and they were quite uncivil, to say the least, costing him a 40 on the last nine and a first round of 77.

Between Krueger and Dutra is a roll of names of some of golf's greatest, all of whom today felt the lash of Oakmont's bitter justice at one time or another, for the so-called Hades of Hulton is planned fairly, not maliciously.

Among those trailing Krueger and MacKenzie tonight were a quartet of 73 shooters, including Horton Smith of Oak Park, who made one of the finest fights of the day to overcome several mishaps; Jimmy Thomson, the fungo hitter from Long Beach, Cal., who flung a 2-3-4 finish in defiance of Oakmont's last three holes; Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., the game's leading Jewish professional, and Cliff Spencer, a 29 year old unknown from Landover, Md.

Armour Shoots 74.

The 74 scorers were Tommy Armour, Medinah's Silver Scot, who won the 1927 open at Oakmont; Jimmy Foulis of Ruth Lake, Chicago, whose uncle and namesake won the 1896 open; Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, former western open champion, and old Mac Smith, as smooth a swinger as golf has today, who tied for the 1910 title, and has been after it these twenty-five years.

The 75 bracket was even larger, holding such as Ky Laffoon of Chicago; Gene Sarazen, the tournament favorite from New York; Byron Nelson of Ridgewood, N. J.; Al Espinosa of Akron, O.; Mortie Dutra of Detroit, Olin's older brother; Jack Gordon of Williamsville, N. Y.; Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J.; Vincent Eldred of Pittsburgh, and Al Watrous of Detroit.

Runyan Five Strokes Back.

Five strokes down to Krueger at the quarter mark were Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y.; National Professional Champion Ray Mangrum of Los Angeles, Frank Walsh of Chicago, Earl Stokes of Louisville, Ky., leading the amateurs; Craig Wood of Deal, N. J.; Sid Brews, the Briton from South Africa who was second to Henry Cotton in last year's British open, and Gene Kunes of Norristown, Pa.

He's a Versatile Chap.

The slender Krueger is as versatile an athlete as will be found in the republic. Twenty-nine years old, he didn't take up golf as a livelihood until three years ago. Prior to that he had played professional basketball with the House of David and the Beloit Fairies and pitched baseball for the Peoria and Bloomington clubs in the Three-Eye league. Even now he pitches semi-pro ball for the Madison, Wis., Blues, and last year probably set a record for athletic endurance.

He pitched a night game for the Blues and drove all night to Chicago to take part in the district trials for the 1934 open at Philadelphia. Butch was so wearied by this effort that the best he could do was to lead the field at Olympia Fields, and then go on to Philadelphia, where he took a slice of the prize money by finishing fourteenth, and therefore didn't have to bother qualifying this year.

Krueger, for all his slimness, is the natural athletic type, whose nerveless disposition is well suited to golf. In midafternoon, while others who were being held back by lateness on the first tee fretted and fumed, Butch sat idly by the eighteenth green unnoticed and shedding no tears about the lack several distinguished journalists from the Atlantic seaboard were running about, bawling "Who the hell is this Krueger?" and "How do you spell Beloit?"

Young Mr. Krueger had given them cause for bawling with a round of golf to be shouted about in any open, but more so because it was scored on

WOMEN GOLFERS LEARN SWING IN TRIBUNE SCHOOL

5,800 Attend Classes on 13 Courses.

Cold weather and rain last night were unable to keep 5,800 girls and women from answering the rollcall for the second lesson of THE TRIBUNE'S third annual free golf school run in coöperation with the thirteen member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association.

The remarkable attendance of the school in the face of adverse weather conditions has astounded veteran golf professionals who had expressed doubt that pupils would venture forth to take lessons in the face of rain and frigid breezes. Refuting this belief is the fact that over 17,800 enthusiastic golfers of all ages turned out in the first three days of the golf school in spite of unfavorable conditions every evening.

Last night's lesson, the second for the female contingent, dealt with the backswing and finish. A summary of the instruction of the first session—the pivot, stance, and grip—preceded the evening's lesson.

Harold Johnson of Northbrook leaped old man weather's stymie and invited all those who missed any classes this week to gather at Northbrook next Sunday, between 4 and 5 o'clock, for a summary of the first two lessons. Other outlying courses, it is expected, will follow shortly with similar announcements.

Men and Boys Tonight.

Tonight, the second lesson for men and boys, will close the first week of the golf school. Pupils should bring brassies. The lesson will deal with the backswing and finish and will also run over the grip, stance, and pivot. New pupils wishing to attend may join tonight's classes for the most important part of the school is still to come.

Mid-City was again the bell wether in attendance. Five groups, totaling over 2,100 were put through their paces by Mel Thompson and his assistants. In demonstrating the value of a smooth, powerful swing, Dan Taggart showed his gallery how to hit pitch shots. He drew a tremendous hand when he holed out a long shot. The teaching staf was augmented by the presence of John Mercedes, California professional, who assisted Joe Tivnan and Joe Jacobs with their groups. The lesson was topped off by a demonstration of shot hitting by all the pros from the illuminated driving range.

Evergreen took care of a crowd of 900 pupils, according to Al Megeff, the club pro. The group was split into smaller bands and drilled on all phases of the swing.

Gets Tips on Approaching.

Jock Anderson and Dave Tosh had a crowd of 150 girls and women swingin gto keep warm at Techny Fields. The lesson went so well that Anderson advanced his class with instruction on approaching and playing up to the green. This part of the game, he explained, is the shot cutting department.

Big Run's squad learned the intricacies of the brassie, spoon and cleek swing. Working with a group of 100, Johnny Bulla showed the way to play each shot. In his demonstration of the right and wrong way to swing, he had E. J. Wood imitating the Sunday morning golfer much to the amusement of the other pupils. To show that timing rather than weight is important in hitting a golf ball, Bulla hit shots over 200 yards while sitting in a chair.

Jack Daray had a small but interested crowd at Mission Hills. Because of this, he was able to give personal instruction to each pupil.

Indian Head Draws Big Class.

Waubonsie turned out a good crowd for Johnny Moran. Being mostly beginners, he found them eager to learn. According to Moran, his class is already well advanced in the swing.

A larger crowd than he had on opening night greeted Tom Geary at Indian Head. More than 320 girls and women appeared for the second lesson. The swing came in for the bulk of attention after a review of the fundamentals dwelt on in the first lesson.

Julian Strud at Vernon, also reported increased attendance over last Tuesday. He drilled his pupils on the swing, pivot and body action. The reasons for all phases of the swing were carefully discussed.

Rain drove the class at Cog Hill indoors. Joe Jemsek lectured on the swing and reviewed the first lesson. The class was turned into a social when the club held a drawing and distributed golf balls to the pupils holding the lucky number.

Conducts Question Box.

Harold Johnson at Northbrook, conducted a fifteen minute question box following which he emphasized the importance of the correct golf swing. Three factors he told the class are of utmost importance—grip with the left hand, relaxation and keeping the head down.

Tom Walsh packed 150 pupils into the clubhouse at Westgate and presented his famous slow motion swing act with brother Packy doing the swinging. Following the lesson, Walsh gave a shot by shot description of the 76 shots his brother Frank took in the open at Oakmont.

Two hundred twenty-five enthusiastic girls and women attended Bud Kelly's class at Elmgate, where Tom Robbins of Park Ridge demonstrated the pivot and the value of a straight left arm. Other instructors were Bill Chamberlain, Jim Dwyer, Don Derdenrich and Kelly.

MRS. RUTH RIESE TO PLAY IN CITY TENNIS TOURNEY

Mrs. Ruth Riese of Saginaw, Mich., a former western champion, yesterday filed her entry for the annual city tennis tournament which starts tomorrow at the Oak Park Tennis club. Mrs. Riese may compete in the doubles division with Jackie Ayer as her partner, though there is a possibility that Miss Ayer may be teamed with Mrs. Eugenie Sampson Kamrath.

The combined entries of men and women reached 100 yesterday assuring the biggest tournament of recent years. Play will continue all next week and the championships will be decided a week from Sunday.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Tigers Defeat Indians, 10-9, in Ten Innings

Detroit, Mich., June 6.—(AP)—Schoolboy Rowe blew up after pitching six hitless innings today but, despite their skyrocket ride, the Tigers managed to defeat Cleveland, 10 to 9, in ten innings and move into a tie with the Indians for third place in the American league. Cleveland cracked down on Rowe for six runs in the seventh.

Cleveland scored three more runs to take the lead in the eighth, only to have Detroit tie it up as Goslin smacked a single off Lloyd Brown with the bases full.

Joe Sullivan held the Indians in check the last two innings, while the Tigers came through to win in the tenth on Gehringer's double and Goslin's single.

Bush Checks Cards; Pirates Triumph, 2-1

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 6.—(AP)—The Pirates climaxed a climb from fifth place in the National league standing to second in little more than a week's span today when they defeated the Cardinals, 2 to 1, to move a half game ahead of the losers.

Guy Bush, rated as a veteran among pitchers, hooked up with Jesse [Pop] Haines, who is nine years older, in a brilliant mound duel that was settled in the first two innings. Bush yielded only four hits to gain his third victory of the season.

PACK MAKES PRO DEBUT TONIGHT IN WHITE CITY RING

Clinton Bridges Also Is on Program.

Clinton Bridges and Lorenzo Pack, light heavyweight and heavyweight International Golden Gloves champions, respectively, will head the boxing show at White City Casino, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. Bridges will meet Lou Thomas, Indianapolis, Ind., in his second professional appearance, and Pack is paired with George Cerosky, Akron, O., in what will be Lorenzo's first pro test. Each bout is set for six rounds. Two other matches at six rounds and two at four rounds will round out the program.

Lenny Cohen and Lloyd Pine will be opponents in a bantamweight contest at six rounds. Another at this distance will bring together Roscoe Toles, Toledo, O., heavyweight, and Les Schuelte. Four rounders match Ed Sparrow with Jackie [Kid] Kelly at 138 pounds and Walter Matthys with Bob Tinsley at 132.

Bridges opened his pro campaign a week ago by scoring a two round knockout over Ray Tucker. The masterful manner in which Clinton accomplished the feat after a slow start convinced fans he possesses the ability needed to reach pugilistic heights.

He will attempt to strengthen this opinion by defeating Thomas. Inasmuch as Thomas never has been knocked out during his two years in the ring, he is expected to give Clinton strong opposition.

Consequently, Kid Howard Carr, matchmaker of the White City Athletic club, is confident a capacity crowd will be in attendance when the first pair of boxers crawl through the ropes at 8:30 o'clock. The arena has room for 3,000. A sellout would bring a gate of $2,800.

Tony Musto and Paul Williams will meet in the five round windup bout of the amateur show at Northwest stadium, 4848 Irving Park boulevard, tonight. The meeting, which will be in the heavyweight class, will be their second. Musto defeated Williams in a previous battle. Other matches will include those between Gerald Matthieu and Joe Ogdaa, Vincent Pellegrini and Homer Williams, and Johnny Brown and Ernie Newgard.

Mickey Patrick, East Chicago light heavyweight, will oppose Rosey [Kid] Baker, Indianapolis, at six rounds at Western stadium next Tuesday. . . . Virgil Bemi will clash with Scotty McLean, and Carl Martin is booked to fight Sailor Born in four round encounters. . . . Otis Thomas, Golden Gloves heavyweight runner-up, sparred two rounds with Ed Wills yesterday for his pro debut on the same card. . . . His opponent may be Ted Kajac. . . . Tait Littman, Cudahy, Wis., middleweight, is scheduled to box Vince Dundee at Pittsburgh and George Black at Milwaukee on the same day, June 24. . . . Joe Triner Jr., son of the Illinois boxing commission chairman who underwent a brain operation several weeks ago, is well enough to leave the hospital tomorrow on his own power.

Barney Ross, newly crowned welterweight title holder, returned yesterday from a visit with friends in Detroit. . . . Twelve colored boxers worked out yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium, the largest colored delegation ever to train at this gymnasium at one time.

Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich., boxer, arrived yesterday to start drills for a twelve round lighweight elimination bout with Leo Rodak at Mills stadium next Thursday. Ramey, who is of Scotch, Irish, English, and German descent, whipped Steve Halaiko in ten rounds at New Orleans, La., May 15, in his last start.

MOON MULLINS—THE PICTURE TELLS THE STORY

Baer Starts Hard Punching in Workout

Asbury Park, N. J., June 6.—[Special.]—Resenting somewhat the criticism that his training is unimpressive, Max Baer livened the proceedings in his camp today as he came to the final week of preparation for his title fight with James J. Braddock a week from tonight.

For the first time in his series of boxing sessions he cut loose with his right hand during one of two rounds with Ed Houghton of Philadelphia and gave a crowd of spectators a few flashes of the vicious punching that has characterized most of his fights. He was careful, however, to confine his hitting to the body, for though his right hand is no longer sore he will take no chances of injuring it with the date of the fight so near.

Baer Lands Hard Rights.

Max followed it with another hard right to the body and Houghton fell into the champion's arms well stung. Max held him up for a few seconds until he recovered enough to go on.

Baer boxed eleven rounds altogether. With Dynamite Jackson he was also rougher than usual, but Jackson landed two rights on the title holder's chin that shook him. Jackson went three rounds that were tame except for the brief exchange at the start.

Nate Lewis, Chicago promoter, is here with an offer of $300,000 for Baer to meet Joe Louis in September if both Baer and Louis win their coming fights. James D. Norris, owner of the Chicago Stadium, is backing the offer. If the bout is finally arranged it will be staged in Soldiers' field, Chicago.

BROWN WATCHES BRADDOCK.

Loch Sheldrake, N. Y., June 6.—[Special.]—Bill Brown of the New York state athletic commission watched James J. Braddock in his workout today, and said he considered the challenger is in splendid shape for his championship fight with Max Baer at the Madison Square Garden bowl a week from tonight.

"I am impressed by Jim's condition," said the commissioner. "If he loses it certainly will not be because he is out of shape. He is strong enough to go the fifteen rounds right now."

Braddock went through only four rounds of boxing today. He worked two with Paul Pross, a heavyweight from New York, and two more with Jack McCarthy, clever Boston battler. Before going into the ring Braddock did five miles of road work.

In his sparring workout the challenger went through his usual give and take routine and there were many moments when the session resembled a real fight more than a training joust.

GREAT WESTERN HANDICAP.

THE Great Western handicap of old Washington Park will be revived at new Washington Park of Homewood tomorrow afternoon. This race, then run at 1½ miles, same distance as the then American Derby, was last contested in 1903, when Washington Park's racing plant was located on the tract bounded by South Park and Cottage Grove avenues and 61st and 63d streets.

While the Great Western always attracted a notable entry list and, being a handicap, was subject to surprises, perhaps its greatest upset occurred in that last previous race when Pat Dunne's lighter weighted John McGurk defeated the great handicapper, popular almost to a passion with the public, E. E. Smather's blaze faced chestnut McChesney.

Seven horses accepted the issue that day, including John McGurk, McChesney, Little Scout, Flocarline, Lucien Appleby, Gold Bell, and Flying Torpedo. McGurk carried 106 pounds and "Big Mac" top impost of 134 pounds. Yet so highly was McChesney regarded from previous efforts that his price was 3 to 5, while McGurk was 15 to 1, and if you shopped around a bit [there were books in those days] there was plenty of 20 to 1.

They were off to a good start, and as the field came by the stands and clubhouse McChesney and John McGurk were the last pair. So it went down the back stretch, with Little Scout, then Flying Torpedo, and then Lucien Appleby in the van.

Jocky Adkins on McGurk and Eddie Dominick on McChesney started their challenge about the same time. This duo, still at the extreme rear, were heads apart as they neared the final bend. Both then began the stretch runs for which they were famous. They passed other competitors, but still McChesney didn't pull away from his rival as he was expected to do. At the eighth pole the issue was still in doubt.

Then that final furlong. John McGurk, full of run and skilfully piloted, poked his nose in front, while gallant old Mac found the 26 pounds that he, 4 years old, was giving McGurk, 5 years old, too great a handicap. While McChesney continued gamely to hold all others in subjection, John McGurk was a length to the good at the wire. The 1½ miles were run in 2:31 2-5. Little Scout, Flocarline, Lucien Appleby, Gold Bell, and Flying Torpedo finished as named.

Harvey: On a recent week-end trip to Catalina Island, out in the ocean off Los Angeles, Charlie Chaplin dozed off while fishing. Whereupon the younger Chaplins, Sidney and Charlie Jr., who were along, baited his hook with an old tennis shoe and made themselves scarce.

From an unseen point of vantage they waited for the shoe to catch in subaqueous weeds and their father to pull up the old shoe. Imagine their surprise when the creator of the little Derby and funny walk reeled in a 200 pound tuna, for which he received the "Tuna Button" and honorary membership in the world-wide Tuna club. At last accounts they had not confessed.

Pick Whiting to Lead U. of C. Letter Men

Lawrence H. Whiting, star lineman of the Maroon football teams of 1910 and 1911, was elected president of the Order of the C, letter men's organization, at the 32d annual banquet of the order last night at Hutchinson Commons on the Midway campus. More than 300 former university athletes attended the dinner, which was presided over by Judge Walter Steffen, retiring president.

Representatives of forty of the forty-three classes of letter winners attended the dinner, among them three of the original group of letter men of the 1892-'93 season. Henry Gordon Gale, L. Brent Vaughn, and Dr. A. R. E. Wyant were the veterans present. Thirty-seven men who won their first letters this year were inducted into the order by Nelson Norgren, basketball coach.

Preceding the dinner, a team of alumni held the 1935 varsity baseball team to a 5 to 5 tie in 9 innings. Pat Page Sr., former Maroon player and coach, now coaching on the coast, pitched the first five innings.

Speakers at the banquet included H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, Princeton football coach; Judge Jerome [Duke] Dunne, newly appointed Maroon line coach; T. N. Metcalf, athletic director, who reported that athletic conditions at the Midway are "healthy and improving"; Pat Page Sr., and A. A. Stagg Jr., who leaves the Midway this year to become coach and athletic director at Susquehanna university.

C. F. Kennedy, football end thirty years ago, was elected vice president of the order, and W. C. Gorgas, lineman of the seasons of 1916-'17, was named secretary-treasurer.

GIVES HOSPITAL $2,000 WINNINGS IN SWEEPSTAKES

Morristown, N. J., June 6.—(AP)—Herbert Walton of Chatham township dropped his work as an automobile painter long enough today to acknowledge he had given away the $3,800 he won in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes last fall. His wife is a school teacher.

Walton bought a ticket in the lottery to "help a fellow out." He used less than $100 to pay a few bills, and then, he said, he helped a number of friends.

"Then with $2,000 left I asked one of the Overlook hospital [at Summit] trustees if the money would be acceptable for charity cases," Walton continued. "I thought at first they might not want to take money that I had won in a gamble, but they were willing, so I sent it to them last week."

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 6.—Ranking track and field athletes from two score universities and colleges in the central states tonight marked time waiting for the inaugural of the tenth annual Central Intercollegiate games tomorrow afternoon in Marquette stadium. Preliminaries in ten events are scheduled to start at 3 o'clock, central standard time, while the finals in the program of 14 individual events and two relay races will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The success of this year's meet, which promises to be the best since the games were founded by the late Knute Rockne, depends largely on the weather. Rain or cold weather not only will handicap the athletes, who are expected to shatter fully half of the all time meet records, but will cut down attendance. Advance ticket sales indicate an attendance of 10,000, perhaps more. Receipts will be prorated among the competing schools, and with adequate financial assistance further growth of the meet is assured.

Owens Holds Spotlight.

Jesse Owens, Ohio State's phenominal athlete who broke three world records and tied another in the recent Western conference meet at Ann Arbor, is number one in tomorrow's parade of stars. No stranger to Marquette stadium where he competed last June in the National A. A. U. games, Owens hopes to establish meet records in three events. Two of these now belong to Ralph Metcalfe, who won the 100 and 200 meter races from Owens in the 1934 Nationals. Metcalfe will be on the sidelines watching the one man he most fears in the coming National A. A. U. meet at Lincoln, Neb., and in next year's campaign for places on the United States Olympic team.

Metcalfe is not eligible for the Centrals since he has completed his three year span of competition and he vetoed a match race with Owens on the ground that he was not in condition and his examinations in Marquette's law school interfered.

With good weather, Owens hopes to esclipse Metcalfe's time of 9 5-10 seconds for 100 yards. Owens ran the century at Ann Arbor in 9 4-10 seconds, tying the world record and establishing a conference mark which eliminated Eddie Tolan's name as Big Ten record holder. There seems to be no doubt that Owens will shatter Metcalfe's 220 yard Central Intercollegiate record. Metcalfe set a mark of 21 2-10 seconds around one turn in 1933 while, in comparison, Owens' time of 20 3-10 seconds in the Big Ten games is cited. This, however, was on a straightaway.

Jesse Should Take Broad Jump.

The third mark is a certainty, if any prediction can be a sure thing. George Meagher, Notre Dame, defending broad jump champion, leaped 24 feet 7 inches last year for the Central mark. Owens will have no difficulty beating this. He holds the unofficial world record of 26 feet 8¼ inches and defeated Meagher in the broad jump at the Drake relays last April when both men bettered the former record. Owens jumped approximately a foot farther than Meagher that afternoon.

Owens will not compete in the 220 yard low hurdles since the necessity of qualifying in the afternoon and then racing again a few hours later constitutes too great a strain. Owens is the one athlete Milwaukee fans wish to see more than any other, but in the list of more than 300 starters are many others whose ability ranks them in the nation's first flight of stars.

Don Lash, Indiana, conference record holder in the one mile run, and Ray Sears, Butler, who ran the fastest mile in the history of the Central Intercollegiates, are listed to continue their rivalry. Lash's time in the Big Ten still was not quite equal to Sears' mark of 4:14.1. Both these men are expected to continue their feud in the two mile event.

Three Good Javelin Throwers.

Mark Panther, Iowa, defending javelin champion, is outstanding in this contest. His mark of 219 feet 7¾ inches at Ann Arbor is tops for American college men. His Central record is 211 feet 3 inches, which he hopes to better tomorrow. Ward Cuff, Marquette, is among his chief rivals, although Duane Purvis, Purdue, if he competes, can toss the javelin well over 200 feet.

The high hurdle record, a mediocre 15 second mark, probably will be bettered. Jack Kellner, Wisconsin, won the Big Ten race in 14 5-10 seconds, which is sufficient margin to predict a new record tomorrow.

Wesley Busbee, defending discus champion, may step up his mark. At any rate, he is the best in this event. Don Elser, Notre Dame, another defending champion, is the best shot putter in the group which will strive to better Elser's record of 51 feet 3-5 inch. The pole vault mark of 13 feet 7 inches, made by Lowry, Michigan Normal, in 1933, will stand unless Irving Seeley, Illinois, Big Ten champion, or John Wonsowitz, Ohio State, can reach their best heights.

Buckeyes Are Favored.

Ohio State is considered the favorite to win the team championship, taken last year by Indiana university. Notre Dame, defeated only once in nine dual meets, is the most logical choice for runnerup. Ohio is the only team this year to whip the Irish. Elser and Meagher will be backed by Vincent Murphy, high jumper, who should at least gain a second place. Linn Philson, Drake, whipped Murphy at Drake, but the order of finish may be changed tomorrow.

WHOPPER SCORES BY TWO LENGTHS AT WASHINGTON

Albert D. Disqualified in Fourth Race.

Whopper, son of Pharamond II.-Romance from Hal Price Headley's stable and appropriately named because he is he biggest horse in training in America, easily won the Grand Ledge purse at seven furlongs which featured the program at Washington Park yesterday.

Towering like a giant over his rivals he came up from behind at the head of the stretch and went on to win as his rider, Charley Landolt, pleased by two lengths. Motley finished second and Col. E. R. Bradley's Born Happy was third. Neither was a match for the long striding Whopper, who ran seven furlongs in 1:27 4-5 and paid $4.44 for a two dollar ticket.

Jocky A. Martinez's inability to keep Albert D from L. E. Komorous' stable running straight and true down the stretch cost the Komorous 3 year old the fourth race. Albert D beat Rickey Roo by more than a length and was much the best, but Martinez let him bear over on Rickey Roo so roughly in the final stages that the Komorous colt was disqualified. This moved Rickey Roo into first place, gave second money to Dixiana stable's Proposing and third place to Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody's Harold Wiley. Rickey Roo was a short priced favorite. Albert D was 10 to 1 in the betting.

The cardinal and green jacket of John Marsch, Chicago, was carried to victory for the first time this year by Epernay in the six furlong fifth race. He romped in front all the way and won easily. Epernay is a son of Epinard-Washoe Belle, and is trained by Roscoe Goose.

Otto Lehmann, president of the Arlington Park Jocky club, paid his first visit of the season to Washington Park. He was with John P. Harding.

Ten horses, part of the western division of the C. V. Whitney stable which will race throughout most of the Chicago season, arrived yesterday from Rockingham Park. Heading the string is the 4 year old filly, High Glee, an expected starter in the Great Western handicap. Five 3 year olds, Pantoufle, Pundit, Surveyor, Synod, and Wizard, and four 2 year olds, Two Bob, Flavor, Microbe, and Capuche, accompanied her.

Jocky Glen Haines, painfully injured in a spill here Saturday, is progressing satisfactorily in the hospital at Chicago Heights. He expects to return to the track in about two weeks.

That L. T. Whitehill intends sending Gusto to the post for tomorrow's Great Western handicap was indicated yesterday morning when the 6 year old was sent a mile and a furlong in 1:55 breezing.

In fine company

.... Where rare old liquors and vintage wines are a matter of course, you will find Mistletoe Distilled Dry Gin — for Mistletoe has been the aristocrat of gins since 1882.

Connoisseurs say that no finer gin is distilled anywhere in the world. Its smoothness, dryness, and bouquet add the touch of excellence to cocktail, fizz, and rickey. It blends better, and tastes better.

By the drink or by the bottle (fifth or pint) insist on Mistletoe.

KRUEGER SHOOTS 71 FOR LEAD IN NATIONAL OPEN

MacKenzie Is Only Other to Equal Par.

Oakmont, of all places. Butch wasn't over par until the 11th hole, and within the preceding ten, he threw himself a pair of birdies. One of these grew out of a five foot putt on the second green, and he improved that by reaching the 477 yard ninth fo r two putts and a birdie four.

His first grief occurred at the 11th, where he drove a trap. At the 12th, his second shot turned up in a ditch, and in spite of a good recovery shot, the ball rolled into a bunker. He retrieved one of these by laying his tee shot to the 13th eight feet from the pin and dropping it. He had to hole a twelve footer on the next green for his par four and did. The gallery, which had been attracted by that peculiar grapevine which runs through national open shows, gasped at the 234 yard 16th, where Krueger's brassie struck the green and rolled up to within less than a foot of the hole.

Rims Cup from 20 Feet.

Butch had given them another thrill on the 15th, the only three putt green his card showed. He took the three from 80 feet, but his second try from twenty feet rimmed the hole and nearly brought him a par. He got his regulation four at the 17th, and then sent two whistling wood shots, both perfect strokes, right up the eighteenth fairway toward a wall of fans who until then had thought MacKenzie's 72, posted shortly after noon, would stand for the day.

Krueger's spoon shot gave them the first hint that the 72 would not be low. It dropped on the green, 40 feet to the left of the pin. It was a difficult putt over a pair of humps in the green without the pressure attendant upon Krueger at the moment, but the Wisconsin pro stroked it surely toward the cup without dawdling, and it missed the cup by an inch, rolling three feet past. He stepped up to that one as confidently and dropped it for his par four and the 71.

MacKenzie Starts Well.

MacKenzie began his assault early, scoring birdies on the first two holes, reaching the first green, 482 yards away, in 2, and then dropping a 10 footer at the second. He matched par from there to the sixth, where he was short of the green in a bunker. He lost another stroke to par at the ninth, where he pushed his tee shot to the rough, and then, after reaching the edge in 3, needed 3 more to get down.

Roland 3 putted the tenth, to be 2 over par, but got his pars on the next two holes, and then sank a 10 foot explosion out of the sand at the thirteenth. At the fourteenth, he was trapped again, but escaped by recovering to within 4 feet and sinking the putt for a par.

He smacked out his best shot of the day, a stout brassie to the 234 yard sixteenth, but on the same green made his poorest effort on the greens by missing the putt remaining and settling for a par 3. A driver and a brassie brought him to the home green in 2, and he was down in as many, for a 4, and a 34, 1 under, on the back nine.

Smith Encounters Trouble.

Horton Smith's remarkable round was scored in spite of mishaps which might have sent another golfer away with something in the vicinity of 80. Horton birdied the second with an iron shot to a yard from the flag. On the next two he was in trouble, but got pars on both by some heroic recoveries. He was in the rough off the second tee and fought his way out of two traps on the third.

The tall Oak Parker continued the good work by running down a neat twelve footer at the fifth, so that in spite of missing the eighth green and trapping his drive to the ninth, he shaded par on the first nine by a stroke. Another bunkered tee shot gave him a five at the 349 yard 14th. He overshot the 16th green into another splash of Oakmont's choicest sand, but chipped off it to within ten feet, and then got the putt down for his par. He lost his last decision to par at the 17th when his second sailed over the green and he failed to drop a five footer for the par.

Chicago Golf Stars Place High in Open

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakmont, Pa., June 6.—The Chicago district delegation attending the National Open golf tournament here, and regarded as the strongest single unit in the field, today cast at least ten votes for the title in the first round play, that number breaking 80, and any of them is capable of turning on a round of hot golf during the next two days.

Those who cracked 80 included Horton Smith of Oak Park, 73; Tommy Armour of Medinah and Jimmy Foulis of Ruth Lake, 74; Ky Laffoon of Northmoor, 75; Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, 76; Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Bill Schwartz of Bink's Links, and Dick Metz of the Millroad farm course, 77; Denny Shute of Westward Ho, 78, and Bob MacDonald of MacDonald's practice range, 79.

Gene Sarazen of New York, still the favorite to win the open, was forced to struggle for his 75 and came out of the first round short a putter. Gene was swinging it as he usually does going to the fourteenth, and the head of the club came against a rock and broke off cleanly. The little Italian had only two birdies on his card, and was over par on four holes, taking a five on the short eighth, which he three putted, blowing a four footer.

Bobby Jones, four times winner of the open, was about the place late in the day in his rôle of journalist. He reported himself feeling fairly well after his recent attack of appendicitis, and at present his physician sees no need for an operation.

Lehman, Sweet Card 75 to Tie in Bob o' Link Handicap Event

Johnny Lehman and Art B. Sweet tied for low gross honors in the Chicago district handicap event at Bob O' Link yesterday, each carding 75. In the toss, Lehman won. Sweet had an excellent chance, but on the last green took three putts from ten feet and ended in a tie.

In class A, Paul Curtiss, Libertyville, won with 77—8—69; in class B, Sherman Spitzer, Oak Park, won with 79—9—70, while in class C, C. A. Meilicke, Tam O'Shanter, won the toss from A. A. Baur, South Shore. Each had 77 net.

Lehman was unsteady on both nines, missing greens twice, three putting twice and getting into a hedge fence. Sweet also missed several putts, was in the same hedge and overshot once.

WIND CHANGES TEST INGENUITY OF FISHERMEN

BY BOB BECKER.

When the wind changes you may have to look for your fish in a different part of the lake. That was the hunch we followed a few days ago at Teal lake, near Hayward, Wis.

On the two previous days when our party had been busy with the wall eyed pike the wind came out of the north or northeast and we found that certain weed and gravel bars were best.

Then came the change in weather. The wind switched to the south. The sky became overcast. About 30 minutes after we left the camp a light rain started to fall. We could look across the lake and see whitecaps rolling along. The situation was entirely changed, so we changed fishing locations after one try at the weed bar.

Hurrying down wind with the whitecaps breaking around us, Nelson Ross, who was acting as skipper of the craft, threw out the anchor off the mouth of Lynch creek, which flows into Teal lake. This was a rough spot because we were getting the full, down lake sweep of wind and waves.

Lyman Barr, sitting in the prow, got his artificial lure into action. He tossed it (a metal single hook, bucktail combination) toward an old snag to the right of the creek mouth. On the third cast he had a strike.

In less than a minute Barr had hooked a two pound wall-eye on his bucktail lure. Then the rest of us swung into action. We missed a couple of quick strikes and then hooked a medium sized wall-eye. Changing lures frequently, we found that they were ready to wallop just about anything that was flashy and had plenty of action in it.

RICHER—BECAUSE IT'S VINTAGE WINE
MILDER—BECAUSE IT'S VINTAGE TOBACCO

AMONG THE WINES of the Bordeaux region, Château Haut-Brion ranks as one of the greatest. And connoisseurs seek out the bottling of 1923—for in that year nature smiled, and produced an exceptional Vintage for this wine.

IN THE OHIO TOBACCO REGIONS, we watch the growing crops. When we see a Vintage crop maturing, as shown below, our buyers are on the spot to purchase the best of it for use in White Owls.

Tobacco, like Wine, is best in Vintage Years

THE SAME VARIATIONS in sunshine, rainfall, temperature, that affect the Vintages of wine—also control the growth of tobacco. Just as the flavor of a grape changes—so the tobacco varies from year to year. That's why the finest cigars are made from Vintage crops.

The filler tobaccos used in every White Owl are selected with the greatest care. Not an ounce of tobacco of non-Vintage quality is ever used in White Owl.

To make it easy to identify this mild, mellow Vintage filler cigar—a Vintage mark is placed on the inside cover of every box. This mark is your assurance of a delightful smoke... an assurance that no other cigar gives you.

WHAT OUR VINTAGE TOBACCO IS

THE first requirement for Vintage tobacco is pure seed. To get such seed, we grow a few acres of finest tobacco. As each bud forms, it is covered with a paper bag... preventing contamination by pollen from inferior tobacco.

Our Crop Inspection System, the only known organization of its kind, keeps a check on growing conditions in the finest filler-tobacco districts in America. We know where Vintage tobacco is maturing and buy the best of it for White Owl.

Even in Vintage years, our buyers classify all filler tobaccos into seven grades. Only tobacco of the quality of the top three grades is ever used in a White Owl. That's what we mean when we say Grade A Vintage tobacco.

If all the tobacco crops were ruined for the next two years—it wouldn't affect the quality of White Owls. At present, we have enough Grade A Vintage filler tobacco mellowing in our warehouses to make nearly one billion White Owls.

STEEL MEN VOTE TO KEEP CODE AS FAR AS POSSIBLE

Institute Issues Formal Resolution.

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—More than 200 members of the American Iron and Steel institute, representing 90 per cent of the industry, today adopted a resolution which declared that the companies would continue the wages and hours for labor provided by the NRA steel code, as far as possible.

The steel executives also pledged themselves to continue to protect their employés' rights to collective bargaining and to maintain the code principles of fair competition. Eugene G. Grace, the organization's president, said that it would be suicidal for the steel industry to interfere with the commitments made with labor under the code.

Grace's View of Situation.

"Nothing in the Supreme court decision requires the industry to change its practices of fair competition which have been adhered to under the steel code," Grace said. "Nothing in the court decision requires the industry to go back to chiseling of wages, secret rebates, or any discriminatory methods of competition.

"The industry has three great obligations: First, to preserve fair treatment for labor; second, to deal fairly with the buying public; third, to exercise an intelligent trusteeship of the funds invested in the industry. I put the obligation to labor first because the industry's great obligation starts with labor."

It was estimated that the executives represented companies employing 425,000 men and that the stockholders numbered 492,000.

SEARS RETAINS PROGRAM

Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., yesterday announced issuance of orders that hour and wage standards in effect under the NRA be continued in all of the big mail company's retail stores. From other parts of the nation came similar reports of maintenance of code standards.

The coat and suit manufacturers held out what they regard as a model plan for other industries to follow in carrying on beneficial parts of NRA. Meeting in New York, this group dissolved its NRA code authority and immediately reorganized it as a voluntary board.

Will Establish Bureaus.

"The board will establish the strongest possible bureau of fair code practices," said George W. Alger, chairman. Plans also provide for public representation through the department of commerce and labor and the buying public.

In Detroit, the directors of the Automotive Parts and Equipment Manufacturers, Inc., adopted unanimously a resolution urging members of the industry to "maintain fair standards of wages, hours, and working conditions." The industry affects 200,000 workers in more than 30 states, and the recommendation was sent to 800 manufacturers in 200 cities.

Organizations of wool manufacturers, textile men, and garter and belt makers also have declared for continuation of code standards.

Adopts Voluntary Code.

A second voluntary code was adopted yesterday at Wilson, N. C., where the Eastern Carolina Warehousemen's association decided to operate on a minimum wage scale of 22½ cents an hour and a 50 hour week. Violation carries a $500 fine. The code was said to differ with the NRA code only in that maximum hours were raised from 40 to 50.

The Office Equipment Manufacturers institute and the Consumers' Goods Industries committee announced that they would abide by the code work rules. Many thousands are employed in these industries.

The Chicago retail code authority under which 8,000 retail stores in the corporate limits of Chicago were governed by the NRA began to wind up its affairs yesterday, Walter A. Knopp, secretary, announced.

"We have been authorized to employ auditors to check up and close our books," Knopp said. "The office, however, will continue for six months while its accounts are liquidated."

FREE BUSINESS CAN RECOVER, GAY DECLARES

Cites Accumulated Needs and Buying Power.

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—Business has the power to recover if granted a reasonable opportunity to do so, free of uncertainties, Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock exchange, said today in an address before the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

Gay asserted that the country had a "gigantic jam of accumulated wants and buying power," and that the jam could be released only if conditions under which private business can afford to take risks are satisfied. These conditions, he said, are freedom for management, a greater sense of security, and an abatement of the hostility toward profits.

"Path Out of Depression."

Gay cited six independent studies of the "durable goods backlog," the most conservative estimate showing a capital goods deficit for the depression of 27 billion dollars. The highest estimate was 85 billion dollars.

"Between these two we find the estimate of the industrial conference board with an aggregate of 69 billion dollars," he said. "These figures indicate an assured pathway out of the depression.

"Assuming a 1929 rate of output, it would require over three and a half years of activity to meet the deficiency in private residential construction and practically three years' operation to compensate for the pause in commercial and industrial construction."

Gay declared that no substitute can adequately "replace the natural action of private enterprise." He said that although personally satisfied that the government is too wise to attempt the impossible, "there are those who would like to see the state assume the functions of private business.

Pictures Size of Task.

By way of illustrating the size of the task of rehabilitation, Gay said that government appropriations for this purpose have amounted to $8,000,000,000 while the estimated backlog of potential business postponed by the depression amounts to $69,000,000,000.

Gay said that he did not care to embark on the controversial subject of the NRA, but pointed out that the coercive power of codes was used largely in the maintenance of minimum wages, minimum hours, the right of collective bargaining, and the abolition of child labor and unfair methods of competition.

Thomas I. Parkinson, head of the chamber and president of the Equitable Life Insurance company, said that there is now a better atmosphere in the business world because the sphere of government in business has been limited.

GAINS SHOWN IN COTTON AFTER EARLY WEAKNESS

Cotton closed higher in leading domestic markets yesterday after fluctuating nervously throughout the session. Early dealings uncovered marked weakness, but demand improved as the day wore on, and prices moved slowly upward.

Chicago futures closed 5 to 13 points higher, New Orleans turned in advances of 1 to 14 points and New York recorded a gain of 7 to 11 points.

Most of the south was free from rain, but scattered showers are predicted for south Texas and the western portion of the belt. Southern spot sales amounted to 7,679 bales. Cash prices moved up ten points in all markets, closing at 11.90 cents per pound in New York and Galveston and 12.00 cents per pound in Houston and New Orleans. Range of futures in cents per pound:

ROOSEVELT PUTS RAIL PENSION PLANS ON SHELF

High Court's Decree Called 'Sweeping.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—President Roosevelt today abandoned temporarily all efforts to secure a new railroad pension act to replace the one knocked out by the Supreme court.

Because the court's decision on the invalid law was so "sweeping," Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has advised him that any attempt to secure a new pension law at this session of congress would be "unwise," the President disclosed. The announcement was made in a letter which Mr. Roosevelt sent to Representative Sam Rayburn [Dem., Texas], chairman of the house interstate commerce committee.

Commission May Study Situation.

The President, however, passed on to congress a suggestion evolved by Cummings, Joseph B. Eastman, rail coördinator, and Donald Richberg, NRA chairman, that congress create "a commission to investigate the factual situation and make findings and suggestions for further legislation, if any."

Thus, another piece of New Deal legislation which the Supreme court declared unconstitutional, appeared doomed to oblivion as the President sought to dramatize what he believes to be the need for constitutional revision of federal powers.

The decision to drop any further railroad pension bill probably does not presage abandonment of unemployment or old age pension measures by the President. New Dealers have been insisting that the proposed unemployment and old age benefit laws rest on the taxing power rather than on the interstate commerce power, which was the basis for the NRA and railroad pension laws.

Pass Suggestion Along.

The White House made public, together with the President's letter to Representative Rayburn, a letter from the attorney general to Mr. Roosevelt revealing that Cummings, Eastman, and Richberg had been ordered to study possible new railroad pension legislation, but had found it not feasible. The President's letter said:

"My Dear Mr. Chairman:

"In conformity with my telephone conversation with you, I am enclosing herewith a letter to me from the attorney general under date of June 4. This letter follows conferences between the attorney general, the coördinator of transportation, and Mr. Donald Richberg. The attorney general suggests that in view of the sweeping character of the Supreme court decision in the railroad retirement case, it would be unwise to attempt to secure new legislation at this session of the congress. He further suggests the passage of a resolution by the congress to create a commission to investigate the factual situation and make findings and suggestions for further legislation, if any.

"Very sincerely yours,
"[Signed]
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

The attorney general, under date of June 4, advised the President by letter, as follows:

"Dear Mr. President:

"Pursuant to your request of May 10 that the railroad retirement matter be discussed with Mr. Eastman and Mr. Richberg, a conference was held in Mr. Richberg's office on May 23, at which Mr. Richberg, Mr. Eastman, and Assistant Attorney General Stephens were present and discussed the matter. The following conclusions, which I believe are sound, were reached at that conference:

"1. It was deemed inadvisable to request the Supreme court to grant a rehearing. On May 25 a release was issued to the press setting forth the reasons why a rehearing was not requested, as follows: 'Every phase of the case and every issue of fact and law urged by the government, or which has been emphasized by others interested, was fully considered and discussed by the court in both the majority and minority opinions.

Finds New Issues Lacking.

"There have been brought to the attention of the department no new issues which could be presented to the court; and to the contentions made by the government in brief and in argument it is believed that nothing could be added.

"2. In view of the sweeping character of the decision, it was determined that it would be unwise to attempt to secure new legislation at this session of congress.

"3. It was determined, however, in conformity with Mr. Eastman's suggestion, that congress be requested to pass a resolution to create a commission to investigate the factual situation and make findings and suggestions for further legislation, if any.

"You will recall that on May 17 the coördinator wrote you suggesting such a resolution, and on May 20 you referred this matter to me for recommendations.

"Respectfully yours,
"[Signed] HOMER CUMMINGS,
"Attorney General."

Chicago-Portland Speed Train Starts Initial Trip

The Union Pacific railroad yesterday inaugurated a new fast service between Chicago and Portland, Ore., when its new streamlined Pullman equipped train, the City of Portland, left the Pacific coast terminus at 6:45 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time. The train will arrive in Chicago at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, coming from Omaha over the North Western lines. Its scheduled running time is thirty-nine hours and forty-five minutes, thus reducing the present running time by about eighteen hours. The train will leave Chicago at 7:15 p. m. tomorrow night for its return run. It will make six trips a month each way thereafter.

Senators Call Utility Bill Path to Dictatorship

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Republican senators denounced the New Deal as a government of destruction, moving in the direction of a dictatorship. These attacks were made as the senate debated the Wheeler-Rayburn utility bill today.

Nevertheless there were reports that the opposition is not seriously concerned about the passage of the measure, believing that the Supreme court, in view of the NRA and Frazier-Lemke decisions, certainly will hold the utility bill unconstitutional. That attitude was revealed in a question propounded by Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Iowa] to Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], sponsor of the bill.

Cites Market as Omen.

"I was informed this morning that the only stocks which did not go down after the NRA decisions were the utility stocks," Wheeler declared.

"Is it the Montana senator's theory that this was due to the belief of the men in the stock exchange that this bill would be held unconstitutional?" Senator Dickinson asked. Wheeler denied that.

In attacking the "death sentence" for holding companies in the bill, Senator Dickinson asserted that during 146 years of American history only 60 laws of congress had been held unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

"Four of those," he said, "were New Deal laws, all held unconstitutional within the first five months of the calendar year. In my judgment there will be several more when the court convenes in the fall."

"We have authority to regulate these companies, so why destroy them and further disorganize business?" Senator Dickinson asked.

"Mania for Destruction."

Senator Jesse H. Metcalf [Rep., R. I.], said the New Deal was "obsessed with a mania for destruction which has spread through all lines of human endeavor, from the killing of hogs to the liquidation of utility holding companies."

Senator Metcalf said the Wheeler-Rayburn bill did not stand alone in the philosophy of the administration, but was a part of a preconceived plan to "expunge from the land all elements of industrial democracy and all but the mere rudiments of the rights of men to compete openly and honestly in private business."

No one would seek to defend the evils of holding companies, Senator Metcalf declared, but those evils should be eliminated by "regulation, not confiscation." The pending measure, he asserted, would destroy some of the most heavily financed institutions in the country, wiping out the life savings of millions of investors.

Communism or Chaos?

"From the TVA, through the long list of federal power projects, we find evidences of the government entering into competition with private industry," Mr. Metcalf added. "Millions are being squandered in the Tennessee valley, and 36 millions have been allocated for a fantastic scheme to harness the tides in an area already oversupplied with electric power.

"What is the end of all this madness, this radicalism? Is it a new form of government? A dictatorship? Socialism, communism or chaos?"

Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.], asserted that government control of electric power and its transmission under "a system of state socialism" was the essence of the communist philosophy of the late Nicolai Lenin.

"Lenin expresses it in a mathematical formula: Control of electric power plus socialism equals communism," Schall declared. "The logic of the Lenin formula is apparent.

"Electric power is the ultimate source of motive energy for all industries, transportation and communications. He who controls the industries upon which the people live and thereby controls the transportation of the people, and their products and the communications which make them a civilized society, controls thereby their lives, liberty and pursuit of happiness."

KRESGE COMPANY MAY ERECT STATE STREET BUILDING

Construction of a new building at the southeast corner of State and Washington streets, replacing the present Columbus Memorial and Venetian buildings, was proposed yesterday in a petition filed by eleven bondholders of the Stevens Brothers corporation, owner of the buildings, before Federal Judge Barnes. The two present structures, as well as the adjoining Stevens building, are being administered under section 77-B of the bankruptcy act.

The plan calls for wrecking the buildings by the S. S. Kresge company, department store firm, which will erect a new two or three story building. The petition says the Kresge company offers a flat rental of $240,000 yearly for 25 years, plus a percentage of gross receipts above $5,000,000.

The petition pointed out that the two buildings, built in the early nineties, would probably have to be replaced before bonds on them matured, and that replacement with a new structure would enhance the value of the Stevens building, erected in 1914.

Commodity Index Lower; Wholesale Foods Steady

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—A slight decline in commodity prices during the week ended June 1, was reported today by the bureau of labor statistics whose composite index stood at 80.2 as compared to 80.3 for the preceding week and 73.9 a year ago. Dun and Bradstreet's weekly index of wholesale food prices remained unchanged from the previous week at $2.60 for the week ended June 4. In the same week last year the index stood at $2.14.

BEGIN DRAFTING BILL TO MAKE AAA SUIT PROOF

Ban on Process Tax Actions Sought.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—The house committee on agriculture today began a painstaking consideration of the administration's revised agricultural adjustment act, which is designed to eliminate features which may be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

Although Speaker Byrns announced that he hoped to take up the AAA amendments early next week, Chairman Marvin Jones [Dem., Tex.] of the committee said he believed the committee would need a week or ten days before proper amendments could be drawn.

Seek to Block Suits.

The bill, sponsored by the secretary of agriculture, contained a provision that, if the Supreme court should decide that the processing taxes levied under the present AAA law were unconstitutional, processors of farm products could not file suit to recover $824,430,579 already paid.

An amendment was approved by the committee today calling for processing fee collections to be paid into the treasury and an equivalent sum appropriated instead of putting the collections into a separate fund as at present. This, in Chairman Jones' opinion, would remove any question as to the validity of the processing fees.

Changes in Measure.

The new measure differs materially both from the present act and the AAA amendments heretofore pending in the house and senate. Besides giving legal sanction to prevailing processing tax rates and deleting Secretary Wallace's authority to license processors and handlers, the new amendments contain the following provisions:

1. Prescribes a definite rule of procedure for the removal of surpluses and assistance to exports to place it beyond challenge as an unwarranted delegation of legislative power.

2. Substitutes for present licensing authority the power of the secretary to issue orders setting forth minimum prices, quota allotments and terms of sale of milk, vegetables and fruits, including nuts and their products.

3. Closes the courts to suits in equity by processors and handlers of farm products for recovery of processing tax payments illegally collected.

Conforms to Court Ruling.

4. Alters present language of the act respecting interstate commerce so as to make it conform to rulings of the Supreme court on this point.

5. Authorizes Secretary Wallace, after investigation and hearings, to increase processing taxes by 20 per cent of existing rates or reduce them to zero, with provision that if such flexible authority is held invalid, present rates of tax shall prevail.

Republican members of the committee criticized the powers granted to Secretary Wallace as too broad a delegation of legislative authority. The amendments are merely removing the licensing provisions to substitute orders from the secretary, they complained.

The administration bill hopes to meet such criticism by inclusion of specifications that the AAA's efforts should apply to the current of interstate commerce or activities in substantial competition or directly burdening, obstructing, or affecting interstate commerce.

AAA Spends Over Billion.

All expenditures of the Agricultural Adjustment administration from its organization May 12, 1933, to May 1, 1935, totaled $1,001,596,291.83, an audit disclosed today. Funds available amounted to $1,222,849,218.08.

The expenditures included rental and benefit payments to producers, $727,391,226.08; removal and conservation of surplus commodities, $225,430,069.48, and administrative costs, $48,774,996.27.

Rental and benefit payments, from funds available through processing taxes cumulative for all adjustment programs, by commodities, were as follows: Cotton $225,985,152.40, wheat $163,592,147.41, tobacco $33,573,077.23, corn-hogs $256,366,878.10, and sugar $10,885,917.87. "Removal of surplus" operations paid out of processing taxes include: Hogs $46,083,678.96, wheat $6,097,239.21, dairy products $10,958,434.25, sugar $365,536.44, and peanuts $350,911.05.

Processing tax collections of $824,430,579.15 reported up to May 1 by commodities on which it was collected, the totals were as follows: Wheat $223,604,731.02, cotton $227,973,854.37, compensatory taxes on paper and jute $12,200,580.80, tobacco $44,709,132.99, field corn $10,234,530.94, hogs $243,489,535.35, sugar cane and sugar beets $54,282,078.55, peanuts $2,933,973.77, rice $5,632.31, cotton ginning tax under Bankhead cotton control act $813,902.64, tobacco producers sales tax under Kerr-Smith tobacco control act $3,208,586.32, unclassified $973,148.99.

Franc Spurts Above Gold Export Point

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—French francs rose 1¾ points today to 6.6 cents on support attributed to French government sources and the American stabilization fund. This placed the franc above its gold export level just as the Bank of France announced that the loss of gold for the week ended May 30 amounted to nearly 5 billion francs, placing the total loss since the current movement began at the beginning of April to nearly 11 billion francs.

While the price of spot francs rose, futures were exceedingly weak at a discount of 45 points for three month delivery in New York and 3¾ to 4¼ francs to the pound in London.

With the franc finishing today at 6.6 cents, the value of the American dollar against francs dropped sharply to $1.0051 from $1.0077 yesterday, and based on the old parity of the franc the dollar was worth 59.36 cents, compared with 59.52 cents yesterday.

Support Plan Explained.

It was believed likely that the Bank of France had obtained credits here to be used in bolstering its exchange. These credits, bankers suggested, could have been secured by sale of gold in Paris to the American stabilization fund in return for dollar balances made available in this market. In effect such an arrangement would be similar to gold exports from France to the United States, but it would not be limited by shipping facilities. It could be carried out through the earmarking of large amounts of gold in the vaults of the Bank of France to the credit of the fund and the simultaneous payment for that gold here in dollars for use in supporting the franc.

Evidence supporting the belief in such an arrangement was supplied by the Bank of France statement for May 31, issued today. It showed a large loss of gold but a gain in the bank's holdings of sight balances abroad, indicating that some of the gold had been exchanged for balances in foreign markets.

Gold Loss Is Large.

The statement of the Bank of France showed that the gold loss was 4,817,000,000 francs in the week ended May 30. The bank's reserve ratio was reduced to 73.35 per cent, the lowest it has been since the current gold movement began. In the preceding week the bank lost gold amounting to 3,166,388,660 francs.

Total gold holding of the bank on May 30 amounted to 71,778,728,648 francs, or about $4,726,629,304. This compares with 76,595,581,341, or about $5,047,000,000, in the preceding week.

Other gold currencies today gained with the franc, gains of 18 points each being shown in the Swiss franc and the Dutch guilder, placing them at 32.70 and 67.73 cents, respectively, and above the gold export levels.

The British pound gained 1⅛ cents to close at $4.94½. Scandinavian currencies eased 3 to 5 points.

Bar silver in New York declined ¼ cent to 72¼ cents an ounce for foreign mined metal, and in London the price of bar metal was off 9-16 of a penny at 32½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to 72.41 cents. Chinese silver currencies dropped with this recession in world silver prices.

Bar gold in London was reduced 7½ pence to 140 shillings 7 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.77.

Swiss to "Stay on Gold."

RAIL HEAD RAPS U. S. ATTEMPT TO CONTROL ROADS

An attack on governmental attempts to control the railroads is made by George P. McNear Jr., president of the Toledo, Peoria, and Western railroad, in his annual report to stockholders.

While gross revenues of the road increased, the net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1934, showed a decline of nearly $20,000 from the preceding year. Net income for 1934 amounted to $100,447 after all charges, compared with a net of $120,290 in 1933. Gross revenues were $1,715,625, against $1,690,429.

"The superimposition of governmental interference with normal business had the effect of making substantial reductions in some classes of trafic and increases in others," said McNear. "The increase in all costs of operation, both labor and material, has been greater than the slight increase in revenues. Many of these increased costs have been due solely to governmental interferences of one kind or another. The lack of wisdom of such policies is now becoming more apparent."

WALGREEN SALES RISE 6.5% OVER MAY, 1934; OTHER CHAINS LOWER

While Walgreen company yesterday reported that its sales during May were the largest for that month since 1931, other chain organizations with the exception of Peoples Drug Stores, did not share in this improvement.

Total sales of the Walgreen company for the month were $4,640,967, an increase of $284,536, or 6.5 per cent over the $4,356,431 reported for May of last year. May's sales compare with a total of $4,621,330 in April, when a gain of 9.7 per cent was shown over a year ago.

For the first five months of this year the company had sales amounting to $23,630,298, compared with $21,569,258 in the corresponding five months of last year, an increase of $2,061,040, or 9.6 per cent.

Peoples Drug Stores sales in May were $1,561,023, a rise of 16.8 per cent from the $1,336,054 in May last year and a rise of 1.5 per cent from the $1,537,7[illegible] in the preceding month. In the last five months sales totaled $7,552,084, 13 per cent above the $6,683,264 in the five months of 1934.

F. W. Woolworth sales in May were reported as $21,050,290, a decrease of 4.3 per cent from the $22,004,068 of May last year and a drop of 5.9 per cent from the $22,382,097 in April. For the first five months sales were $99,281,875, against $101,825,807 in the corresponding period of 1934.

Sales of J. J. Newberry company in May were $3,365,749. This is 1.2 per cent lower than the $3,408,136 in the same month last year and 4.4 per cent below the $3,521,565 in April. In the first five months of 1935 sales were $14,782,023, 3.5 per cent above the $14,269,135 for the same period last year.

BANK CLEARINGS OFF LAST WEEK DUE TO HOLIDAY

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—Bank clearings, due mainly to Memorial day holiday, showed a decline of 5.7 per cent from the full week a year ago in the week ended June 5, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today.

Returns from twenty-two leading cities in the United States placed total clearings at $4,727,250,000 against $5,015,159,000 in the like 1934 period. In the previous week, which was exactly the opposite in that it had six days against five a year ago, clearings were up 34.5 per cent.

New York City clearings for the five day week this year were 7.4 per cent under a year ago, totaling $3,145,493,000, against $3,396,377,000. Outside centers showed a dip of 2.3 per cent to $1,581,757,000 from $1,618,782,000.

Chicago clearings of $231,300,000 were off 3.6 per cent. Clearings in St. Louis were $79,200,000, a gain of 21.5 per cent over the 1934 week. Cleveland's total of $59,891,000 was 12.9 per cent below the 1934 week.

Chicagoan Wins Byllesby Award in Accounting Study

John H. O'Grady of the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation was the winner of second prize in the H. M. Byllesby awards for the best papers on the subject of accounting in the annual nation wide contest for employés of the electric light and power industry, the prize awards committee of the Edison Electric institute announced yesterday at its convention in Atlantic City, N. J.

Gold Imports Increase Idle Funds in Banks

The steady inflow of gold from Europe last week fed the already swollen reserves of the American banking system, forcing the volume of unused credit to a new high mark. It also raised the country's monetary gold stock to $8,916,000,000, a gain of $1,126,000,000 over the comparable period of 1934.

Total gold importations in the week ended Wednesday were 81 million dollars, the weekly report of the federal reserve system disclosed yesterday. The increase in reserve funds of the system's member banks amounted to 87 millions. The changes roughly corresponded and showed gold importations are the principal influence in the mounting reserves.

Reserves at New High Mark.

The expansion brought reserve funds of the system to 4,914 million dollars, a new high mark. Of this total an estimated 2,500 millions represents reserves in excess of legal requirements and constitute the base for an expansion of credit which might reach 25 billion dollars.

While reserve funds were mounting sharply there were only minor changes in reserve credit outstanding. The total outstanding credit of the reserve system was 8 millions above the preceding week and the total circulation of money was 3 millions higher.

The reports of the New York and Chicago member banks likewise gave no inkling of any broadening in the demand for bank credit.

Credit Shrinks In New York.

In New York the aggregate of outstanding bank credit fell 29 millions. The net reduction was accounted for principally by a sharp reduction in brokers' loans, which declined 56 millions. Commercial loans also contracted by the same amount. To find employment for their funds New York banks turned to government bonds, adding 112 millions to their holdings.

In Chicago there was a net expansion of 22 millions bank credit outstanding. All of the increase was due to purchase of 29 millions of government securities. Brokers loans were down 8 millions and commercial loans were up 7 millions.

AUTO MAKERS REPORT SALES GAIN IN MAY

The Packard Motor Car company reported May deliveries of 4,933 units as compared with only 473 in the corresponding period of 1934. The 1935 figures include the new low priced Packards.

Shipments of passenger and commercial cars and Dodge trucks were reported by the Chrysler corporation at 82,807 units against 89,325 in April and 73,879 in May, 1934. May sales of the Hudson Motor Car company totaled 8,915 against 3,137 last year.

Plymouth sales in the week ended June 1 were 9,857 units against 10,016 in the preceding week and 6,862 a year ago. De Soto sales for the same period were 655 cars, an increase of 164 over last year.

May deliveries by Buick were reported at 7,627 units, the highest this year, as compared with 6,988 in April and 5,245 in May, 1934.

VOLUNTARY CODE PLAN BRINGS UP TRUST POLICIES

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—The question of anti-trust suits, should voluntary code observance lead to violations, is being studied by the justice department, particularly with reference to such code provisions as involve any form of price fixing.

While it is believed that the department will not be excessively meticulous in its interpretation of what constitutes a violation of the anti-trust laws, in view of President Roosevelt's desire for voluntary observance of labor and fair practice provisions of codes so far as is consistent with law, yet Attorney General Cummings insisted today that the Sherman and Clayton acts were still on the statute books and would be enforced.

Congress Hotel, Consumer Company Hearings Delayed

Money Crisis Is Hinged on Deficit, Fear

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The French financial situation grows daily more acute because the French people insist on eating their cake and having it too. In attempting to satisfy these conflicting desires on the part of their constituents the politicians keep trying new schemes which even they must recognize are impossible of fulfillment.

Meanwhile, the drain on the nation's gold reserves continues as frightened capital seeks haven in foreign countries. In the last two weeks alone France has lost about one-eighth of her gold, and, although she still has a lot left, the exportation of the metal is reaching such large proportions that the day when something must be done to stop it is rapidly approaching.

* *

New cabinets are formed and die almost as fast as successive generations of fruit flies. Each politician who attempts to organize a cabinet and formulate a policy realizes that the seat of the nation's financial difficulty is the government deficit, and that the only way to prevent debasement of the franc is to reduce government extravagances or increase taxes—perhaps both.

Powerful minorities, however, object to these necessary economies. War veterans don't want their pensions cut. Government employés oppose salary and wage cuts. And subsidized producers decline to accept smaller handouts.

The demands of these minorities could probably be satisfied by debasing the franc, but neither they nor the great majority of French citizens want the value of the franc reduced. It was reduced 80 per cent about ten years ago with consequent loss to the thrifty and a reduction in the standard of living for the whole nation.

* *

Some of the radical groups have proposed as an alternative that the government adopt a New Deal, similar to that now being tried in the United States, the government continuing to spend large amounts in excess of its income, borrowing the difference from the Bank of France.

There appears to be little chance of the success of such a scheme, however, because the French people, as a result of their bitter experience in the inflation period after the war, immediately recognize danger of this type of inflation.

The politicians in Paris are clearly on the spot. They are afraid to reduce government expenditures because of the natural resentment of individuals whose government handouts would be reduced. And they are perhaps even more afraid to suggest further debasement of the currency. Meanwhile, their indecision is frightening capital out of the country and cutting down the gold reserves.

* *

The French situation is of interest in the United States because of the fact that this country's budget deficit is four times as large as the French deficit. Here, too, minorities press for greater and still greater expenditures while, at the same time, the majority of the people are opposed to further debasement of the dollar.

The American situation has not approached a crisis, however, because the public psychology is different. In this country there was no post-war currency inflation experience to educate the public to the consequences of government extravagance.

Whether a similar financial crisis will occur in the United States will depend on whether the federal deficit begins to diminish before the fears of the public are aroused as they have been in France.

EXTRA DIVIDENDS ARE DECLARED BY 3 COMPANIES

Three companies voted extra dividends yesterday. The United States Trust company declared its usual extra dividend of $10 and the regular quarterly dividend of $15 on the capital stock. Augusta and Savannah railroad voted an extra dividend of 25 cents. Glidden company declared an extra dividend of 15 cents a share. All are payable July 1.

Fundamental Investors declared a common stock dividend of 2 per cent, payable in common stock on July 1. Mount Vernon Woodberry Mills will pay $2.50 a share on the 7 per cent preferred on arrears on June 29. Selected Industries declared a dividend of 87½ cents a share on the $5.50 prior preferred on accumulations, payable July 1.

General Fireproofing company is offering preferred stockholders 4 per cent notes due in 1942 in lieu of unpaid dividends on the preferred stock.

ROSENBAUMS' MILLION DOLLAR DEBT EXPLAINED

Relatives Offer to Replace $277,642.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Disclosure of the manner in which the officers of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation ran up debts of nearly a million dollars to the corporation was made yesterday when an offer was filed before Federal Judge William H. Holly for a compromise settlement of the obligations.

The offer revealed that friends and relatives of the Rosenbaum family have agreed to put up $277,642 to clear the debts owed to the corporation by the family's private enterprises. Individual members of the family offered to give their promissory notes for their personal debts and asked that part of the total amount owed be wiped off on the grounds that it was spent to promote the business of the corporation.

Submit Reorganization Plan.

Simultaneously with the filing of the settlement offer attorneys for the corporation presented a plan for the reorganization of the company. In addition to the funds which the Rosenbaums offer to repay the plan calls for $500,000 of new capital to be provided by "outside interests." The plan is contingent upon acceptance by the court of the settlement offer and would retain for the family a voice in the company's management.

The promissory notes which the former officers offer in lieu of cash payment would run from 18 months to 6 years and would cover personal indebtedness amounting to approximately $375,000.

Large Exemptions Claimed.

The family sought exemption from payment of $217,454 which Joseph Rosenbaum of New York is listed as owing the company, and $111,033 owed by the Sitting Bull corporation, a securities trading concern controled by Joseph Rosenbaum.

The claim was made that these funds were expended in promotion of the business of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation, part of which was advanced as "entertainment expense" to Joseph Rosenbaum, who was endeavoring to build up business for the company by "contacting" New York brokers. One disbursement of $13,550 was made by Rosenbaum Grain corporation through the Sitting Bull corporation to Benjamin Block, partner of a New York Stock exchange firm as compensation for business turned over to the Rosenbaum company.

Trustees Submit Offer.

The settlement offer was submitted to the court by Attorneys Luther D. Swanstrom and George E. Q. Johnson, representing Louis T. Sayre, trustee for the corporation. The offer was made to the trustee by Francis X. Busch, representing the Rosenbaum family.

Judge Holly set a hearing for June 19 on the settlement offer. At that time Emanuel F. Rosenbaum, former president of the corporation; Edward S. Rosenbaum, former vice president, and other officers will be called to offer testimony justifying the terms of the proposed offer.

In detailing the proposed settlement Attorney Busch withheld the identity of the persons who are providing funds for the immediate cash settlement. It was learned, however, the donors include several prominent Chicago families who are related to the Rosenbaums.

Plans Speedy Reorganization.

The reorganization plan presented to the court was submitted by Attorney Michael Gesus, counsel for the corporation. It contemplates a quick reorganization in order that the company may participate in the grain storage business which will be available when the new crops begin to move into market in a few weeks.

Under the proposed reorganization unsecured creditors with claims of $1,500,000 would receive a 20 per cent payment in cash and the balance in 4 year 5 per cent notes. A board of five directors is proposed, three nominated by the interests furnishing the new capital, one by the unsecured creditors, and one by the present stockholders. Eighty per cent of the stock of the corporation was held by the Rosenbaums. Judge Holly set

SHARE MARKET SKIDS SLIGHTLY IN LIGHT TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 6.—After three days of advances the share market today skidded slightly. Except for strength in some of the high priced investment issues the trend was toward irregularly lower prices.

Evidence of fresh bearish sentiment could not be found, however, and it was the opinion of most observers that further technical adjustment was taking place. Trade slowed down on the decline, the turnover falling to 676,950 shares.

It was evident throughout the session that the speculative fraternity was a bit confused by financial and political developments abroad, especially the efforts of the French to set up a new government. The NRA influence was not held to be important.

Strike Situation Improves.

The calling off of the strike of the Toledo Edison workers was encouraging to speculators, but the incident gave traders food for thought on the possibility of labor disturbances in other sections. There was nothing in the way of trade news to sway the list on either side.

One of the bright spots in the list was Coca-Cola, which found a substantial following. This warm weather favorite shot up 4 points to set another new high as it approached the $225 mark. Another issue to attract a good deal of attention was Owens Illinois Glass, which entered the select class of stocks selling at $100 as it ran up more than 2 points.

The utilities, leaders of the recent upward movement, were unmarked by any special activity as they drifted fractionally lower.

Blue Chip Issues Ease.

Blue chip issues like American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, and United States Steel gave way fractionally as traders elected to take some profits on their commitments. Eastman Kodak suffered a relapse and was driven down almost 3 points.

Two of the most active issues in the list were the shares of Warner Brothers, common and preferred. The preferred set a new high, but was forced to absorb some liquidation near the close to finish fractionally lower.

Foundations company, which broke into new low ground following the company's decision not to register with the SEC, moved into new low ground, and its trend was followed by Trico Products, which will also drop from the list.

Silver mining shares were higher, with Cerro de Pasco showing the way. Carrier shares were lower, but rail equipments received favorable attention. Chemicals were soft.

PLYMOUTH GOLD MINE SHARES ARE "STOPPED" BY SEC

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—A charge that activities of the Plymouth Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd., were designed "primarily to extract gold and silver from investors for the benefit of the promoters and only incidentally to extrac gold and silver from mines in distant Mexico," was made by the Securities and Exchange commission today.

A stop order was issued against the company in connection with 2,000,000 shares of $1 par capital stock registered under the securities act.

The opinion, discussing activities of a series of financial operations conducted by T. F. Taylor of Philadelphia, the company's president; Enrique Gonzales Rubio, his agent in Mexico, and Andrew Florian of Wilmington, found that Mexican investors had been asked to exchange their stock in two Mexican mines, both allegedly worthless, for the company's stock backed by an Arizona mine, also declared worthless, upon payment of 25 cents a share.

It also found that the company's prospectus claiming that its mines were in the richest silver producing area in the world, was at variance with facts furnished by the Mexican department of mines.

New York Stock Exchange Short Interest Smaller

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—The total short interest outstanding on the New York Stock exchange on May 31 was 768,199 shares, a decline of 4,031 shares from the aggregate reported on April 30, the exchange announced today.

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—A strong demand for high grade bonds was the feature of the bond market today. Transfers aggregated $11,031,000, par value, compared with $10,766,000 on Wednesday and the turnover in governments accounted for $3,370,000 of this total, against $2,660,000 the day before.

Accompanied by active trading, all types of government securities were in demand at advances ranging from 2-32ds to ⅛th of a point. The turnover in the 3¼s of 1941 was large and there was a fair volume of trade in the 2⅞s. The 3s of 1948, a block of which was recently offered by the treasury at public sale, sold at the highest price since that offering was made. First Liberty bonds sold at a premium of 2-32 point, with the redemption date only nine days off.

Speculative Issues Firm.

Second grade and speculative domestic bonds were again generally firm, but they lacked the buoyancy of yesterday's market. Gains were recorded in Warner Pictures 6s, Texas & Pacific 5s, Southern Railway 6½s, St. Louis Southwestern first 4s, Atlantic Coast Line 4½s, Lehigh Valley general 4s, International Paper 5s, Market Street 7s, Chicago Terre Haute & Southeastern income 5s and refunding 5s, Container 5s, and Brooklyn Queens consolidated 5s.

Other issues attracting attention on the upside included New York Central consolidated 4s, Liggett & Myers 5s, American Water Works 6s, and North American Edison 5½s.

Several Liens Are Lower.

Delaware & Hudson 4s slipped back a point, Columbia Gas 5s were ½ point lower, and small fractional losses occurred in obligations of Louisville & Nashville, Loew's, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, and Laclede Gas.

A feature of the foreign division was a one point drop in German government 5½s under rather large offerings. Most of the South and Central American loans were also easy.

Wheeling Steel.

Answer: Wheeling Steel corporation manufactures sheets, plates, strips, tinplate, wire, tubing, and other forms of light steel. A line of finished products, such as barrels, ash cans, shovels, stoves, etc., also is produced.

After having operated at continuous profits for the nine years through 1930, losses were suffered in 1931, 1932, and 1933. In 1934 operations were once more on a profitable basis, and this situation has continued into 1935.

For the first quarter of 1935 the company reported a profit of $935,000, or 94 cents per common share, against loss of $58,000 for the corresponding 1934 quarter.

	Sales.	Net loss.	Loss per com. shr.
1934	$48,925,000	*$ 481,000	$ 4.65
1933	44,875,000	825,000	8.02
1932	31,022,000	825,000	8.02
1931	45,361,000	4,251,000	16.91

On Dec. 31, 1934, current assets were $27,509,000 and current liabilities were $4,525,000. Cash assets were $1,424,000 and notes payable were $500,000. Funded debt, none due until 1943, was $25,250,000, down a million dollars from the year before.

Capitalization consists of 380,470 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and 387,147 shares of no par common. The preferred dividend, due April 1,1932, was omitted and nothing was paid on the stock until the 50 cent dividend on April 1, 1935.

Both the preferred and common are quite speculative.

American Insurance Union.

Investors' Guide: Kindly forward me information as to American Insurance Union Fraternal Society of Columbus, O. This went into receivership on May 3, 1933, and have not heard of it since.—S. R.

Answer: Hugh M. Bennett, co-receiver for American Insurance Union, informed us that about the only asset of the society is a large office building in Columbus, O., known as American Insurance Union Citadel. This structure has a tower 46 stories high.

Melvin L. Straus, trustee for bondholders, contends that the property is the security for a $3,455,000 first mortgage bond issue, which he has started to foreclose. A group of policyholders intervened in the foreclosure suit to attack the validity of the bond issue.

If the mortgage should be declared by the court to be [illegible], and if the property should be [illegible] in today's market, it hard[illegible] that it can be sold for [illegible] amount of the bond issue, in which event it appears that nothing would accrue to policyholders.

LARGE EDISON LOAN REPORTED SELLING WELL

Other Utility Issues in Active Demand.

Banking houses handling the $29,500,000 issue of Commonwealth Edison 3¾ per cent refunding bonds, due in 1962, reported yesterday that the issue has moved satisfactorily, with large buying by eastern insurance companies. The bonds, which were placed on the market at 98, were quoted at 98⅝ bid and 99 offered in the over-the-counter market at the close and at one time during the day were quoted at 98¾ bid and 99⅛ offered.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., in charge of the western sales of the bonds, announced the company could have sold all its allotment, but reserved a few bonds for special purposes. Field, Glore & Co., another Chicago house participating in the sale, said it had sold all its allotment and could have sold more. A large part of the eastern buying orders were placed through Chicago banks.

Other Issues Sell Well.

Other utility obligations placed on the market recently were reported to be moving well. Obligations of the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric company, bearing 4 per cent coupons and maturing in 1965, were quoted yesterday at 103⅞ bid and 104¼ offered.

The Pacific Gas and Electric company, which some weeks ago placed an issue of $45,000,000 of 4 per cent refunding bonds of 1960 on the market, announced a new $30,000,000 refinancing program. The plan, which has been submitted to the San Francisco office of the securities and exchange commission, provides for a new issue of 4 per cent bonds maturing Dec. 1, 1964. A. F. Hockenbeamer, president of the company, said that the calling of three issues on July 1 will take about $33,000,000, including premiums with the call price at 103¾.

The three issues to be called include $22,047,000 San Joaquin Light and Power corporation 5 per cent bonds of 1957, $2,257,000 Midland Counties Public Service corporation 5s of 1957, and $7,416,000 Sierra and San Francisco Power company bonds.

Goodrich Plans Big Loan.

It was announced in New York yesterday that the directors of B. F. Goodrich company, one of the country's leading automobile tire and rubber companies, has issued a call for a special meeting of the stockholders on July 16 to authorize an issue of $30,000,000 first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, part of the proceeds of which would be used to redeem the $17,800,000 of first mortgage 6½s, due in 1947.

Arrangements for the flotation of a new issue by the company have been practically completed and it is understood that Goldman, Sachs & Co. will head the syndicate which will handle the issue.

REPORT TRADE SAGS FROM PEAK SET LAST SPRING

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(AP)—A "moderate" recession from the spring peak of business activity was reported today by the commerce department. In its regular "survey of current business" the department noted that output of manufacturing industries increased by the usual seasonal amount during April, but that the index of industrial production declined because of a sharp drop in the mineral production index.

"Available weekly data for May do not indicate a change in the trend," the report said. "Automobile output has been curtailed; steel ingot production has declined further; cotton cloth production has continued near the lower level reached at the end of April, and lumber production has been reduced by labor difficulties in the Pacific coast area."

Further gains in residential construction during April and the first half of May were reported.

"The value of all contracts awarded for April was higher than in March but was lower than a year ago as the amount of public works contracts declined," said the survey.

Among the lines listed as having made gains in April were the automobile, tobacco manufacturing, lether and shoe, plate glass, cement and machine tool industries. A further substantial drop in iron and steel production, and declines in production of silk and cotton goods and rayon shipments, were shown for the same month. Operations in the woolen industry during April were said to have continued at a high rate.

WOODMEN GET 15 PROPERTIES, GIVE UP THREE

Completion of a reorganization under which the Modern Woodmen of America acquired 15 apartment buildings and surrendered their holdings in three others was announced yesterday by David Levinson, attorney for the Woodmen.

All of the properties came into the hands of bondholders, originally, the Woodmen holding about 80 per cent of the bonds. The exchange, by which minority interests were segregated, was based on appraisals made by the Chicago Real Estate board.

The plan was announced last November and met little opposition. It was approved by Circuit Judge Stanley Klarkowski after hearings before a master.

PWA HOUSING CHIEF HERE IS PROMOTED TO NATIONAL POST

F. J. C. Dresser, Chicago administrator for the housing division of the Public Works administration, in charge of the three proposed housing projects in this city, yesterday was called to Washington by Secretary Ickes to become associate director of housing for the entire country.

F. J. C. DRESSER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Chester A. Inman, former real estate broker, and for the last year and a half connected with the department of investigation of the PWA, was named by Ickes to succeed Dresser temporarily, with the probability that he would be given the post permanently.

Both Dresser's and Inman's appointments were described by Ickes as promotions. Inman, it was said, has been investigating the lawyers who were active in blocking the west side housing project.

CANADA DIVIDES GOLD FORMERLY HELD BY BANKS

40% Allotted to Meet Liabilities Abroad.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 6.—[Special.]—Of the gold coin and bullion taken over by the Bank of Canada from chartered banks, valued at $37,480,399 at the normal rate of $20.67 an ounce, the governor in council has decided that 40 per cent may be considered as having been held by the banks at time of transfer, against liabilities elsewhere than in Canada. The information was contained in an order in council tabled in the house of commons.

When the Bank of Canada started operations last March 11, the chartered banks were required by statute at once to hand over to the central bank all their gold reserves, receiving credit at the normal rate of $20.67 an ounce, although the world price had then risen to around $35 an ounce.

Decide Who Gets Profit.

Section 30 of the bank act provides that any profits resulting from the sale by the Bank of Canada of gold coin and bullion transferred from the chartered banks or from an increase in value arising from any change in the monetary standard of Canada shall belong to the chartered banks, "if the governor-in-council is satisfied that the said gold was at the time of its transfer being held by a chartered bank against liabilities elsewhere than in Canada." Otherwise the profit would accrue to the government.

It became necessary for the governor in council to reach a decision as to what proportion of the gold transferred was being held against foreign liabilities. Chartered banks made representations that substantially all of their gold was at the time of transfer held against liabilities elsewhere than in Canada.

Banks Want to Keep Gold.

In general the banks pointed out that, with the monetary instability which has prevailed and the continued threat of wide exchange fluctuations, manifold risks and the possibility of losses are ever present in conducting foreign business; that if any major crisis occurred abroad the liquid assets which they held elsewhere than in Canada against foreign liabilities were likely to be immobilized, particularly as the foreign branches of Canadian banks have no right of rediscount with any central bank in any foreign country.

The banks also argued all their gold had always been regarded and treated as a mobile reserve, free for transfer abroad either for the general protection of the banks' foreign liabilities or for use in the event of any specific emergency which rendered it expedient to ship gold.

Having in mind the traditional requirements of prudent banking and the necessity of maintaining adequate cash reserves against domestic liabilities, the minister of finance found that "the general contention of the banks that all their gold owned and held in Canada was at the time of transfer being held against liabilities elsewhere than in Canada cannot be successfully maintained."

PORK PROCESSING TAX IS ATTACKED IN FEDERAL COURT

Louisville, Ky., June 6.—(AP)—Constitutionality of the processing tax on pork was attacked today by the Louisville Provision company in a petition filed in Federal district court.

The petition contends the tax is not for the purpose of paying debts of the United States or to provide for the common defense and the general welfare; that it volates the tenth amendment involving delegated powers; that it violates the due process clause of the constitution.

Further, the company held the business is intrastate and not subject to federal regulation.

PROSPECTS OF U. S. BUYING LIFT BUTTER; EGGS DROP

Prospects of government buying prompted an active upturn in butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. The market closed ⅜ to 1 cent higher. Eggs were firm early, but closed ⅛ cent lower.

Sales follow: Butter, 142 cars; eggs, 71 cars; potatoes, 2 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 4 cars. Receipts: Butter, 15,567 tubs; eggs, 22,512 cases. Range of futures follows:

RAILROADS ASK CHANCE TO MEET PANAMA RATES

Urge Bill to Repeal Long and Short Haul Rule.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Officials of the Atchison, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, and Illinois Central systems today testified before a house sub-committee in support of the Pettengill bill which proposes repeal of the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act.

"The clause interposes an almost insurmountable barrier to the railroads in their efforts to meet effectively the competition of the Panama canal routes," said Paul P. Hastings, general freight agent of the Atchison railroad. He outlined the extent of the diversion of trafic to canal routes from the rail lines reaching terminals on the Pacific coast.

This diversion of tonnage was represented as resulting in unnecessary depression of the gross revenue of the railroads to the serious disadvantage of western producing interests dependent upon rail transportation.

Trafic Diverted to Canal.

"For several years," said Hastings, "practically all of the commodities manufactured in the eastern, central, and southern states are moving to the Pacific coast via the canal in much greater volume than via the railroads. These manufactured commodities from the eastern states are moving via the canal not only to the Pacific coast cities but also back from Pacific ports to the interior territory.

"Often, shipments from interior points in the east to an interior point in the west or vice versa do not use the rails at all, but move by truck or inland waterways at both ends and through the canal in the middle."

The bill also was supported by F. H. Law, vice president of the Illinois Central, who said railroads have had virtually to withdraw from port points because of the low water rates.

Urges Fairness to Middle West.

H. C. Hallmark, freight trafic manager of the Southern Pacific, declared that the repeal of the long and short haul clause was necessary to "place the railroads in a position to name rates from middle western industrial communities that will enable them to compete more effectively with eastern seaboard communities and in turn to be better customers of far western interior communities."

"The railroads probably would have no quarrel with the situation as it is now," testified T. L. Wilcox, assistant freight trafic manager of the Union Pacific, "if the policy of the commission in administering the law were based on the same sound principles that must, and do, control the railroad rate maker."

LOBBY QUIZ DIGS UP PROPOSAL TO "SEE" PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(AP)—A suggestion by one director of the American Retail federation, Inc., to another that Bob Marx of Cincinnati be hired as its counsel because of his "personal access to the President" was read into today's record of the house "superlobby" committee. It developed, however, that Marx, who traveled for a while with Mr. Roosevelt in the 1920 and 1932 campaigns, was not employed by the newly formed federation.

Chairman Patman sprung the surprise letter. It was written by Albert H. Morrill, president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company of Cincinnati, to Fred Lazarus Jr. of Columbus, O., and was dated April 17.

"The federation will need a counsel," Morrill's letter said, "and, while I can't very well suggest it myself generally, I can suggest it to you that there is no better man fitted to properly advise and get results than Bob Marx.

"I say this with full knowledge of his manner, which is at times unfortunate, but also with a full knowledge of his persistence and his ability. I know of no one to whom I would rather trust a question of broad policy, legislative or otherwise, or the trial of a law suit.

"Marx has a wide experience, particularly in the middle west, with legislative matters and laws affecting retailing, and he has also what is quite important to us, personal access to the President."

GRAINS REGAIN EARLY DECLINES AS MILLERS BUY

July Wheat Firmer; Other Futures Are Easier.

Grain prices dawdled over a listless course on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, moving lower early in the session, largely as the result of local short pressure, but rallying when fairly moderate buying by millers made its appearance. Volume was small and activity featureless except for outstanding strength in July wheat.

This delivery managed to turn in a gain of a quarter cent, but the September and December futures moved fractionally lower. Prospects that harvesting may be late this year helped the July future to some extent. Selling in the deferred months, some of which was attributed to anticipatory hedging based on fears that prices will be lower when the new crop starts to move and because of the small volume of speculation, weighed down these contracts to a relatively greater extent.

Corn and Oats Lower.

Corn and oats also lost ground for the day, but rye moved higher on reports of poor crop conditions abroad. Closing prices of principal July futures in Chicago follow:

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$0.84⅛	$0.83⅞	Holiday
Corn	.80¾	.80⅝	Holiday
Oats	.35⅝	.35⅛	Holiday
Rye	.48⅛	.47⅝	Holiday

Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ pence higher, Winnipeg gained an eighth of a cent, Rotterdam was steady to half a cent above Wednesday's close, and Buenos Aires rose a quarter of a cent.

Crop comments were less favorable, with light rains reported in the northwest and continued showers and cool weather in the southwest and Ohio valley. The start of harvesting of new winter wheat in Texas is being retarded by a lack of warm, clear weather. Such conditions are needed in other sections for maturing winter wheat.

Canadian Prospect Promising.

Both official and private reports confirmed reports of the promising crop outlook in the three Canadian provinces. Moisture conditions are satisfactory, germination is uniformly good, and development is normal, considering the late start.

Hessian flies were reported to be damaging wheat in lower Illinois, Indiana, and Missouri, but little attention was paid to this factor, which will appear periodically in one form or another throughout the growing season. Much wheat in the Missouri lowlands is rank and lodging badly, and some is affected by rust, according to that state's official weekly report.

PORK AND HOGS SLUMP DUE TO CHEAPER BEEF

Adversely influenced by stiff competition from beef, which has been marked down drastically in the last three weeks as a result of the New York consumers' strike against high prices, pork and hogs dropped sharply yesterday. Pork sold at weak to $1 lower prices at distributing points and restricted the buying of hogs.

The break in hogs was the sharpest in six weeks and prices were the lowest in 17 days. Declines at Chicago ranged from 5 to 25 cents, with medium grades of all weights and heavy stock over 275 pounds indicating the sharpest cuts. Selected grades of 200 to 230 pound new crop hogs reached a $12.25 top, including the processing tax, showing only 5 cents loss from Wednesday's top sale and 20 cents decline from the 1935 peak of last week, but butchers over 250 pounds and packing sows are selling 30 to 45 cents under the high point of early last week.

Cattle receipts were cut down to 4,000 yesterday and steer prices ruled strong to 25 cents higher, although little encouragement was heard from the strike area of New York. At present the strike is believed to cover a wider area than any time since it began. Yesterday's New York kosher beef business was reported to be 50 per cent of normal, veal 60 to 75 per cent of normal, and lamb 60 to 70 per cent.

Nebraska steers averaging 1,219 pounds topped the market here yesterday at $13.50. They were fattened in the same feedlots as the $16.25 steers here May 1.

A rise of 25 cents in the lamb market brought the top for new crop lambs to $10, highest since late in April.

ROSENBAUMS' MILLION DOLLAR DEBT EXPLAINED

Relatives Offer to Replace $277,642.

The intricate financial relations of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation with the private enterprises of the family and individual officers were set forth by Attorney Busch in detailing the proffered settlement. The amounts owing to the corporation and its subsidiary, the Chesapeake Export corporation, were listed as follows:

Emod, Inc.	45,534
Rofam, Inc.	$ 96,081
Commodity Trading corporation	133,492
Mercantile Trading corporation	1,535
Sitting Bull corporation	111,033
Emanuel F. Rosenbaum, president	78,825
Edward S. Rosenbaum, vice pres.	24,541
E. F. Rosenbaum Jr., asst. treasurer	62,260
E. S. Rosenbaum Jr., asst. secretary	59,575
Joseph Rosenbaum	217,454
C. J. Batter, controler	137,469
L. Nairn, treasurer	1,950

Stock Bought to Keep Control.

The moneys loaned to the first four enterprises, all controled by the Rosenbaum family, were used to purchase Rosenbaum corporation preferred stock. The purpose of these transactions was to maintain control of the Rosenbaum corporation in the hands of the family. Control rested with the common stock, held by the family, but was about to revert to the preferred stockholders because of arrearages in dividends on that stock.

The officers of the company had the conviction, Attorney Busch said, "based on irrefutable evidence, that former holders of the majority of the first preferred stock were dominated by interests hostile to the Rosenbaum Grain corporation, which were determined to force liquidation so that the grain elevator business of the Chicago Elevator Properties company could be acquired by competitive interests."

"Hostile" Group Not Named.

The acquisitions were consummated prior to May 15, 1935, when the control would have reverted to the preferred stockholders. The identity of "hostile" interests was not revealed. The decision was made, it was set forth, "in order to defeat the sinister influences at work to destroy the Rosenbaum Grain corporation and to protect the minority interest of stockholders."

The personal indebtedness of E. F. and E. S. Rosenbaum were described as "overdrafts." Both had running accounts with the firm for several years, it was stated, sometimes in favor of the corporation and at other times in favor of themselves. The "overdrafts" of the two junior Rosenbaums were permitted in lieu of salary raises, it was set forth.

Intended to Raise Salaries.

"Officers believed," Attorney Busch said, "that the salaries were not commensurate with the services" of the younger Rosenbaums. An understanding existed, he stated, that when business permitted, their salaries would be increased and the increases would be applied to wipe out the overdrafts. The raises did not materialize in time.

It was learned last night that other elevator interests are preparing to submit offers for taking over the Rosenbaum properties when the hearing on the reorganization is held June 21.

At the same time it was reported that a group of the unsecured creditors was organizing to fight the proposed reorganization on the grounds that the present management would be retained to a large degree.

LARD PRICES SHOW GAIN, IGNORING EASINESS IN HOGS

Lard moved slightly higher on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, following the action of cottonseed oil and ignoring easiness in hogs. Short covering and buying by cash interests were responsible for most of the upturn. Liverpool spots and futures were unchanged. Chicago cash lard was quoted at $13.45 per 100 pounds, loose leaf at $13.75, leaf at $13.87, and clear bellies at $17.35. Range of futures in dollars per 100 pounds follows:

LARD.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.	Year ago.

Oct.	13.37	13.37	13.35	13.35	13.27	6.75
Dec.	12.47	12.60	12.47	12.57	12.37	...

CLEAR BELLIES.

July	....	....	....	17.00	17.00	8.75

Note—Above prices include processing tax of $2.47 per 100 pounds on lard and $2.62 per 100 pounds on bellies processed since March, 1934. This tax is rebated on products exported, but varies according to the amount due to the fact that the tax was gradually increased.
